THE LAKE

It was 8:15 and a school day was about to begin. Empty, Lake Braddock was simply a quarter mile of concrete cinder blocks, blackboards, and books. Now, brimming with people, the school had come alive.

The poking finger of a seventh grader awakened a chameleon in his environmental science class. At the other end of the hall, seniors received advice from English teachers on college applications. Chemicals were poured from beaker to test tube by students wearing aprons and goggles. Engines revved and were tuned in auto mechanics, while the scissors of cosmetology students snipped away at their customers' hair. A sophomore presented her pass to get out for drivers education class. The sweet aroma of home-baked chocolate chip cookies wafted into the hall from the home economics department. The halls and classrooms bubbled with activity.

Involvement didn't end once the bell rang however. The halls stayed alive with students hustling from one club meeting to another. A crowd formed by the senior snack bar. Hordes of people migrated to the gym and fields for vigorous workouts. Up at the track our championship track team could be seen stretching out, while below on the blacktop the award-winning marching band moved to a constant beat.

It would seem that in a school with so much going on, the confusion would make it hard for students to find their own little niche. The exact opposite was true. Many students seized upon the opportunity to get involved, in order to have fun with old and new friends alike, and make their high school experience more personal.

THE LAKE

From seventh graders bogged down with books and backpacks to seniors twirling car keys around their fingers, there were many different sizes and types of people at Lake Braddock. At a glance all the faces could blend, but when a closer look was taken it became obvious that Lake Braddock was a school of individuals all chipping in to make this school an alive, active place.

The girl standing by the open locker pasted with Tiger Beat fold-outs of Rob Lowe was there to shovel mulch for the school at Beautification. Perhaps the boy in a football jersey with an ace bandage on his hand scored the winning touchdown at last week's game.

The girl at the water fountain tutored in geometry for the National Honor Society, while the boy waiting behind her sold candy in the concession stand for Key Club. Track, Field Hockey, the Math Honor Society, Octagon Club, SADD, Young Life, Swim and Dive Team, Golf . . . the list went on and on. There were many different things to do and ways to get involved at Lake Braddock. From the Cartoon Club to War Gaming society, activities were abundant at LB, but without the people who participated in them, they would not have been at all. The Chess Team could not have won meets without its members. The Homecoming Game would have been rather slow without our football players.

People got involved and made Lake Braddock a better place to be, but they also had fun doing so. Students here have a lot to offer Lake Braddock, and Lake Braddock has a lot to offer them. Take a peek at all that goes on within Lake Braddock. There's a lot to see. Go jump in the lake!

As September 8 quickly rolled around, students complained that once again the summer had flown by. Endless days of relaxing, enjoying the sun, and staying out on weeknights came to an abrupt halt. "It seems like as soon as you start having a good time, it's all over," said sophomore Mike Mahar. Students realized however, that another school year had just begun and that summer was over. Freshman Marcy Wright commented, "After the first week, you realize that for the next nine months school is your life, so you better enjoy yourself." That is how many students felt, so they began to get involved.

Jumping into as many activities as possible is a student's way of life, whether those activities be school-related, like clubs, Homecoming, plays and dances, or out-of-school, like parties, jobs, concerts, shopping, or just hanging out. Living in such a large area, students never ran out of things to do.

How each student spent their time, from working at McDonald's to studying at the library, was always very different from the next. No matter what they did however, students were always looking for ways to have fun, to earn money and to enjoy time with their friends. "After all," remarked junior Sherri Robert, "these are supposed to be the best times of our lives."

Helping to promote her Homecoming float during the parade down Lake Braddock Drive, senior Debbie Luedtke displays her extreme enthusiasm towards the exciting event.

You Had to be There

Blaring music, kids everywhere, colorful booths, and tons of food. It all added up to create what has been a Lake Braddock tradition since 1978, the Fall Festival.

"It signifies the beginning of a new school year," said Trina Helwig. It was a Saturday packed with fun, not to mention a great opportunity to get wet, with the dunking booth and class of 89's sponge toss. People could listen to the music of such local bands as The Outpatients, Shades of Grey, and Deuce, as they checked out the many different booths. There was roulette to be played, the Afro-American Club's fried chicken to be eaten, and the coveted steak dinner prepared by Mr. Stepp to be won.

"I really enjoyed the whole day," said Claudine Regrut. And what was not to enjoy? This year's Fall Festival featured some of its most original booths yet, the "jail" booth for instance.

Spirit week, Fall Follies, bonfire, and the pep rally had adrenelin running high before the Homecoming game and dance. Spirit week had the halls full of tie-dyes, cow-boys, college sweatshirts, red-hot colors, and a lot of Bruin spirit. The Fall Follies skits were presented by each of the classes and various clubs. The top three winners were juniors, seniors, and j.v. cheerleaders.

The cold November night made the Bonfire a welcome event, and the Cavalier dummies burned one by one. Finally, the pre-game pep rally concluded the school week's events.

The senior class was announced as the Spirit Banner winner at half-time, after the floats had been displayed. "We had a great theme to work with and we all came together when it came down to the wire," said senior Rob Abrams.

Anything Goes

Fashion today makes an important social statement rather than one of money. Students are more interested in comfort, style and quality, not just the brand name label. Sophomore Lyn Indrisano agreed with this when she said, "I don't look for name brands — I look for clothes that fit and are comfortable."

New comer John Hubbard demonstrates his sense of style which is different from that of his peers, Richard Dixon, Brian McNeil, and Chris Roux. His outfit is made up of a classic cardigan sweater, a white t-shirt, plaid dress pants, and penny loafers.

Students often wear clothes that suit their interests and lifestyles, such as seventh grader Paul Hack who stated, "I like the Sunshine House because it sells cool skate clothes by Gotcha and Vision Street Wear."

The ever-so-daring 60's miniskirt was one fashion that was back in style this year. It was a "hit" with many of the teenage girls and could be seen in all types of fabric from blue jean to leather. The acid or stonewashed denim look was extremely popular with jean jackets, blue jeans, miniskirts, and with the stonewashed Rugby shirt, which was first introduced by Britches Great Outdoors. Also, a variety of sweatshirts could be seen throughout the halls that represented colleges from all over the U.S. and abroad.

The result of a fashion poll left the top five favorite stores being Britches, the Limited, the Gap, J.C. Penny's, and Woodies. Fair Oaks Mall and Springfield Mall were the two most liked places to clothes shop. "I love shopping at J.C. Penny's," stated eighth grader Kathy Thompson, "because they have a wide selection of fashionable clothing and they aren't overpriced."

When asked what he looked for when buying clothes, senior Ledman, a fashion conscious student, laughed and commented, "Something I can wear that'll impress as many people as humanly possible."

Students of all ages were able to discover this year that styles and fashions were up to the individual and that "Anything Goes."

Participating in school activities such as Spirit Week, Beautification, the Homecoming Parade, and attending football or basketball games also made for a good time. Or just hanging out with friends at a locker are some of the ways Lake Braddock students let the good times roll!

A Grand Goodbye

As the year came to a close, throughout the class of 1987 there began a faint rustling, growing louder and louder with anticipation and excitement. A special life came into the senior class. While school work and club commitments were not a strong part of this "life," seniors enjoyed the last moments in celebration. As prom, baccalaureate, and graduation approached, the class of 1987 embarked on experiences they would long remember and never relive. Whether future plans included college or work, the seniors were going to say a grand goodbye and enjoy the glory.

As Prom approached, guys and girls alike questioned each other with: "Who's your date?" "What color is your dress?" "Are you renting a limo?" "Where are you going for dinner?" All the questions were answered on the evening of May 30, 1987, as students entered the Omni Shoreham in Washington D.C. for prom, their grand ball. After prom the days flew by and before the class of 1987 realized it, they were walking down the aisles of Holy Spirit Church during baccalaureate. Class president

Mark Mueller spoke for the class in saying thanks to Mrs. Susan Spage for giving them support and guidance in her last year as a class sponsor.

Then, graduation! The stands were filled with relatives and friends saluting the class of 1987 for a job well done. The emotions that had been swelling to a climax all year would peak on this evening of June 11, 1987 and come crashing down. Smiles and tears formed as Valedictorian Mark Pino and Salutatorian Tim Mitchell summed up the year and gave hope for the future. Cheers rang out as familiar faces approached Dr. John Cockey and Betsy Smith to accept diplomas. And finally, when the class was wished good luck and asked to "turn your tassels," caps flew in the air: the boys and girls of the class of 1987 became the men and women of the future.

"Let's go to the circus!" echoed throughout Lake Braddock and Burke preceding the weekend of May 8-10, 1987.

The Clyde-Beatty circus entertained approximately 14,000 people during seven shows. Dancing poodles, tightrope walkers performing high above the crowd, trapeze artists swinging without the safeguard of a net, comical clowns, lions, tigers, and ligers (cross between a lion and a tiger) — all were among the variety of performances leaving spectators imaginations run wild.

Students got out of classes on Friday to watch the one-day preparations which, in themselves, were unique. Taking the place of bulldozers, elephants set up the poles and other oversized framework which supported the three-ring tent.

Once all the preliminary work had been completed, all that was left was for the first show to begin. Allowing the performance to be more personalized, top ticket sellers were incorporated into the introductions. While Mr. Stepp opened as sit-in ringmaster, Jackie Legg, Michelle Clark, and Erin Welsch rode elephants around the ring.

"It was so cool! The elephants move sooo slowly, bah-dum, bah-dum, bah-dum, bah-dum, and boy do they stink!" said Jackie Legg.

Band director Carl Bly sponsored the circus' visit.

Profits from ticket sales went toward buying badly needed instruments for the band.

Clyde Beatty didn't just leave behind holes in the blacktop when they departed for Europe, "They brought to Lake Braddock a feeling of holiday and left us all with a memory to last a lifetime," concluded Mr. Bly.

What did students do at Young Life? They played games like kissing relays and throwing shaving cream pies, sang old songs such as “Good Lovin’” and “Johnny B. Goode”. Activities also included guided testimonies and talks by leader Dave Meeks.

When a Young Life meeting was called, it meant clubs from Fairfax County came together on evenings like 100ft. Banana Split Night, Beach Night, and Pizza Parties.

Young Life also sponsored other clubs and activities for Lake Braddock. Groups such as Campaigners and Morning Group met weekly and helped to plan the upcoming Young Life meetings. Students could also attend summer camps like Windy Gap in North Carolina and Saranac in New York. Not only were there summer trips for members, but there were also many weekend trips and retreats throughout the school year, like Hill Top, Harvey Cedar, and skiing trips.

Reaching thousands of students, Young Life had clubs all over the nation. After the meetings Lake Braddock made a tradition of eating at Roy Roger's as a way of closing their evenings.

Ollie

Oliver (Ollie) North captured America's heart this summer while on the stand for the Iran Contra hearings. The forty-three-year-old Marine Lieutenant Colonel possessed charm, humor and a sense of ease as he testified. About fifty million people turned on their T.V.s and tuned in their radios in order to hear what Ollie had to say. During the four days of testifying, some Americans came to view Ollie as a "hero." "The Ollie Haircut" became very popular and hundreds of Washingtonians also purchased the famous "Ollie for President" T-shirts.

East:West

A Soviet leader had never visited the United States. In December, however, Mikhail Gorbachev came to the U.S. to work out the terms and sign the INF (Intermediate Nuclear Forces) Treaty with President Ronald Reagan. The Treaty would eliminate medium and shorter range missiles in Europe and Asia.

The American press loved the Gorbachevs. Not only did Mr. Gorbachev make the news, but his wife Raisa was also well-covered, from what she was wearing to how she and Nancy Reagan got along. But for many Americans, the Gorbachevs' visit gave new hope to peace between the nations.

Hart?

This year the media exposed various sex scandals, the major one involving Gary Hart and Donna Rice. Hart bitterly withdrew from the 1988 Presidential race twenty-five days after he had officially entered. Accused of being an adulter, he would not comment on whether he was or not. He did though, insist that his relationship with Miss Rice was "platonic." Throughout the whole ordeal, his wife, Lee, stuck by his side. Hart, after long consideration, decided to re-enter the race for president. He endured a lot of ridicule and hostility from the press and American public, but to no avail.

PTL

"After the PTL scandal, I really began to think about these wealthy churches. Are they really there to serve God faithfully? Or do they want money? I am opposed to Jim and Tammy Bakker. They sound more against God."

— Hae Sung Park (9)

The PTL (Praise the Lord) scandal of money, sex and power, brought Jim and Tammy Fae Bakker into the spotlight. Jim's fling with Jessica Hahn and the resulting hush money began the days of reckoning for PTL. The ministry went bankrupt, leaving the PTL sixty-eight million dollars in debt. This led to the famous auction of all the Bakkers' belongings, including their air-conditioned dog house. Known for her heavy make-up, Tammy Fae recorded "The Ballad of Jim and Tammy," trying to explain their story. And what a story it was.

The Crash

On October 19, 1987, the Stock Market crashed on Wall Street, and the stocks fell a whopping 508. Frantic and panicked stockholders rushed to their brokers to either sell, sell, sell or buy, buy, buy. On that day, 604.3 million shares were sold, which more than doubled the previous record of 338.5 million. Originally, critics thought that the market would take weeks to recover from the drastic loss, but within the week, things were back

Baby Jess

For over 58 hours, 18-month old Jessica McClure was trapped twenty-two feet underground, without food or water. She had fallen down an old abandoned well. Rescuers worked day and night digging and drilling, to free the child, while America waited on the edge of its seat. At last, a special high-pressure hydraulic drill allowed them to widen the passage. At 6:30 p.m., after two and a half days of hard work, rescuers finally freed the child. She suffered only minor injuries, except for a large bruise on her forehead, and a crushed right foot. Her foot had been pinned up next to her head. The doctors decided against amputation even though they believe she will lose portions of two of her toes. But don't worry, they said, "She's going to be fine."

We Win

January 31, San Diego — A roaring crowd was packed into Jack Murphy Stadium, all anxiously waiting for the XXII Superbowl to begin. With a sudden outburst from the crowd, the Washington Redskins and Denver Broncos rushed out onto the field. At first the Broncos dominated the game, taking a 10-0 lead. Early in the second quarter, however, the Redskins rallied back to score, keeping up their momentum with four more touchdowns. Led by MVP quarterback Doug Williams and running back Timmy Smith, the Redskins dominated the rest of the game with style and pizzazz, ending with a 42-10 triumph.

On February 3, the Redskins returned home to a city filled with hog wild fans; half a million people abandoned work and school to attend the parade. Senior Yvette Fraga fainted during all the excitement and was passed up to the podium. After coming to, Yvette met many of the Redskins, and was asked to lunch.

"I didn't think I would be able to look back and laugh, but it was a once-in-a-lifetime experience which is easy to joke about now."

— Yvette Fraga (12)

Dreams

Anticipation, nervousness, and ambition were reflected in each of the Olympic competitors' eyes at the XV Winter Olympic games in Calgary. The athletes had practiced for their one moment in the spotlight, hoping for a medal. Our first gold came when Brian Boitano won the Men's Figure Skating event.

Other U.S. contenders, like Gold Medal speed skater Bonnie Blair, shone in their moment of glory. For them, all the pain and long hours were well worth it. But some had tragic moments, like Dan Jansen, who was the favorite for the gold in the 500 and 1000 meter speed skating events. However, the death of his sister on the morning of his first race caused him to lose his concentration and fall in both events.

The fifteen days of glory left fans looking forward to more in the Summer Olympics in Seoul.

"I love the Olympics because I know the athletes have driven themselves to perfection, to get to Calgary. They proved to everyone, who was the best in the world."

Hall mobs, long lunch lines and appointments with counselors put

LB Students on the Run

Although the average LB student spent six hours in school every day, an hour and seven minutes were set aside for individual use.

Between classes, students could be found roaming the hallways, making appointments with counselors, and catching up on late homework assignments.

Although traditionally used only by seniors, juniors Rob Houston, Kristen Kline and Amy Porter sneak a quick lunch on the senior stage.

Lunch was spent in long lines for food and socializing with friends as WLBS and the LED board kept the crowds entertained.

9:05-9:13

"It's a good thing we have eight minutes between classes because I have to go all the way from subschool IV to the PE hall. Even though I have to battle the crowds, I make it right on time."

Lisa Cole

10:10-10:18

"Between second and third period, I go from English to lunch. I don't really like having lunch that early because I'm starving by sixth period and there's no food when I get home."

Todd Richman

11:08-11:16

"I usually talk with my friends because my classes are so close together. It gives me a chance to catch up on anything that's happening with them and clear up any problems with my teachers."

Misti Johnson

Lunch

"I do eat during lunch but I also socialize with my friends. I like having D lunch because it's at the end of the day, but they run out of all of the food I like."

Jessica Williams

Getting There

No matter how you look at it, traveling to and from school was a chore. Some students started their long journey to school by leaving their houses as early as 7 AM, to be ensured a spot in the senior parking lot, with or without a sticker. The stragglers which left at 8:05 were lucky enough to find a spot anywhere; the most likely place: Burke Lake Road.

"Burke Lake Road is a pain getting in and out of. Having to cross the street without getting run over by a bus or other cars and then having to walk all the way to school; it's just a pain," commented junior Christine VarKonda.

For those students who didn't travel by car, by walking or riding a bike, the only other alternative was to take the big yellow school bus. Bus riders mostly consisted of intermediates, freshman, and sophomores, and a few lucky juniors and seniors could be found riding the bus on occasion.

"I don't mind riding the bus; it's not so bad. I get picked up on time and always make it to school on time. Heck, it's the only way to go, until I get my license!" commented sophomore Martha Tye.

However, the most convenient way to get to and from school was to walk. "I walk just about everyday, except when it rains. I don't have to worry about traffic, or finding a parking place. I can walk out my door and I'm practically to school!" said senior Karen Schmokel.

In the morning most juniors and seniors that had their own cars drove themselves to school along with a few of their friends.

"Riding to school with friends makes the time pass faster as well as being a lot more fun," said senior Virginia Kim.

Parking was a problem right from the beginning of the school year; with 1600 eligible drivers there was only room in the parking lot for 150. The student body was issued stickers during the second month of school. Only those students who completed a parking sticker form and fulfilled the requirements were given a sticker.

"Parking stickers were not distributed correctly nor fairly," protested senior Chris Buie; "however there was at least a change from last year with the parking problem. After 8 AM anyone with or without a sticker can park in the lot."

Some students had some suggestions about creating more parking spaces to try and cater to those who drive everyday. "Get rid of the baseball field, and give us a parking lot!" said junior Frank Bennett.

Whether it was by walking, riding bikes, using the bus or carpooling with friends, transportation to school was a true necessity in every student's life.

Rolling in the Dough

"I work today," was the answer many students gave when their friends asked what they were doing after school or on the weekend. That phrase soon turned to a long awaited "It's payday!"

"I needed the money" is the reason Rob Higginbotham chose to work at Sam Goody's. The money from a cashed paycheck was spent on a movie ticket to "Fatal Attraction," a new pair of Guess jeans, a sundae at Friendly's, or payments on a car. Others saved their earnings. Cori Booton who works at Erol's said, "I need the money for college." Beach week and the junior/senior ski trip also were paid for with the help of the money from a job.

Besides the extra spending money, working forms many friendships. "I always have a lot of fun," commented Pam Rusciolelli who is employed at National Variety. Jeff Ihrig who works at Hechinger's said, "I have a lot of friends there and we sometimes go out on the weekends."

Working created many problems, but it also had many benefits. Jeni Craven explained, "The main disadvantage is the lack of time for school." Wendy Cox said although work may interfere with school work, "You get independence with money. It makes you feel good."

A job requires a balance between school work and the responsibility of a job. Many students chose to do so. Bob Reuss who works at Baskin Robbins said, "Meeting new people at the store is very exciting and getting all that money makes all the hard work pay off."

Wintertime Follies

"Goin' anywhere for the holidays?" was a common question in December. Although students yearned for more days off than given, the winter break gave them an opportunity to visit relatives at home or abroad, ski their favorite slopes, or spend some valuable time with good friends here at home.

"Please, God! Let it snow!" prayed students frequently during the winter season — whether it was for cancelling school, or just to add a nice touch to the holiday season. Despite the prayers, Jack Frost did not always visit when wanted. Students always welcomed him upon his arrival, especially those stranded on the junior-senior ski trip to Canada.

What did students do on their time off from school?

Allen Johnson, junior, "went sledding at high speeds in a parking lot, towed by a rubber hose on this guy's truck. It was awesome!"

Kurt Leopold, junior, "went to Tampa Bay, Florida to play in a soccer tournament and to catch some rays."

Blithe Spirit

There was a hum in the air as people, young and old, whispered among each other and situated themselves to make ready for the play to start. Shortly, the lights dimmed to total darkness and "Blithe Spirit" had begun.

The play, written by Noel Coward and produced by Pat Jones was a mystery, farce, and drama all blended together as one. "Blithe Spirit" which was presented February 11-13 and 19, and 20, told the story of how a man's deceased wife was conjured up during a seance.

Madame Arcati, portrayed by Bridget Barry and Danielle Shinderman, provided comic relief throughout the play with her exaggerated gestures, colorful clothing, and erratic personality, while Ruth Condomine ( Bonnie Strong, Stephanie Saylor ) added a more serious, logical tone to the play. Charles Condomine ( Mike Shapiro, Mark Shaad ) was the main character and subject to the haunting of his former wife, Elvira ( Jill Nacke, Lee Vanderpool ). Edith, the maid ( Kelly Taylor, Maria Forte ), being the cause of all the trouble, played a small but important role. Dr. Bradman ( Dipu Gupta, Ken Marcus ) and Mrs. Bradman ( Liza Thompson, Ann Colly ) also played minor parts as friends of the Condomines.

The play took all of a month to get together and put on the final touches. Kristi Lund, sophomore, explained, "Everybody works harder and becomes closer during production week." Most of the cast and crew agreed with her. Ann Colly, junior, excitedly said, "I've never done a high British play before, it's very challenging."

Although putting together

"Blithe Spirit" was a laborious task, it was worthwhile to all those involved. As senior Danielle Shinderman commented, "Knowing you're able to make the audience laugh or cry is so rewarding."

Vacation Fun

Holiday: n. a day when work is suspended by custom or law as to commemorate a special event.

Holidays of any kind were a time to spend with friends or relatives to share and enjoy one another's company. Holidays for most Lake Braddock students, however meant missing school and having fun. Spring break and summer were in the running for the most popular. Some seniors didn't even need such official breaks to take a few days off.

When school first began, winter break was already being anticipated. Everyone kept calendars in their lockers and a count down of the days left in their brain. Once it came, (and not soon enough), students had a chance to relax. Some worked, some slept, and as senior Heather Niebling put it, "I was BURKE BOUND!" After the wrapping paper was cleared and the Hannukah candles were put back in the closet, school was on again.

Even while at school, students participated in holidays, like dressing up in red for Valentine's Day, green for St. Patrick's Day and Halloween where everyone could dress up the way they wanted to!

Keyettes sponsored "Buy a Carnation for your Sweetheart" on Valentine's Day, so all those secret admirers and not so secret admirers could show their valentine how much they cared by sending flowers.

Spring brought April Fool's Day: a day when it's okay to play jokes on your friends without them getting mad. With spring also came spring break, the only real vacation in the second semester. "After spring break, summer seems so much closer, and the count-down really begins," commented eighth grader Kounson-savan Ditthavong.

Towards the end of the year all students looked forward to summer, a time where they could kick back at the beach and relax until once again school would start three months later.

"There was a lot of energy, excitement, and spirit in the air. Each class worked together as a team to do the best they could," explained Denise Gatewood when asked about Class Night.

This year it was not the seniors or even the juniors who captured first place — it was the freshmen. "Even though we didn't win, I came out with a winning feeling knowing the juniors united to do their best," said junior class president Stacey Moore.

Other competitive events were the obstacle course, tug-of-war, limbo, egg drop, fruit pass, and the peanut butter pig-out. Mike Rutherford said, "Being part of the dominating senior class, the extravaganza of Class Night was a definite pinnacle in my educational career."

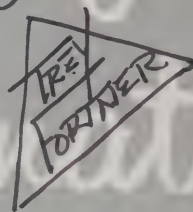

"... it was obviously a night to remember!" exclaimed junior Catherine Tweel.

Salmagundi!

1. any mixture of miscellany.
2. a mixed dish.

Explanations Required

Each year the Lake Braddock student body consisted of new and different types of people — a potpourri of changing ideas and attitudes. The student body could have been called a salmagundi: a mixture or compilation of many different personalities. Salmagundi!, the yearbook section, is also a mixture; it represents the unique aspects of this year.

Inside

What books have you read? What is your favorite lunch food?

Feeling Stressed?

Facts On File!

Students completed surveys for what's hot and what's not as well as their favorite top items.

*Is That

Q. Who chose the mascot? Who chose our school's colors?

A. The parents of the original students at Lake Braddock chose the mascot, and their students chose the school colors.

A novel idea

After six years of reading books in English classes, most seniors have read between twenty and fifty-two books before graduation. Whew! In a year where classic rock, classic cars, and classic clothes hit the top 40, it seemed only appropriate to look back at those English class classics . . .

Ninth grade was an introduction to the enjoyment of reading, yet many protested. Brett Laraunie lamented, "Reading the books that were assigned in class took up too much time when we could have been watching the movie."

Although freshmen were given this lapse of laziness, it wouldn't last long. By the tenth grade, students developed more serious attitudes toward the English curriculum and fewer complaints were heard. "I like to read freely," Lauren Blanco noted, "rather than follow what pages the teacher assigns." Nancy Stone added, "Sometimes the books can be long, but my attitude has changed because I want to get into a good college."

Senior Carrie Adams finishes another chapter of Wuthering Heights in preparation for discussion in English class.

With this preparation sophomores leapt into junior year with some heavy reading in front of them for American Literature and History. Yet many juniors found themselves enjoying books that they were once "forced" to read. Dan Daughterly commented on The Scarlet Letter saying, "I really sym-pathized with Hester." For senior year the challenge moved to British Literature and took on new depth. Debbie Luedtke observed, "In your senior year you look at books from a symbolic point of view, whereas in the ninth grade all you had to do was read it, smile, and take a quiz." "Yet there's something more to all the books we read in English," summarized Peter Vinton. "We get a lesson about literature and also a lesson about life."

Using every spare moment, seniors Allison Semmes and Dana Jones peruse copies of Frankenstein and Wuthering Heights before first period.

Is That a Fact?

Q. What are the origins of the tune for "Bruins, Bruins, Hats off to Thee?"

A. The tune for the school song was originally written as "The Washington State Fight Song."

Table talk

As third period ended, all Bruins braced themselves for the longest hour of the day: lunch. Most students bought their lunch; spending ten minutes in line. "It's kind of a pain, but it gives me a chance to talk to my friends," said Evan Hershey, senior. "Lots of people joke around about the food crawling away and stuff, but it's really pretty good," said Ansley Clarke.

The cafeteria offered junk foods like twinkies, health foods like salads and yogurt, and fast foods like pizza. However, the perennial favorite remained. "A hamburger, fries, and milk," said Steve Bush.

Some students brought lunch from home. "I like to know what's in my

Getting a driver's license was anxiously anticipated by most sophomores and juniors. Routine included classroom driver's ed for one quarter of the sophomore year, preparation for twelve days of behind-the-wheel.

On the day of the big test, most students got through the line and the driving to find that the stress wasn't over; it was time to take their picture. "Stand sideways. Look up. No funny faces. Thank you, next please." With no time for preparation or primping, most people admittedly

Students were also forced to make alternate plans. "Four of us wound up sleeping in the living room of my house," said Scott Mudd, senior.

Although students found time to have friends over or sit in hot tubs like junior Len Wortzel, they realized the seriousness of the storm. Senior Kath Holland commented, "Although I think the school board should not have sent us to school, I think the administration handled the situation admirably." Mr. Stepp acknowledged Holland's remark, adding, "I'm indebted to the students and faculty for their maturity."

JUMP INTO

Classes and Commitments

Kristen Harkey

With 247 curricular courses, 50 organizations, and 7 honor societies, Lake Braddock provided ample opportunity for students to jump into classes and commitments. Electives like photography, typing, and advanced foreign languages could improve an ability or indulge an interest. "Unfortunately, you can't take too many electives," pointed out junior Trish Comstock, "because of all the academic credits needed for graduation." Whether it was replacing the fan belt of a Mercedes, soldering a bracelet in metal design, or exploring the unconscious in psychology, academics proved that not all classes had to use books to be educational.

From Tri-Hi-Y to WLBS, a number of clubs and organizations provided the chance to make friends, help the community, or add to a college application. Even with seventh period, one of the biggest problems facing a student was trying to budget time for all the diverse activities. Senior Rachel Manasan complained, "I just came from an Octagon Club meeting, and now I have French Club and Design Company, and then I'll go back to Octagon . . . if I have time . . ."

Finally, there were the subjects that crossed the thinly-drawn line between class and commitment. Band and journalism, debate and drama were some of these activities that required hard work and dedication in class as well as after school. As yearbook member Jay Overstreet said, "Classes like yearbook are so unique. You have to work for a grade but it has all the fun that goes along with being in a cool club."

Whether it was through classes, commitments, or both, students took advantage of club and course alike to get a jump into Lake Braddock.

IT'S MATHEMATICS

As you ease your way into your seat, you breathe a sigh of relief as you hear the bell ring. Painstakingly, you open your notebook and pull out last night's homework. Yes, math class has begun. Whether it be seventh grade math or calculus BC, your mind is constantly whizzing with formulas. Wait a minute, are you supposed to use  $y=mx+b$  or  $E=mc^2$ ?

"I really dread going to math class every day. One hour seems like eternity, but without it, I guess we wouldn't be able to get along in our daily lives," said junior Amy Porter

Math meets provided a way to earn extra credit points, with more advanced problems for Geometry to Calculus BC students. "Every time I go to a meet it's a challenge, but it's worth the couple extra points to boost my grade in math," commented Kristine Thompson

Those students who excel in math were able to join the Math Honor Society. Responsibilities as a member were to tutor and attend math meets. "Tutoring on a one to one basis gives students the opportunity to ask questions they might normally not ask their teachers," stated Arjun

Conquering the Latin Language and Culture

VENI!! VIDI!! VICI!!

"I came! I saw! I conquered!" That's what most Latin students wished they could say about that practically unconquerable language they were studying. The "killer language," as it was nicknamed, did have its fine points. "I'm taking Latin because I like history," sophomore Jeff Laux said.

Like Jeff, there were students who wanted to do more than just take Latin for the language. "I like the Latin Club because you get to learn more about the culture and not just the language," commented program chairperson

Madelyn Smith, Treasurer Jen Owen agreed, "It's a good learning experience."

Along with the Latin Club, the Latin Honor Society also tried to enhance understanding of the Latin culture and reward students for their dedication to the language. Students belonging to the club served as tutors for others and participated in an annual banquet. The Latin Honor Society required a student to have a 3.5 grade point average for three consecutive semesters and maintain it throughout the duration of their membership.

These two organizations have kept the "dead" Latin language and culture alive and kicking.

Opening the Doors to Hispanic Culture

SPANISH ORGANIZATIONS

"Colleges love it! Being a member is fun, but being able to stick it on my application is a serious plus," admitted Bob Feisee.

This junior was one member of the Spanish Honor Society, which sponsored the "Tertulia", a gathering of Spanish-studying students after school who worked on conversational skills by speaking strictly Spanish while enjoying refreshments.

Members also tutored students studying Spanish. Historian, Yvette Fraga said of the tutoring, "There's actually a good, proud feeling in knowing that you've helped another student. It also restores the belief that studying Spanish so hard has paid off somewhat." With part of the money earned by selling nachos at the Fall Festival and from bake sales during Christmas, the Spanish Club hoped to buy computers which students interested in the Hispanic culture could refer to. Funded by earnings from candy sales, members of the honor society went on a trip to New York City in the spring to see the sights and a Spanish play.

In December, the club "adopted" a less fortunate Hispanic family for Christmas and provided it with a bounty of canned foods. Public relations manager Jenny Sligh said, "It was quite a humbling experience. The spirit of giving was definitely there." The Spanish Honor Society and Spanish Club did more than just look good typed out on a college application.

Yes, you'd like to learn German? Then the German Club and German Honor Society could teach you a thing or two.

"The German Club started late because we didn't have a sponsor," explained John Gross, "but Mrs. Binder volunteered and we got going."

Club members planned a trip to Busch Gardens in the spring, and to help raise money for the trip, they sold Gummi bears in the cafeteria. They also had a Christmas party and a progressive dinner where the new officers were selected. On December 18, the German Club went to an Austrian-Bavarian restaurant, the Kaiserhof.

To be in the German Honor Society, students must have taken 3 semesters of German with a 3.6 grade average, and a 3.0 average overall.

"I like German Honor Society because it's fun to speak German with friends without the pressure of homework or tests," said secretary Angie Galland. The G.H.S. met once a month with a theme at each meeting, such as a German game or a guest speaker. At Fall Festival, they sold bratwurst. "We had one of the most successful booths," explained vice-president

Hope Cahill. The Society, like the German Club, had a Christmas party, planned a trip to Busch Gardens, and had dinner at a local restaurant to select officers.

French Students Work and Socialize TOUS ENSEMBLE

"I am an active Franco-phile," said junior Ted Chamberlain. What's that? It's someone who greatly admires France and its customs. Lots of Francophiles were involved this year with the French Club and French Honor Society, two of the largest organizations in the school.

The French Club was available to anyone interested in the French language. They met regularly to help encourage the French language and to do French related activities. Members made cookies for the Homecoming reception and were once again successful selling croissants at the Fall Festival. Freshman Dana Bompkamp explained, "We have international buffets, sell advent calendars, go to French restaurants, and have a lot of fun."

For most of the French Honor Society members, it was an honor to be inducted after 3 semesters of taking the language. Along with teacher recommendations, society members needed to uphold a G.P.A. of at least 3.5 in French and a 3.0 overall.

"We meet separately sometimes and speak only in French," commented junior Tracy Steele, "We also go out to eat French food, meet with other language clubs and participate as a club in school activities."

plained Dayna Smith. With sponsor Jacki Thomas, the club members sold chicken at Fall Festival, went to a Black College Convention, took trips to James Madison University as well as Virginia State, and offered a tutorial program for minority students.

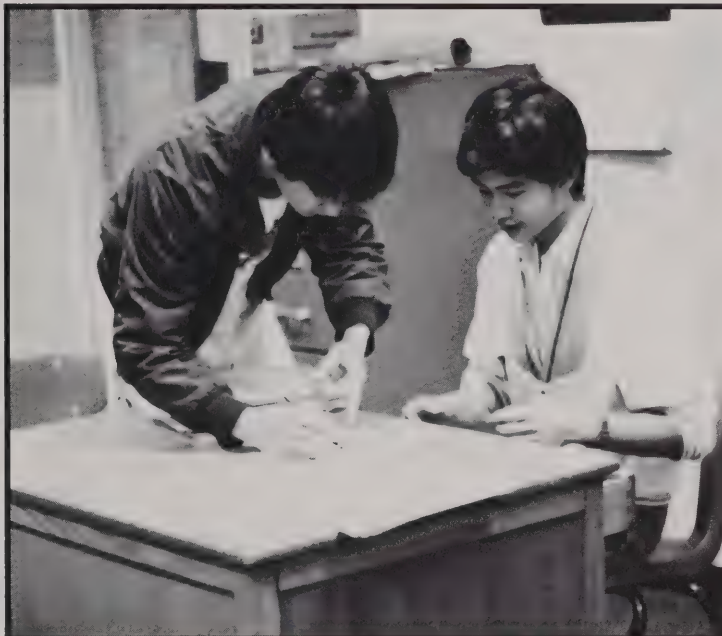

"We all know how everyone in the club feels," said Mindy Jeter, "because we are all of the same race exchanging ideas and just having right out fun!"

The Korean Club met every other week for the same reasons. They encouraged both the Korean language and culture. "I am proud to be a Korean!" explained member Kathy Park. President Allison Oh added, "I have a lot of fun and get to meet many people from the same minority."

Inside the classroom, the ESL (English as a Second Language) program brought together students representing many different cultures to learn the English language, and American culture, and customs. Becoming an American, said Arturo Soriano, "is hard work — but it all pays off."

A PASSION FOR FASHION

What's hot? What's not? What will people wear? What will they buy? These were questions that members of Fashion Merchandising classes had to take seriously. They learned the basics of color and line, finding what styles and shades best flatter different people. In addition, they learned about careers in the fashion industry, including buying, selling, and designing. To really experience the world of fashion, classes took a trip to New York to see the most famous stores and newest styles anywhere.

Students of Fashion Merchandising worked to bring their knowledge to the student body. Both they and the Afro-American club held fashion shows open to the school.

Using members of Fashion Merchandising classes as models, a fall show gave students a peek at new hot looks.

Also held was a Homecoming show in the cafeteria during all lunch shifts, with the Homecoming court modeling formal dresses. The Afro-American club's show was put on in a New York runway style with upbeat music and dancing. Jennifer Williams participated because "it's a lot of fun, and it's a time when the whole club can get together and work on something exciting."

All of this brought up the question, what was fashionable in 1988? Answered Beth Jones, "At Lake Braddock, fashion is more of an attitude than a style."

THE SCIENCES

Tuesday — Lab Day. The smell of formaldehyde fills the tenth grade biology class. The students trickle in a few at a time, some excited to participate and some feeling a little queasy. All are anticipating the next 50 minutes — today, they will dissect a fetal pig. "I thought it was interesting. I didn't think it was gory but I still can smell the formaldehyde," said senior Andrea Wollin.

Meanwhile, at the other end of the school, seventh graders peer through their microscopes, hoping to catch a glance of an elusive protozoa.

These are typical occurrences within the science classes, but the learning doesn't stop at labs. The annual Science Fair provided an opportunity for science enthusiasts to present projects in such categories as physics and environmental science. Eighth grader Brian Baker expressed his feelings about his third place finish in the chemistry category as, "I was estatic."

Another way to discover more about science is through the Science Club sponsored by Nancy Teichman. The club gives people interested in science an opportunity to study topics not in the normal curriculum, such as astrology.

And so began another day for student-run radio station WLBS. “We’re always trying to enlarge our library and still have fun,” said Bill “the Cat” Cocolis. John Frazier agreed, “We have a little party every day.”

A lot of hard work was also involved. “The day before each show,” explained Rich Livingston, “I record five songs on a master program tape and make a list of the announcements for the next day.”

As for the DJ’s, “It’s more than just pressing pause and play,” said Doug Finberg. “You’ve got to know how to think fast on your feet,” said Robyn Caruthers. “A lot of times I’ll have food in my mouth when a song ends,”

BRUIN BATTLEERS

A trip to Subschool II Wednesdays after school could take you back to the ages of the knights. Each Wednesday the Chess Club offered the chance for seasoned players to improve their games while the inexperienced learned from better members. "I play chess for the challenge," said Dave Albert. The best of the club represented Braddock in a winning season of chess tournaments.

Also meeting in Subschool II on Wednesdays was B.A.D., a new club this year. Part of the Interact task force, B.A.D. (Bruins Against Drugs) wanted to develop positive peer pressure and provide an atmosphere where kids would feel comfortable resisting drugs. The club began their "Just Say No" campaign in January, with parties and sports events geared at increasing membership, and the wearing of "Just Say No" t-shirts on Fridays. "We're hoping the group will swell so that the temptation of drugs will be in the minority," said club sponsor Mike Magathan.

Open to grades 7-12, B.A.D. wanted to inform everyone, not just students, of the problems drugs cause. In January, members journeyed to Springarn High School, a self-made substance-free school, after a trip here by their students. "The key to making L.B. substance-free is to spread the word about the dangers of drugs," said B.A.D. president Shawn Little.

THE BEAR FACTS

The Bear Facts. What would the student body do without it? We find all sorts of information in it from the latest scores in sports, to what's happening in Lake Braddock. But then again, every student receives it biweekly at home without cost.

Eighteen issues per school year are made in the Bear Facts room, which is constructed like a mini news room. From their own dark room, to work benches, and specialized computers, the students learn what it's like to take part in the tedious work of publishing a newspaper. Commented John Wallace, the Bear Facts photo editor, "We work hard, but it's worth it, because the paper looks good."

With the guidance of Dr. Patrick McCarthy, the sponsor of the Bear Facts since the school opened, the paper has received numerous awards, some of which are the All-American, The National Scholastic Press Association, and the George H. Gallup Award from Quill and Scroll. In addition to all these prestigious awards, the Bear Facts publishes more issues per school year than any other school newspaper in the country.

Freshman staff member Marchelle Yoch said, "You get a feeling of pride and accomplishment every two weeks your work is completed and in print."

A CREDIT TO BRADDOCK

The National Honor Society was an organization designed to recognize the outstanding students in the country. Students with a overall grade point average of 3.5 or better, grades 10-12 were given an application. They had to fill it out, verifying their grades, and showing examples of leadership, service and character.

Once in the Society, members were required to earn four service points a year, mostly through tutoring students requiring extra help in a certain subject. As Nancy Moulton said, "I like tutoring and helping people out." Students being tutored also benefitted, as K.P. Wawrzyniak commented, "Being tutored by another student helps because we think more alike!" Members could also usher at graduation, help with the induction ceremonies, or work on other N.H.S. activities to earn points.

This was the first year that sophomores were inducted into the chapter. Other area schools had had sophomore members for years and it was decided the Lake Braddock should also induct them into their N.H.S.

Being in National Honor Society makes junior, Carol DeAngelis feel "accomplished, I know all my hard work is paying off."

ONCE AND FUTURE WRITERS

"Chrystalis wasn't anything like I thought it would be," said Elizabeth Malek-Zadeh, business editor. "I joined because I like literature and hoped to have some of my own work in it."

"We depend on the English classes very much," said Ed Kacena, editor-in-chief. "We tell them what we need and they recommend work to us."

A lengthy process is involved in publication. When a piece is received, it is logged, assigned a number, and critiqued several times by the reading staff. Only 70 pieces chosen from the more than 300 submissions go into the final publication.

Another organization that promotes writing is Quill & Scroll, the International Honor Society for High School Journalists. At a candlelight ceremony in the spring, inductees selected from year-book and Bear Facts staffs pledge to honor the ideals of journalism. Writers who want to letter in journalism must belong to Quill & Scroll.

Providing a sense of responsibility and accomplishment, Chrysalis and Quill & Scroll helped create an atmosphere of journalistic excellence. "Being in Quill & Scroll," said Gretchen Grozier "lets me know that someone appreciates my work in journalism and furthers my ambitions in that field."

A FIGURE OF SPEECH

"It's an addiction," commented Victoria Embs, member of the award-winning debate team. "I'm always researching and thinking about my topics." This dedication is evident in the debate room, which is filled with awards and team members so absorbed in their work they don't even notice when a visitor enters the room. "It helps you get a broader sense of what's going on in the world," said Brian Tureck.

Beginning debaters competed locally while the advanced members traveled to tournaments in other states.

They captured first place at Princeton and St. Joseph's and won trophies at U of Massachusetts, Bronx H.S., and Wake Forest. "I don't know how they keep up with debate and school at the same time," said coach Vicki Drinnon, "but they seem to manage." Drinnon was named "Coach of the Year" by the University of Kentucky.

Another well-spoken club is Forensics, sponsored by Jane Powell. "It provides another outlet in which to learn how to express yourself to an audience," said Danielle Shinderman. Participants read expressive literature in front of judges. They traveled to invitational tournaments all over Virginia, winning the Sweepstakes Award in Richmond and other individual awards.

As you can see, it's not unusual for the Debate and Forensics teams to talk their way into first place.

MUSIC TO OUR EARS

"Iwouldn't trade band for the world!" was how Barbara Byer described her dedication to band. Music played a large part in the lives of many students like Byer, especially if the student was involved in Concert Band I, II, or Symphonic Band. "When I became active in band I didn't realize how much work was required, but I enjoy it a lot," explained junior Tom Gordon.

Trips to competitions gave the musicians something to look forward to. Symphonic Band traveled to Quebec during March; Concert Bands I and II went to Gatlinburg, Tennessee. As Diane Harding remarked, "If we kept thinking about Tennessee, it was a bit easier to practice all the time and keep up the hard work."

In January, Jim Keene, the director at the University of Illinois, worked with the students in Symphonic Band. "It was a great opportunity for those of us that want to keep playing in college," explained senior Greg Eklund.

Although everyone agreed that playing an instrument requires a lot of time and dedication, the hard work and commitment paid off. As junior Stacey Moore summarized, "Despite the hard work, some of the best times of my life have been spent in band!"

TAKE NO PRISONERS

What's really cool is when we go to a competition, and every band there has heard about us but never seen us . . . they get nervous when we march on the field!" explained Kevin Barber, referring to the reputation of excellence Lake Braddock's marching band has built for itself over the last few years. Winning numerous awards, they kept the legend alive this year, despite increasing competition from area bands like arch-rival Mount Vernon. Referring to the Bruin victory at the Mt. Vernon band competition, Susan Heuser said, "The victory at Mt. Vernon was long awaited and well deserved." Jeff Huckle added, "We played our best, and let the chips fall where they may."

With a fast-paced routine consisting of more difficult music and drill than the average band, the Lake Braddock band had little trouble winning competitions. At a competition held in Philadelphia they outplayed bands from Pennsylvania, Virginia and Maryland, losing by only tenths of a point to a band from Pennsylvania. According to Mr. Bly, the band's director, the band was really competing with itself, trying to be better every time it performed "We're more interested in improving and growing than we are in where we come out in contests," he said. The members showed their devotion, practicing over ten hours a week, sometimes even on Saturdays, or at night so they could get used to playing in the dark with cold instruments. Constantly trying to make each of their Friday performances better than the last, the marching band was, according to Mr. Bly, "Full of fine musicians working hard for excellence."

"PRESENT ARMS!"

All right, guard! Ten hut! . . . Right shoulder, arms! . . . Order, arms! . . . Forward, march!" Amid a flurry of shouted commands and twirling flags, the Color Guard began the fall season ready to storm the fields and "take no prisoners."

With an extra week of band camp and summer practices, the squad was able to get an early start on their routines. Clinicians Wanda Conway and Teri Walsh helped iron out the edges of their routines. Junior Melissa McNichols commented, "Three weeks of band camp is not my idea of a dream vacation, but it was worth it to get to know each other and get down to work right away."

Once school was under way, weekdays from 3:45 to 6:00 found the squad fine-tuning their performance along with the marching band. Though guard worked closely with band, they also held their own car washes and special practices. "Guard presents a different challenge than band," observed sophomore Karen Edelman. "You can't hide behind anyone. You're out there in the spotlight."

The persistence and dedication of the squad, along with the 10-foot-long flags and the multi-colored "snow" flags, gave an element of pageantry and glamour to help Lake Braddock remain a dominating force in band competition. Added instructor Bob Wall, "The main goal this year was to get better every show. Because the girls were able to achieve this, they were winners not only as competitors but as individuals, too."

provided a chance to play Folk, Classical, and Gass. The main emphasis was on classical pieces by Mozart and Bach. The ensemble played in the recital hall for two holiday performances, and attended a music festival in the spring. Commented Debbie Wise, "I've learned to enjoy classical music through Guitar Ensemble."

The Orchestra classes consisted of students in grades 7-

12. Intermediates participated in the purple and gold orchestras. The Orchestras played holiday, winter, and spring concerts. Some of the brightest orchestra members participated in quartets. One quartet in particular that played at numerous performances consisted of Jenny Sligh, Michelle Pierce, Leanne Kim and Christina Kim. They played for NHS inductions, class projects, and the Senior Awards Ceremony. On Valentine's Day, the quartet played at Parkwood Baptist Church. Replied Michelle Pierce, "It's nice to use our talents to play for people." The quartet helped pay for a 4 day Band and Chorus trip to Quebec. During their visit, they participated in an orchestra festival.

Reflecting a common attitude towards their music, Christina Kim commented, "Not only does playing give us the experience to improve it also gives us a chance to enjoy our work."

"Love, peace, and caring" is what singing means to Concert Choir member Kristina Powell.

Once again, the music department showed off its singing talent through several choral groups. Under the leadership of director Bob Stamback, the high school choral groups included the Swing Singers, Symphonic Chorale, and Concert Choir.

The seventh and eighth graders had an opportunity to be involved in either the Intermediate Chorus or Concert Choir with director Suzy Slosky. Their voices were heard at a competition at Busch Gardens as well as their seasonal shows. Intermediate Chorus member Jackie Tallarido said, "The winter concert was a lot of fun because Ms. Slosky made it really enjoyable. She taught us great choreography".

For the Swing Singers, their hard work, determination, and extra practices paid off in the end. "The Swing Singers are well-known throughout the country and have traveled all around the nation," said director Mr. Stamback. A few of their major performances were in Richmond, Canada, and Guadalajara, Mexico.

Seventh-grader Heidi Herington summed up, "Singing is just a fun way to express your feelings and emotions."

ART EXPRESSIONS

Cartoon club, organized this year, allowed students to be creative without the pressures of an academic environment. Founded by Mr. Evelyn, the group of seventeen students met one day a week after school to share their latest cartoon creation and to get new ideas. "I'm really glad this group was brought together. It's really fun to see everyone's work!" said eighth grader Natalie Cate.

Since the cartoon club was just getting off the ground, they didn't get much artwork published, but the "Bear Facts" featured the work of a few artists. Brad Butkovich explained, "I hope this club gives artists the chance to express themselves in a funny way."

Also offered to artistically inclined students was the Design Company. "Design company is a really nifty thing to do. We're not just a bunch of people who have a club, we do stuff like tie-dying t-shirts, painting murals and making posters for other clubs," Dawn Benedetto expressed enthusiastically.

As part of a daily academic schedule, art and photography classes were offered. Ceramics, chalk-and-pencil drawings, paintings, and basket weavings were among the many projects assigned to students taking art. Three levels are offered according to the number of years the student has participated.

Photography classes provided students with requirements and guidelines, but otherwise left the students to whatever they wished to compose pictures of. The class taught them how to utilize the use of shadows and distance, and encouraged them to work with both live and still subjects.

THEIR FIRST PRIORITY

"The Club is open to everyone, not just new students," commented Cheryl VanNest, president of Newcomers. The club is designed to greet and welcome new students year round by helping them adjust and have fun. Newcomers was just started last year with a group of only five new students and has now grown to twenty members in grades 9-12. The club has written up a handbook of basic information based on questions new students brought up last year.

Lake Braddock has the only Newcomers Club in our area.

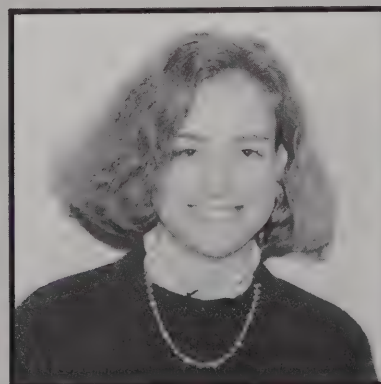

The Host and Hostess Club is made up of about twenty-five members who serve as representatives. The club participated in Back to School Night by helping parents find their way to class. The club became the busiest towards the end of the school year with Graduation — when they helped pass out programs and park cars. Caroling for charity during the Christmas holidays was their main goal in helping the community.

"The Host and Hostess Club has given me a chance to work together with students by helping my community and school," said Aimee Clatterbuck vice president.

"Ready to serve you!" Heather Evans worked at the Bake sale for the Host and Hostess club at the Fall Festival.

go to meets where we represent one or more nations, and to work within the framework of the U.N. to speak for and follow our country's policies. Believe it or not, we have fun."

Representing Barbados, the Model U.N. traveled to New York, Georgetown, and George Mason, where they hoped to capture awards.

Michelle Campiglio, research chairperson said, "We spend a lot of time in the library. The most important thing we use is parliamentary procedure. We have to work within the framework, though it slows the process considerably."

Like Model U.N., It's Academic traveled to Eleanor Roosevelt High School for competition and scrimmages. In February a county-wide meet was held at Lake Braddock. To increase their speed, the club met twice a week to practice answering questions.

"I feel a little bit nervous, but excited when competing," commented Chuck Butler. The It's Academic team looked forward to being renamed the "Lake Braddock College Bowl Club" to expand and be more active in the school.

BUSINESS AS USUAL

"Leadership is being able to lead a group of people, having good ideas to keep people interested, and good speaking skills," said senior Robin Tringale. FBLA (Future Business Leaders of America) and DECA (Distributive Education Clubs of America) helped students build these skills while they learned about entrepreneurship and marketing.

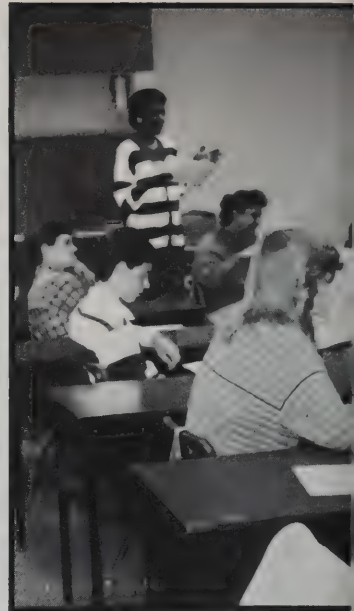

"FBLA is a club formed to acquaint students with the business world," commented Dawn Houts. During in-class meetings, officers discussed fund-raising campaigns and planned for competitions on the local, state, and national level. Many members like vice-president Abdul Omar participated in FBLA because they had an "interest in business" and plans to go ahead in a business career. Fundraising activities included the November canned food drive and the January clothing drive.

The DECA organization taught the process of operating a business-the DECA gift box. Along with business know-how, leadership development, civic consciousness, and social intelligence were incorporated in the program.

Both clubs presented students with the skills to enter the world of business.

THINGS START TO COOK

Home Economics in Related Occupations (H.E.R.O.) and Future Homemakers of America (FHA) were two clubs designed to give students a chance to become friends with many different people, while practicing sewing and cooking skills. "I enjoy cooking, it gives me a chance to make many different dishes such as club sandwiches (the clubs favorite)," commented Derrick Lendberg, member of H.E.R.O.

Both clubs took time and effort to work towards learning more cooking and sewing techniques. These two clubs meet during class periods, if you were enrolled in the class you became an automatic member of the club. "Sometimes it takes a little after school time, depending on the type of meal," said Art Harper, reporter of H.E.R.O.

FHA worked with H.E.R.O. in selling kitchen items such as cookbooks and salt and pepper shakers, which was a big fundraiser for both clubs. "Having the cookbook sales will help us buy new sewing and kitchen equipment for the school," commented Sonia Williams, member of FHA

H.E.R.O. competed in the Culinary Art show by catering special dinners, and in the spring they hoped to travel to Long Island, New York to visit the Culinary Art Institute.

"Even though FHA has just started, I enjoy learning to sew clothes and make different food dishes with H.E.R.O., so I can use these skills when I'm older," added Tyest Duff, president of FHA.

BETTER SAFE THAN SADD

"We just hope all the work we've been doing to promote seatbelt safety will save one life. If it does, then we have accomplished our goal." With these words, president Lara Carpenter described the goal of the Safety Council, or otherwise known as TRAP (Teen Related Accident Prevention). The club is small in size, but that doesn't mean they couldn't handle large responsibilities such as promoting the wearing of seatbelts. In turn, they helped the Northern Virginia Police Department campaign "Buckle Up Virginia"

TRAP is also known for its area in applauding non-smokers. The club attended the National Heart Association's Banquet to receive an award for the most pledges in

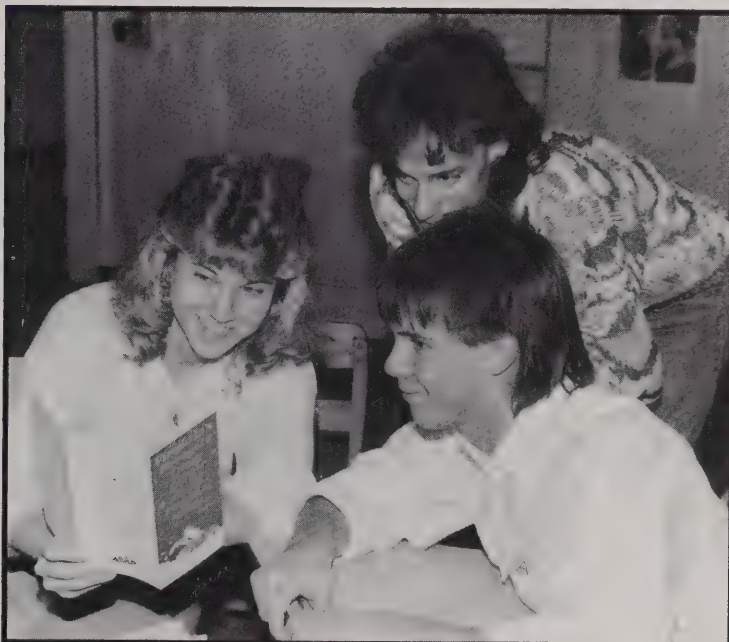

"Save a SweetHeart".

TRAP is also working to abolish drinking and driving. Another club who specializes in that topic is SADD. Students Against Drunk Driving is composed of nearly two-hundred and fifty members. They worked on promoting awareness of the hazards of drinking and driving and sponsored school activities such as the ram jam (a battle of the bands), selling peace bands, and putting up anti-drug posters throughout the school. SADD is famous for their pledge cards and life contracts, in which parents agree to pick up, without questions, students who are in an uncomfortable situation. Robyn Caruthers, SADD treasurer, summed up her feelings, "If we (the SADD members) spoke out against drinking, we'd all be a bunch of hypocrites. But, that's not the message we're trying to give. SADD is trying to convey to students that they shouldn't endanger the lives of innocent people just because they want to have a good time. Most people don't realize the severity of punishments for drinking and driving. In some countries you're killed for it."

Both SADD and TRAP try to make students aware of everyday hazards, and encourage them to have fun, but to have fun safely.

RIGHT FROM LEFT

Cries of "Yay, elections are Tuesday!" rang through the halls in November as Bruins found themselves excited about the impending elections — especially when they meant that school opened late. Few complaints were heard from students enjoying an extra hour's sleep. However, those students got a more serious dose of politics in their history and government classes.

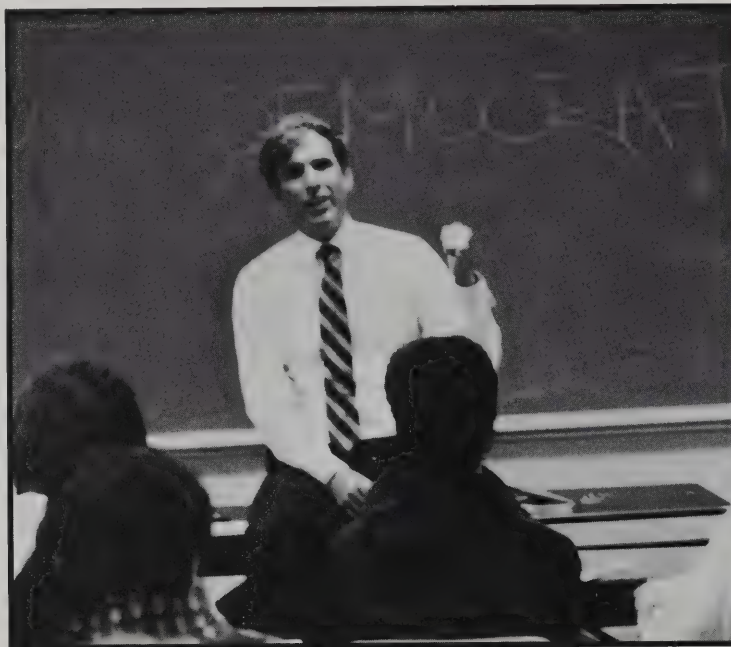

Teachers took advantage of their classes' increasing awareness of government caused by the highly-publicized 200th birthday of the Constitution in '87 and the elections in '88. Junior history classes held mock Constitutional Conventions. Students in all grades heard speeches by candidates for various offices. Young Democrats and Teenage Republicans began planning how to help their parties, and how to aid in the mock conventions the senior class holds every four years.

These two clubs attracted all sorts of students, united by their knowledge of current events, and their belief in their party. "We're not Republicans because our parents are; it's because we want to be," explained T.J. Ferris. Democrats and Republicans alike distributed literature and made phone calls to publicize their favorite candidates. It was not all work, though. Republican president David DeFalaize stated, "We have a lot of fun."

KIDS HELPING KIDS

Two organizations offered students the chance to get help from fellow students. Many found someone their own age easier to identify, work, and talk with than an adult. Consequently, H.E.L.P. (Help Educate Lake Braddock Pupils) and Peer Counseling were busy year round serving the student body.

Originated to offer free tutoring to tenth graders in math and science, H.E.L.P. expanded to include freshmen and sophomores, and tutoring in all subjects. Anyone who felt that they needed help could fill out an application and be matched up with a tutor. Sponsor Will Misner expounded, "The best part is that they don't remain just tutor and tutoree — they become friends."

The Peer Counselors were also helping students in a one-on-one manner, though in a different area than academics. Yellow-walled rooms furnished with comfortable chairs created a relaxed atmosphere for Peer Relationships and Peer Counseling students to learn about trust, values, and themselves. In addition, they practiced expressing themselves and listening. "Everyone's very honest and open with each other," said Becky Pritchard. Sixty peer counselors chosen for their control over their lives and themselves, and for their willingness to make life better for others, were given the opportunity to apply their lessons to real life. When ready, they were matched to clients, either by similar experience or compatible personalities. The group supported each other, as well as their clients. Explained Kelcie Guieberson, "It's close — We're a lot like a family."

INTER-ACT-TION

The Interact club. Somehow, through word of mouth, we've heard so much about it. "We have a really big membership. That's probably because of the positive outlook students have on about improving our school's environment," said senior Olary Yim.

Perhaps a reason for their success was that the club divided into five sections, called task forces, each led by its own sponsor.

"Interact tries to address problems within the school, ranging from curriculum questions to improving teacher/student relations," stated junior Jenny Parker.

At Christmas time, Interact helped with the toy breakfast and with Salvation Army bell ringing. Senior D'Arcy Writsel, the Interact Inter-Club council representative said, "We're an important task force in the school. We try to improve conditions between adults and students as well as between students. It's a good feeling to help make the place we spend most of our time in more pleasant to come to."

A new club which has gained immediate response was the Inter Club. It's an organization where a representative from every club comes and meets together to share ideas and information. "It's a club we should've had all along. It really helps the clubs communicate together as a whole," said SADD Inter Club representative, Robyn Caruthers.

A BETTER COMMUNITY

Have you ever wondered what happens to the mass of trash and debris left over from the football games? Tri-Hi-Y cleans it up. Sponsored by the Young Women's Club of America, the club also works with the elderly in the area and makes visits to Children's Hospital. If Tri-Hi-Y members become exhausted from improving their community, they can rejuvenate their spirits with trips to Busch Gardens and ski resorts.

Meanwhile, the Octagon Club was providing help at the Virginia Correctional Center, serving soup to the homeless in D.C., and running a bake sale at the Fall Festival. "The Octagon Club gives us an opportunity to work with the homeless and to do what we can to improve our community," commented senior and club president Maja Anzulovic.

In November, nine members and officers worked at the Alternative House, a women's shelter in D.C., rearranging bags and boxes, organizing clothing that was donated to the shelter, and hooking up a stereo system to provide music for the women there.

Being an Octagon Club member isn't all work. There are good times and great fun involved with being a member. Said Anzulovic, "The members went out to eat in Alexandria and got in a big snowball fight. It was great!"

IT'S ALL MAKE-BELIEVE

It's opening night. Fifteen hundred eyes are focused on the opening curtains. A standing-room-only crowd waits in anticipation to be brought into the world of "Grease", or "Death Prayer", or "The Doomsday Inscription", or "Blithe Spirit". This was the scenario which faced the members of high school and intermediate drama classes each time they prepared one of their productions; before them stood an awesome task, that of creating a scene the audience could and would believe. "The best part of acting is relating to an audience," said Mike Shapiro, "If you come off the stage after playing the evil villain in a children's show, and the kids start beating you up, you know you've done a good job."

"People don't realize how much work goes into each show," commented Bonnie Strong, explaining that actors were on call until 6 p.m. every night, and production crews might be required to stay all night to make sets. "Sometimes the shows all run together and you risk getting burned out," Strong continued, "but nobody gave up."

Intermediate drama students got a taste of this life as well, putting on a talent show, major productions like "The Mouse That Roared", and writing and performing their own skits. Why did so many students put in so many hours, so much work, for a few minutes on the stage? Said Keith Livingston, "I like talking in front of an audience and being the center of attention!"

After brainstorming ideas at the Seven Springs Seminar, staff members began writing copy, shooting photos, and quoting students. With an extra emphasis on design, the staff spent many hours working on the new format for '88. The new computer system helped to enhance the Lair's new look. "Yearbook involves a lot of hard work and extra hours," commented sports editor Olary Yim. "Sometimes I think it'd probably be easier to play the sport than cover it."

Besides just taking pictures, photographers have to put up with a lot of other stuff," said sophomore Pete Becraft. "You have to make sure you take good pictures and get them developed on time."

Despite all the pressure of deadlines, staffers found time to kick back and relax. Editor Gretchen Grozier added, "Even when it's 8 o'clock at night and we can't find our layouts through all the empty pizza boxes and Coke cans, we still manage not to take things too seriously."

Aching bodies, the smell of sweat, the sound of pain . . . No, this isn't a sadistic sweat shop, it's what the den of the Bruins' home territory sounds like on a normal afterschool day in the Sports Department. From the agonizing sound of a wrestler near death trying to lift twice his weight to the high-pitched wails of a Varsity Drill Teamer attempting to do the splits but in the process ripping all of her groin muscles, there was evidence everywhere of not only the fun involved in sports, but also the twinging, twitching, throbbing, aching, burning, gnawing and excruciating pain that came along with it. As Varsity Bruin swimmer Martin

Schaller said, "It's great fun but sometimes you wonder why you even do it. It's like putting yourself through torture — but voluntarily."

Yet, despite the depth of misery involved in sports, students evidently found the discomfort to be something of a challenge as over 1,600 Bruins were active participants. As Varsity Cross Country runner Vince Kraus said, "Practice is hell. You feel like you're going to die. Your lungs get tight, your heart beats faster and your muscles get tense. but yeah, it's a heck of a lot of fun."

Due largely to the student body's avid enthusiasm and dedication, Braddock's teams succeeded in achieving the best overall school record since the gymnasium doors first opened in 1973. From the 11-3 record set by the Varsity Football team to the State Titles captured by both the Boys' and Girls' Cross Country Team, Bruin pride shown even through all the sweat and pain. As Varsity wrestler Mark Mathia said triumphantly, "Definitely, the suffering is worth it!"

Cutting through the water with skilled hands and great ease, Mike Maychrowski takes a welcome breath of air while still in the beginning stages of his butterfly stroke. While the practices were all but easy, all the sprints and 200 I.M.'s helped to boost the team's record as well as spirits.

With fierce determination and a smooth stride, senior Berret Crane jumps a hurdle as he sets his pace and works on his form. Doing so helped to put the boys' outdoor track team at the top of its league.

Sound familiar? That's because this and other chants can always be heard from the fans at LBSS games. Being a fan meant more than showing spirit and support for the team — it meant bringing pom-poms, waving banners, and throwing confetti. Also, purple and gold balloons were tied to the poles with a large number of fans also donning an array of clothing the same colors: hats, t-shirts, and letter jackets. Some even went as far as to paint their faces or messages across their bodies. One of the most enthusiastic groups were fans in uniform. The band added to the noise by playing pep fillers and the fight songs while the bear mascots entertained the crowd by riding skateboards and throwing candy into the stands.

Why do people go to games? Perhaps to socialize with friends and support classmates that played. Said Ann Guiberson "I go to the games to find plans for the weekend. Plus, it's an inexpensive way to see my friends!" As the intensity built with closer scores and better plays, loud cheers rang from the stands, followed by cheers of encouragement. As junior Georgia Hall observed, "During the games, you can watch the people's faces and know how the game is going without looking at the scoreboard." Win or lose, as a crowd dispersed, they still discussed the events of the game.

Thanks to the support of their fans, the Bruin football team was able to show that they were #1, as seniors Cam Strickland and friend demonstrate.

Bruins bang heads

"Last year's team was made up largely of individuals; this year they're more team men," was how head coach Joe Clark felt about the varsity football team and their 7-3 season, the best in Lake Braddock's 15-year history.

One of the season's highlights was beating Woodson in the Homecoming game. "The excitement of finally winning Homecoming was unreal," said senior Joe Pulone. "The team worked very hard and deserved that win."

Much of the team's success could be attributed to the coaches. "I can't express the appreciation I have for the coaches, and any athlete who played the game feels pretty much the same way, whether they liked them or not," said quarterback Todd Burnett. Defensive guard Rob Couture shared Burnett's feelings, saying, "The coaches have helped us a lot this year. They've kept us out of trouble and gave us confidence in ourselves." Along with the coaches, there were always plenty of fans to cheer the team on. "The crowd is the driving force behind any sport, said Burnett. "Knowing the fans back you, with your friends and family in the crowd, all contribute to the success by which we are sometimes measured."

Efforts pay off

Football requires skill, dedication, and determination, which was exactly what Lake Braddock's junior varsity and freshman football teams had. J.V. head coach Kevin Kidd affirmed, "This year's team didn't have as much talent as last year's, but they did have more enthusiasm." Regardless of their records, the teams were always in good spirits, and the coaches were a large part of that. Expressing his appreciation, freshman David Spurgeon said, "They tried to make us play to our full potential, and they pushed us when they felt we were not." Ray Geoffroy felt, "The coaches helped me greatly. They showed me that we could play against anyone in our league. I have respect for all the coaches at Lake Braddock." Freshman Sam Ro added, "The coaches kept encouraging us to try harder. They never gave up on us."

The coaches recognized the players' efforts as well. J.V. coach Kidd commented that the team "always did what I asked, always sucked it up. They realized it would pay off on Thursdays." Mark Spencer summed up the teams' feelings in saying that, "The coaches are very influential. I think that they deserve all the credit for our record."

The J.V. team played especially well this year beating teams such as Robinson and West Springfield. The legacy that lives . . .

Swinging toward success

Setting three new outstanding records this season, the golf team established the best team record in Lake Braddock history with an over all 5-3 record, including the 151 points over West Springfield, their highest team score ever. Co-captain Steve Gordon set the highest individual score with 74 points, placing third behind Robinson and Oakton in Districts.

Said golf player Sean Lynch, "Even though we didn't meet the goals we had originally set for ourselves, we still proved our talent and ability because we went far enough and made it to districts. Next year's team should really be tough to beat in districts and state, assuming we make it."

Although the season had started with a great many wins, the high point of the season, according to Andy Viglucci, was "beating West Springfield, something that has never before been accomplished in Lake Braddock history." Said teammate Geoff Guy, "The team play improved this year because everyone returned for the same reason, that is, to work toward our own individual as well as group goals."

Looking back, the milestones the golf veterans overcame helped to establish the winning camaraderie the team possessed. From the time Viglucci hit every tree on the right side on the 11th hole at Twin Lakes, to when Lynch put the West Potomac players "in their place" after they were caught cheating; when Jamieson impressively hit back-to-back holes-in-one, and Lynch accidentally hit Corey Randall in the jaw with his one-iron, who could ever forget the enduring practices that tested the players' wills, stamina and patience? Said Jeff Schiro, "This year's team was definitely not one to forget. All the fun and all the pain really made it memorable."

With the golf team leaving such an impressive and endearing mark in Lake Braddock golf history, the five junior players were left to carry on a winning tradition that was indeed a difficult level of excellence to uphold. However, with a little encouragement, hopes for continuing a rewarding and successful season were brightened. For as Chris Gomez said to his teammates after placing at Districts, "Luck with the legacy — it's been real."

In a match which the team later won against arch rival West Springfield, Geoff Guy shows intense concentration as he shoots the ball in the 16th hole.

In a state of pride, Steve Gordon congratulates himself on a superb birdie shot. With such self confidence, he was able to go on and achieve the highest individual score.

It was November 7; the morning was cool and hazy. The station wagons were really quiet as we made our way to Piedmont Community College. We were the Varsity Cross Country team, on our way to the Virginia state championship meet. On arrival we girls began jogging and stretching. The boys, on the other hand, relaxed since their race was later. As the 11:45 race start approached, our stretching intensified, with the boys going off on a group jog. Tara Bowman kept up a constant chatter as Kev Ryan reminded us that "She always babbles when she's nervous."

Everyone had hit the peak of anxiety as they stripped down to their uniforms. As alternate, I wouldn't run, so I could watch the race. I was aware what my teammates were going through. Cindy

Paseur was so nervous she started to cry. We all knew that both the guys and girls had a shot at the title; if only we could overcome our arch rival, Woodbridge.

The girl's start was slow, but by the first mile mark it was obvious that the Bruins were in the lead. The girls improved their positions, running tough and hard on "Cardiac" and "Suicide", the course's killer hills. Ending with a 40-71 victory over Woodbridge, Cindy said, "I was elated. You just you can't describe wining — it's just the neatest feeling, like you've really accomplished something."

At the line, our team had four girls in the top ten: Kim Desmond finished second, Kev sixth, Tara eighth, and Brooke Pietrzak in the tenth position. Assistance was also given by Cindy, Carol DeAngelis, and Terri Wise in stomping our competition.

However, the day wasn't over just yet; it was time for the boys' race. Said Sean Bernabe, "Coach Windsor told us to take it out fast and we did. That's why we dominated the lead pack in the first mile." By that time, it was obvious that they would win.

The finish, however, was the most exciting part of the race to watch. Vince Hancock, who had led throughout the race, was passed in the final stretch by Brad Baker, who took the state champion title. Vince got third and James Volpe was fifteenth. The rest of our guys took out each opposing member of the Woodbridge team, with Sean, Jason Lanman, and Jeff Bernabe all really pulling through for us. Dave Smith got really sick after finishing, but got to feeling better soon later.

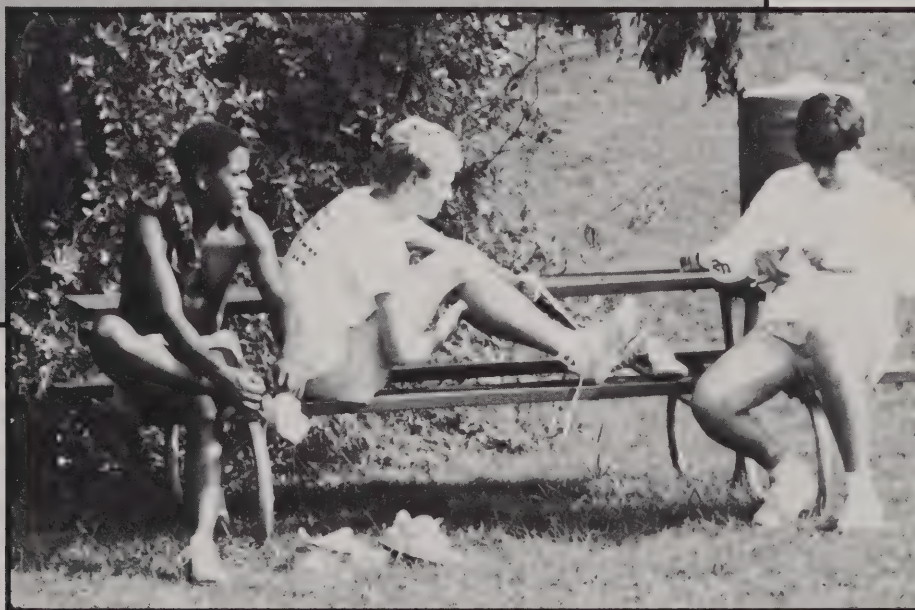

It was unbelievable — double state champs!!!! Lake Braddock was #1!! It didn't really sink in until we stopped for dinner on the way home. "Who won?" a girl asked me. "We did," I told her. "Well, who won the boys?" "We did." "Wow! That's incredible!" she replied. It really was.

The race of a lifetime

How would you feel if you showed up for the first day of cross country practice and learned that you would run anywhere from 550 to 600 miles in one season? That would be like running from our nation's capital to Atlanta or maybe running up and down the Washington Monument over 2800 times, or even running around the school track over 2400 times. Evidently the boys' and girls' cross country teams wanted to run all these miles as they began training on August 10th in quest of the state title.

Under the guidance of coaches Marshall Windsor and Andy Tisinger, practices began with pep talks, warmups, and grass drills. Then, several miles of running around the Burke area took place, only to finish with several yards of fast running known as sprints, a new technique added this year to increase the runners' speed. As Windsor said, "We encourage our runners to set goals for themselves and always be positive." Added Tisinger, "The teams this year have had to work hard together to create a strong team without a star runner, but they've done extremely well."

The varsity cross country teams were so strong that they used j.v. runners to compete in district meets, beating their competition by impressive amounts. The varsity runners competed in invitational, district, regional, and state meets, again winning by large margins. "It's nice to have everyone really respect you," said varsity runner Gretchen Grozier. "People are very impressed if you say you run for Lake Braddock."

Beating the odds

Ending a successful season with a 10-2 record, the Girl's Varsity Field Hockey team suprised their district opponents, finishing with the best record in the Northern District. They later advanced to the Northern Region tournament semi-finals but unfortunately lost a hard fought game to South Lakes, 2-1.

Leading the team was sweeper Michelle Malebranche, whose strong drives and hard strokes made her All District and All Regional Player. Commented Malebranche, "The best aspect of being part of this team was the unity and success."

With a typical hockey game consisting of overtime and strokes, even more hard work was needed to make the players successful and skilled. So, practices were held everyday after school — including two hours of running, drills, and pick-up games. Groaned Heather Johnson, "Practices are really rough! After each one, you feel like your body is ready to give up. Any possible energy that is left is gone — completely gone."

One of the team's toughest rivals was Woodson; and although the games versus the Cavaliers were intense-the Bruins managed to defeat them everytime. Commented team captain, Robyn Gurinsky, "I felt a lot of pressure. But that only made the win so much sweeter!" At the end of the season, Senior Kris Riley commented on the girls' attitudes, "The team really showed spirit and togetherness considering that most of us had never played as a team before." Added coach Diane "O" Miller on a more upbeat note, "I was very proud of our team's achievmment this season. It suprised me how well we did — despite the inexperience of the team."

The Junior Varsity Field Hockey team ended the season capturing the district championship. Beating the odds, and beating their toughest competitor, Woodson; the team achieved eight wins, one loss, and three ties.

Leading the team was offensive player of the year Wendy LuBell, and defensive players of the year, captains Chris Gleisner and Chris McIntyre. Said Leah Macaluso, "Field Hockey was the most fun and challenging sport I've ever played. It was a mental as well as physical challenge."

Improving skills and eager attitudes Tennis takes it all

As the season came to an end, the Girls Varsity Tennis team found themselves, once again, with an overall season record of seven wins and three losses. While this took them all the way to Districts, it was not enough to make them win for, even after a hard fought game against arch rival, Woodson, they still fell second place to their adversary.

However, with such a strong team, three of the top players were still able to advance to Districts: Captains Melanie Ford, Jenny Worden, and #3 singles player, Pam Kulbacki. Commented Worden, "It was a great opportunity to have been able to participate in the Districts tournament. Not only did it give us a chance to show our individual talent but it also gave us more of an incentive to win because the players we were up against were so good, that the only thing we could do was play even better."

While the singles players were busy advancing to Districts and Regionals the doubles teams were doing just the same. #1 seated Ford led the number one ranked doubles team with Anne Hyatt, who was ranked as #10 of the twelve players. Other doubles partners included the #2 team of Worden and Kulbacki as well as the #3 team of Stephanie Albrecht and Kimber Bear. Commented Albrecht, "Playing doubles is not just you against the other guy. It's the both of you working together as a team, depending on each other for help, and coming to the rescue when the other is in need." Added Bear, "It's true. You really learn to appreciate your "other half"!"

Lorraine Smith, in her second year of coaching the team, awarded the team with several awards, including Ford as the Most Valuable Player, Heidi Packard as the Most Improved Player and lastly, Albrecht as the Most Sportsman-like. Exclaimed Packard, "Getting recognition for all the hard work was really nice. It reinforced my belief that if you work hard enough, you will somehow be rewarded."

Looking back, it seemed that even with the great accomplishments that were achieved, the team learned more than just tennis. As Worden reflected, "Being a part of this unit really did more than improve my game. It taught me how to deal with people, work with them, and most of all, learn to live with them!"

Together as a team!

By decorating the halls and player's lockers, getting the team psyched before games and cheering along with the fans, the Varsity cheerleaders succeeded in promoting school spirit throughout the year. Supporting both the football and basketball teams you could see these girls not only at the games but also performing at Pep rallies, the Bonfire and practicing in the wrestling room for their many competitions. Under the leadership of their new coach Tammy Mooney, many changes were made including new uniforms and longer practices. However, the season, as captain Maggie Koch said, "Has been wonderful!"

Together as a squad, these athletic girls excelled in all their competitions. In December they travelled to Dallas, Texas for Nationals, where they competed against over one hundred other squads from different states. But with their unique talent and unhampered ambition, the team proceeded to do exceptionally well. As Thoureen said, "All the hard work has made this year different from any other. Definitely, it has all been worthwhile." Added teammate Angela Bradbury, "At the end of the season I got more from cheerleading than just my Varsity letter — I also learned about unity and working together for a common goal."

The backbone of . . . Bruin Pride

they kept on trying.

Their efforts have made these two squads award winning. The freshman squad recieved Best Freshman Squad and first place at Regionals. Commented Angela Funes, "I'm glad we won but it wasn't as important as the friendships I've made from cheerleading!"

While the freshman were going to competitions, J.V. did activities affiliated with the social scene of the school. They performed in Fall Follies and supported the J.V. football and basketball teams by decorating their lockers with signs and candy and cheering them to victory.

After the games it wasn't unusual to see some of the cheerleaders go out together. Said Kathryn Kelly, "We do so much together — the cheerleaders are my closest friends!"

Score — board!

With the entire starting line up being returning seniors, the 87-88 Varsity basketball team got off to a promising start. Led offensively by Hubert Davis and Jason Coleman, the team had a winning record of 20 wins and 2 losses. Marcus Crockett helped keep the opponents' scores low by leading the Bruin's in their defensive game.

"This year we're dunking a lot more than we have in the past," commented Mike Rutherford. Coach Wells contributed this to the team's maturity. "The guys are much more mature this year, physically and mentally. They're confident and therefore when they get a breakaway they go for the dunk."

Over winter vacation the team traveled to South Carolina where they had two wins and the only loss of the regular season. There, Davis was voted MVP for the tournament. Wells stated about the tournament, "It put the season in perspective, and helped us not to get cocky."

The competition of top schools such as Robinson and West Springfield didn't stop the games from being high scoring matches. However, no one took the opposing teams for granted. As Jay Bunnell said, "District always plays tough because of the school rivalry."

As the season came to an end, four year basketball player Charlie Shelley came to realize the importance of it all. As he said with a smile, "We've all come into learning our roles this season which makes us a more successful team. We're really close-knit — our maturity has brought us closer together."

Girls on the rebound

Many members of the girls' varsity basketball team could be seen on the courts long before the official season even started, preparing themselves for the challenge that the upcoming season held for them. Once the 14 members were selected, they worked after school every day on fundamentals such as free throws, rebounds, dribbling, and running.

The team hoped to add the first girls' basketball banner in school history to the gymnasium wall. Senior Michelle Wyrick commented early in the season, "I feel that we have the ability to pull out on top and win the banner that we have worked so hard to get."

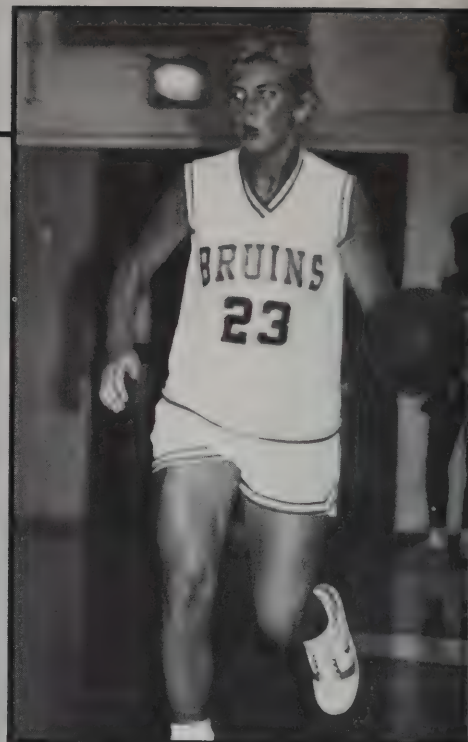

The team competed in the Warhawk Holiday Classic Tournament that was held at James Madison High School during winter vacation. The Bruins came out victorious and also had three of their players chosen to be on the All-Tournament team. # They've got the hook

When asked about the goal of this year's JV Boys Basketball team, Brian McNeill immediately said, "To win. We have a lot to learn. In order to win, we have to become better as a team. Since our team has great depth, it shouldn't be hard."

This year's JV team, with eight returning players, learned to be willing to change for the benefit of the team. They had a well balanced team with "the big men to score inside, rebound, and block shots, and the guards to hit the outside jumpers and run a fast break," as captain Kyle Truesdell explained. With Scott Blanchette at 6'6", the JV team always found a way to make the game exciting.

Practices for both the JV and freshman basketball teams were days on which there were not games, for as long as 2½ hours. The teams worked on shots, passing, and specific plays, while working on an offense and defense geared towards the characteristics of their next opponent.

With a lot of freshman talent, this year's team worked with great potential. "Although we lost some tough games we should have won, we worked hard throughout the whole season," said David Nordwall. With Captain Steve Antoine, and the dedication of the entire team, the freshmen worked towards a successful and rewarding season. The goal of the team, said Andrew Ecker was "to perform well in the District Tournament."

Captains Elizabeth Kamps, Kerri Lewis, and Kristie Schorer gave leadership to team members in times of low and high morale. team focused on laying out ground work and fundamentals to build good basic basketball skills.

The Woodson game, in particular, was a challenge and a chance for the girls to demonstrate their stamina and talent brought on by rival competition. Although the team was down in the first half, with the second half came substantial improvement. Scoring was held at 16-13.

Summing up her team, and the season as a whole, Coach Annette Wiseman commented, "They are a spirited group who have a lot of faith and desire to be good. When things don't bounce their way, they still learn from their mistakes, pick up and go on."

Seventh period sports

Whether it was basketball, wrestling, gymnastics, or volleyball that was the main interest, Lake Braddock's intramurals had the needed equipment, coaches, people, and fun. Intramurals provided an opportunity for students to exercise and socialize with friends after school. Not only that, but it also gave students a chance to involve themselves in a sport without commitment to a team.

In December, there was an intermediate basketball tournament sponsored by Physical Education teachers Brian Sonnek and Jean Worthington.

"My team won," said seventh grader Ryan Carney, and it really prepared us for playing high school sports."

With a final score of 46 to 23 the winning team told of their technique, "We've all been friends for a long time and have played basketball together. We just passed the ball to each other and kept scoring", commentd Derick Intravia, Jer Thompson, and Danny Brown.

"If enough people come to us with an intramurals idea, we're more than happy to help get things moving on it," said Mr. Sonnek.

"To play after school gives us extra practice and I have a lot of fun with my friends," said David Kelso.

The newly established girls' Volleyball club was sposed by Annette Wiseman. "We had a pro Women's volleyball player come in and give us needed tips on our game," said senior Olary Yim. This latest intermural sport was favorably received and generally showed a large turn-out.

Lake Braddock intermurals were open to students who had free-time after school and wanted to improve their game — whatever it was.

The Bruin dancers won numerous awards, including a perfect score for their home routine. Denise Gatewood commented, "Drill Team camp proved to be a terrific experience. It took a lot of hard work and energy, but in the end, it all paid off." In addition, eight of the members received pink ribbons, naming them Superstar nominees. Of these eight, Pauline Arillaga, Tamara Golden, Kelcie Guiberson, and Heather Tate travelled to Hawaii to perform in the Aloha Bowl on December 25. "It was awful missing Christmas with our families," exclaimed Golden "but the sun and the beach helped cheer us up!"

The Drill Team, under the leadership of Captains, Arillaga and Guiberson, and Co-Captain Simone Neibling, continued to entertain the home crowd through football games, basketball games, pep rallies, and parades. The Bruins chose to add more dance moves to their routines this year, keeping the ever familiar high kicks and ripples as well.

As senior member Christine Foley commented, "Using new and challenging choreography this year has given the team the recognition it deserves. Because of this, everyone's enthusiasm has been boosted!"

The Varsity Drill Team ended their season at the Miss Capital City contest at the University of Maryland at Baltimore, where they continued their dominance over area Drill Teams, by capturing numerous first place awards. "Our captains have been great leaders," commented Tate. "They have molded us into a superb Drill Team."

A jump start for the future

"That's right! I'm gonna be the best gymnast in the world!" exclaimed Dawn Carter with a broad smile. "And no one's gonna stop me either!" With this kind of attitude—who would try?

The seventh and eighth grade Intermediate Gymnastics Team performed successfully at various school events with this kind of positive attitude. "The team was a good, strong group with a lot of talent," stated sponsor Mary Ellen Walters. "They were great as individuals, but also knew how to work as a team."

The Intermediate Gymnastics Team had some help from the people that "could always do it right," as Kari Bills put it. In other words—the coaching staff: Julie Minton, Kathryn Noll, Kate Coughlin, and Franci Niles. Said Julie Minton, "Since I love gymnastics anyway, I enjoy teaching them and helping them improve their dance and gymnastics. When I get older I'd like to be a teacher, so that makes me like it even more."

The Intermediate Gymnastics Team aren't the only ones with a little help from their friends. The Junior Varsity Drill Team was also given assistance by some Varsity Drill Team members. "They're the best!" proclaimed J.V. sponsor Sue Bradshaw. "If it weren't for them, I don't know what we'd do!"

The Drill Team performed at freshman home basketball games and some J.V. "I guess the best part about it," explained Jenny Allamon, "were the friends you made. Performing wasn't so bad either."

The thirty-nine member dancing squad assembled during November, consisted of eighth and ninth graders. They practiced at least two to three days a week in order to achieve perfection. "It took a while to get started, but once it did," exclaimed J.V. Drill Team member Karen Jones, "I was ready for it!"

The Intermediate Gymnastics Team and Junior Varsity Drill Team strived to uphold the same excellent reputation that the Varsity Teams have had. Stated Intermediate Drill Team member Susan Turner, "I admire the hard work that the Varsity Drill Team and Gymnastics Team put into being the best, hopefully," she continued, "I can do the same when I try out!"

Head over heels!

A lot of hard work makes a good team, and the Girls' Varsity Gymnastics Team put in all of their efforts to make it one of the best. They were the Defending State Champions and also the first AAA team to win State titles in back to back years. "I admire everyone's dedication to the team," shared captain Julie Minton, "Although we worked hard, a lot of friendships were made from working together."

With such high expectations, one would think it would be difficult to live up to them. However, all the girls did just that, with a few who even stood out. Seniors Misty Minger and Shannon

Propps, both State winners, and freshman Marchelle Yoch were outstanding all-arounds. Also giving prominent performances on the beam and vault was senior Nancy McElvain. As Coach Ann Ripley said, in the winning tradition of one of the top teams in the state, "I felt very confident about this year's group of girls!"

"Practice makes perfect", and staying after school every day from 3:30 to 5:30 had gymnasts perfecting routines on the floor, the beams, and the bars. Starting with a flying leap to the top, all the long hours of practice paid off as they performed from meet to meet. As Dede Davis exclaimed in summing up the season, "The group has really pulled together this year! We don't win as individuals, we win as a team. It's almost like a family!"

Dangerous when wet!

And then there was a wave — a wave of LB Varsity swimmers. The Varsity swimmers worked hard this year to achieve their high rank in the district. Receiving 3rd place for the girls team and 2nd place for the boys team in the annual Relay Carnival, the team started the season with a big splash. Tough sets, fast intervals, and strenuous out-of-the-water exercises put the swimmers in tip top shape. "I swim for the exercise," commented Lisa Farrow, "But I also do it because I like being part of a team!"

Added manager Erin Arnest, "The competitive nature of the sport encourages you to give it your all. Plus, it's fun getting to meet the people!"

Getting to know the swimmers was the job of team captains Blake Reiser, Casey Jones, Lisa Farrow and Dana Jones. Leading the team in cheers before every meet, these strong team leaders represented what every dedicated swimmer should be. Commented Reiser, "Being one of the captains has really made me more mature because there is so much responsibility that's given. The position has not only made me a better swimmer but it has helped the team improve this year as well." Pizza parties, the Swim-a-thon, and the Old Dominion University meet were some of the activities that the swimmers participated in year. However, that time was more than just fun and games. It was a time which allowed for these Varsity athletes to form a close bond and friendship that would last for seasons to come. As said Bill Cocolis, "I like High School swimming because it's so close — even though it lasts only for a short season, you get to know the people well."

Whether a private swimmer or just a high school one, these team members united together in the meets to produce a strongly feared LB swim team. As Esbelle Sepulveda exclaimed, "Our team was so strong that as soon as we hit the water, our opponents would pathetically tread away!"

Glancing down at the clear, undisturbed water, millions of thoughts run through my head as I desperately struggle to block out the constant commotion around me. All my concentration is channeled within as I balance at the end of the diving board, letting only my toes keep myself steady. The pressure is centered upon me . . .

Imagine the stress of having to go through such moments like this. That is what every dive team member experienced each time they stepped up to that diving board.

"Thoughts of uncertainty and fear run through my mind," explained Nikki Marshall, high scoring diver. "I always wonder if I will blow this dive or perfect it."

The Varsity Dive Team finished the season with an impressive overall record. The experience of the many veteran divers, such as senior captains David Guyer and Jessie Pustis, along with the additions of talented new divers helped to unite the team as they supported each other. Coach Robert Carvajal always commented with respected advice that established a trust in learning and practicing dives.

The dive team practiced each day for one rigorous hour at Wakefield Pool, where they drilled each dive to perfection.

The divers pulled together each individual performance with the strength and support of a successful, united team achieving their goals. As sophomore Todd Bludworth commented, "I hate the long lines for the boards, but the team support and advice makes everything worth it."

"Back to the Basics"

"Six minutes of complete grace, strength, and skill." That's how senior Brent Gehring defined a typical match for a varsity wrestler. The team had plenty of opportunities to show off their grace, strength, and skill as they finished the season with a (9-6) record.

Their success this year was largely due to years of experience on the part of each individual wrestler. Senior Matt Ackley has been wrestling since he was seven, and co-captain Ricardo "Otis" Loza has been wrestling, "about as long as my pet dinosaur." Each member of the varsity team has been involved in the sport at least since his freshman year.

Another of the team's secrets was how hard they worked, both in and out of practice. For two hours each day, the team worked to improve their skills and their speed. "We have warm-ups, which consist of running, stretching, and gymnastics. Then we practice our moves for an hour, and after that we wrestle "live" and do conditioning," said co-captain Gehring. In addition to the daily practices, many of the team members took Advanced Physical Training or ran every day to keep in shape and to increase endurance.

"Winning a match is the best feeling. You're so full of energy you could wrestle the match again."

· Rob Couture, senior

Head coach Alan Thompson was very pleased, saying, "This year's team had more character than any other team I've worked with." "When I started wrestling under Thompson I knew nothing, and today I felt that I have a good grasp of the sport because of his coaching," said 126-pounder Dan Park.

Coach Thompson was a strong influence on many of the wrestlers personally as well. Heavyweight Mark Mathia said, "I owe coach Thompson a lot. He's shown me the importance of being yourself, and he taught me that only I am to blame for my mistakes."

All tied up!

"Wrestling is an individual sport, without anyone to blame but yourself when you lose. Likewise, no one can take credit for your work when you win." This was Mike Parson's reason for becoming a wrestler for LB. The other members of the Freshmen and J.V. Wrestling teams had their individual reasons as well, but all shared the common goal of being the best that they could be.

An important factor in insuring top performance was giving it their all during practice. A typical practice started with a warm-up period followed by gymnastics. After that, drilling for an hour and then wrestling "live", which Nathan Tennant decided, "was the hardest part of practice."

A lot of thoughts went through each wrestlers' mind when it was his turn on the mat during a meet. Split second decisions were often required. Each move had to be decided as well as setting it up. "While I was wrestling," said Jon Houttekier, "I thought about what the other guy was going to do and how I could beat him."

What about a crowd? Did spectators add to an individual's performance? Kelly Hagenbeck commented, "I think that the crowd helped give the wrestlers an advantage and helped to motivate them."

Almost unanimously, the members of the Freshmen and J.V. Wrestling teams agreed that they were most challenged by Woodson and Robinson. But, under the guidance of coaches Alan Thompson and Pat Smith they were able to give all their opponents a run for their money. Matt Warner expressed his feelings towards the coaches by saying, "I think they did an excellent job. They provided the needed encouragement and tactical counseling." The coaches' attitudes toward the wrestlers were mutual. Coach Pat Smith said, "They really tried hard. Whenever a Varsity player was out, we'd move a J.V. wrestler up. They did well for a young team."

Sprinting past the rest

Who will you find practicing at six a.m. or running in zero degree weather? Lake Braddock's boys and girls track team, that's who. These diligent runners, pole vaulters, shot putters, and jumpers practiced every day after school, as well as twice a week before school even started. "When I have to come to practice in the morning, I seriously wonder why I run track, but after a few cups of Maxwell House . . . I know why!" said Angela Griffith, with a grin.

These athletes were provided with a variety of workouts during practices — whether it was running in the school, around the school, lifting in the weight room, running through the communities, or up on the track, they were put through it all! In addition to these rough weekday practices, the track team also dedicated part of their weekends to compete with other schools in meets and invitationals. But as Terri Wise said, "Being on the Lake Braddock track team is an honor — there aren't many other teams out there that can say they've been the members of the State Champion team for three years in a row."

"Track has two outstanding qualities. They are the relationships you establish with your coaches and the ones you build with your teammates." That's how Danny Guynes described the sport of track. Another member also felt that the coaches had a big impact on the team. "The thing that made this year so successful was the coaches; although they worked us hard, they made it all a lot of fun," said Matt Gibson.

The dedicated coaches being referred to are Andy Tisinger, Marshall Windsor, Angela Hensley, Pete Bendorf, and

Robert Digby. Together they have taught these talented athletes everything from running techniques to having a positive attitude. Matt Gibson also remarked, "I have never heard a negative comment from any of our coaches' mouths; they are always right behind us providing encouragement and support."

Said Coach Windsor in reference to the state meet at George Mason University, "This year's state championship was a classic! There were two teams head to head throughout the day and the results boiled down to the last event. The Bruin boys held the title of the state champions and the girls, who have had the title for the past three years, just missed it."

If you've ever found yourself on a rainy afternoon, sitting by the window watching raindrops pitterpat on the pane while simultaneously pondering, "What the heck goes on behind the scenes in sports?" then you're in for a big treat. On the next six pages, you will be enlightened as to the rare intensity with which trainers studied; the planning the athletic staff put into each game, meet and tournament; and the managers who brought the teams together with their support. Not only that, you will go back to the sports banquets to share in the athletes' joys; you will learn of the dreams that players held sacred. You will meet the athletes that made the outstanding sports seasons what they were. You will be given trivia that will knock your bleached-white little bobby socks off and keep you coming back for more. So just relax, put in Metallica or Madonna, watch the rain, and turn the page . . .

EXTRA POINTS

Coach Underwood awarded the swimmer with the most improvement and spirit the "Swimmer of the Week" t-shirt. This exquisite purple cotton 't,' which was enhanced by gold lettering, was passed along weekly. Commented the first "Swimmer of the Week", Brett Peterson, "I was so proud at being chosen, that instead of wearing the shirt on Friday, I wore it the entire week!"

Before every game, the girls' field hockey team would get their adrenaline flowing by singing songs on the bus. Two of their all-time favorites were "Down By the River" and "The Cutest Boy I Ever Saw." Leading the bus in the choruses were juniors Erin Oslund and Robyn Gurinsky.

"Managers and trainers are usually overlooked and often not recognized. These students can either make or break the team. Their actions are just as important as the girls performing on the mats and equipment," enthusiastically commented gymnastics coach Ann Ripley.

The success of any team is due to the members themselves, as well as to the coaches, managers, and trainers. These dedicated individuals spend many hours after school with the rest of the team in order to keep the practices and games running smoothly. Not only that, they constantly keep up on their first aid skills in order to prevent injuries to the athletes. Second year trainer Gun Lee explained, "Being a trainer has taught me responsibility, and it has also given me a chance to interact and socialize with members on the various teams."

Most would agree that the coach is the "key" to any organized sport. Without a coach for guidance and support, the team would be unable to fulfill its true potential. Track coach Andy Tisinger said that the reason he was so willing to be a high school coach was because "I enjoy working with all types of athletes, not just the ones who compete for titles. I like to see all kids participating, even if it is only for fun. It makes coaching all worth while."

EXTRA POINTS

The girls' varsity tennis team had a unique and different warm-up: first they would place their team mascot, a stuffed pink pig, by the court, and then they would practice to Starship's "It's Not Over".

SPORTSTITIONS

While practicing, the offensive football players would tie their shirts to make it more difficult for the defense to grab them. After winning game after game with their shirts tied, they automatically tied them that way for the rest of the season.

EXTRA POINTS

After each gymnastic meet, Coach Ripley and team captains decided on the recipient of the "Wooden Wand." This wand consisted of a wooden stick with a green satin star. The gymnast who improved the most won the wand and brought it to the next meet.

jock talk (jak tok)

With so many uniforms to wear, the Varsity Drill Team had nicknames for each one. The yellow jumper was called the "Bananna"; the white spandex mini dress was called "Wonder Woman"; and the yellow vest, purple skirt, and white blouse was the "Fruit Cocktail." The majority of Drill Teamers disliked wearing the "Fruit Cocktail."

SPORTSTITIONS

Senior Matt McFarlane would wear the same mouthgaurd during lacrosse season that he wore during football. The times that the lacrosse team lost, Matt swears that he wasn't wearing the lucky mouth piece.

SPORTSTITIONS

Ever wonder what traditions began in the dugout and were carried out onto the playing field? "We never open an umbrella in the dugout, let a black cat cross the base lines, or run under a ladder to catch a fly ball", joked senior baseball players Cliff Krug and Curt Moore.

A hop, skip, and

These outstanding athletes were chosen by the coaches and are being recognized for their dedication and performance. While Lake Braddock carried on its tradition of producing exceptional teams, these people contributed the extra effort needed to make a showing above and beyond the rest. The highly competitive atmosphere at Lake Braddock has given us athletes who have shown their support, hard work, and talent for the sport they participate in. When these people leave the gym, field, pool, or mats their records and name will stay as a reminder of the remarkable athletes the class of 1988 produced.

Hubert Davis: Well, what can we say? During Hubert's senior year he averaged 29.9 points per game and led the region in scoring for the second year in a row. He has a 66.4 shot percentage from the field and 91% from the line. Davis holds the all-time school record for shooting and in his high school career scored an excess of 1500 points. What's next for Hubert? On to bigger and better things, at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill where his four-year, full scholarship awaits him.

Kim Desmond: Not only was she the Varsity captain of the girls Cross Country team, but she ranked second in the state. After four years on the state championship Lake Braddock team, Kim was chosen to be a part of the All-South Cross Country team. She represented the All-South team in the San Diego race. Kim proved to be a great asset to her team and finished as an All-District, All-Region, and All-State runner. The dedication and concentration needed to be a long distance runner was all in a days work for Kim. As she said, "It's pretty rough but you do get used to it!"

a jump above the rest!!

Todd Burnett: A major asset to the Lake Braddock's football team, Todd started as Varsity quarterback where he developed his ability extensively. He made All-Met and All-Region based on his performance in the best season of Braddock football. Commented Varsity coach Joe Clark, "Todd is the best quarterback in Lake Braddock history and probably the best in the state." With such hard work and dedication to the sport, what could the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill do but offer him a full four year scholarship!?!

Michelle Malebranche: Having completed her senior year as an All-Met, All-Region, and All-District field hockey player, Michelle, as field hockey Coach Diane "O" Miller said, "deserves to be recognized as one of the top seniors in 1988 for her success!" She has played for two years as a "lady bear" and has indeed been a major force in the winning record held by the Lake Braddock team. As Michelle said, with a grin on her face, in hearing of her outstanding athlete award, "That's cool . . ." Definitely, this field hockey-sockin' player is one of a kind!

Steve Gordon: This Varsity golf captain for the 1988 season proved to be a top competitor. As if finishing second in the district tournament weren't enough, he went on to place sixth in the region. He has been a member of the Lake Braddock golf team for two years, but has been an avid golfer for four years. Much of the teams' success this season is attributed to Steve and his high caliber of skill for the game of golf.

Angela Griffith: Not only does Angela represent our girls Varsity track team as the captain, but she is also an incredible asset to our championship team. Angela has won the long jump and triple jump in the region not once, but twice. She was also a 300 meter district winner this year. These accomplishments have been recognized repeatedly by Braddock's award winning coaches and teammates. However, not as much as the recognition given to Angela when she was awarded the title of High School All American. As she said, "It's been a wild and wonderful experience! I've loved every second!"

Brad Baker: Brad is ranked number one for the individual cross-country championship. He is also the top runner in the state of Virginia for the 1600 meter and the 1000 meter run. Not only was he captain of the the Varsity Cross-Country team, but the Indoor and Outdoor teams as well. Brad has been a top competitor for Lake Braddock for the last two years. As he said, "Being on such a highly competitive team has motivated me to work to my full potential. There's so many good runners out there that you have to work doubly hard to be the best." Obviously, he has!

Brent Gehring: Brent has been a Varsity wrestler since his freshman year. As captain of the team this year, "Brent has shown outstanding leadership as well as performing exceptionally well at every meet", according to coach Alan Thompson. Brent wrestled at the 119 weight group, where he managed to defeat the district champion for that weight in 1987. Winning numerous meets including the Osborne, Saint Stephens and Northern District titles have helped give Brent his undefeated record.

Emily Rice: The class of 88's "most athletic girl" has been a Varsity Soccer starter, all-district, all-region, all-met player for four years. Emily is unique in that she is a three sport letterer and an exceptional soccer player. She is our third senior athlete to be recruited by Chapel Hill for her athletic excellence. UNC has been following Emily's progress for several years and has offered her a place in their outstanding athletic program.

Jason Kohl: Now a senior, Jason was one of the only freshmen in the history of Lake Braddock's Tennis team to start in the top six for the singles category. In addition his win-to-loss record is the best in the school's history in singles and in doubles. Jason was a four year varsity starter and four year letter winner. In 1986 he was a key member of the District team champs, on the first team for All-Regional Doubles, and Most Valuable Player. In 1987 Jason was part of the second team All-Northern District Singles and voted the "Best Team Player."

Although athletes went through hours of practices, extensive training and the agony of defeat, they continued to push and bring forth their talent to experience the thrill of victory. From victory came the motivation to reach their dreams. Each athlete had their own dream, a personal goal that set them apart. Breaking a record, lettering, achieving a scholarship, or long term goals, like gold medals, are examples of dreams each athlete dared to set for themselves.

Recalled Hubert Davis on his motivating dream, "I'd like to go on and have the opportunity to play professional basketball because my uncle once played it, and my mother would have liked to have seen me." Explained varsity swimmer Mike Ricabonni, "My goal is to go to the Olympics or achieve a scholarship to a college like UCLA."

the Future!

For the athletes, the satisfaction of reaching the dreams they set brought many rewards. One way the athletes are recognized for striving toward their personal goals was the seasonal Sports Banquet. The overused uniforms, swimsuits, and sweats were temporarily set aside as the suits, ties, and dresses became the attire for the evening. There, the coaches, sponsors, and teammates collaborated to salute the outstanding athletes with awards and recognition. Varsity field hockey captain, Kris Riley exclaimed, "It is a time for athletes to come together, dress up, relax, and be rewarded for all the hard work throughout the season."

Mike Gessiotto: Mike has played the fast paced game of lacrosse since his Freshman year. Leading the team on defense, "Mike was always there to stop the ball from coming too close to me in the goal," said teammate and goalie Eric Steinhauer. He proved to be a strong aggressor but kept his cool when a fight arose. As captain of the newly recognized team his senior year, Mike gave a true example of how the defensive game of Lacrosse should be played. He was rewarded for his outstanding performance at the end of the season with a trophy for great defensive play.

Corey Harlow: Having played soccer since he was very young, Corey gained an incredible amount of experience which won him a position on the Varsity team since his Freshman year. Recognized as "Best Looking" of the class of '88, this athletic fellow not only looks good but also plays soccer exceptionally well. Corey was captain of the varsity team for two years and had extremely well-rounded technical skills. Commented Coach Cicala, "Corey is a definite team player and always displays an excellent overall performance!"

Misty Minger: Misty has been a gymnast for years. Her dedication has developed her sport into an art. "Misty has been our leading all-around for the past three years," commented coach Ann Ripley, "and was a major force in helping us win numerous championships." Misty was second all-around in the state in 1987 and first all-around with a score of 35.60 in the Southern Invitational in 1988. Said Misty, "It's been the most worthwhile experience of my life!"

It doesn't get any

In years past, the Bruins have become a powerhouse in athletics.

However, no year has been more spectacular than this season. The Bruins not only dominated area teams, but also destroyed many school records, accomplished impossible feats, and just plain celebrated sports. All of those special moments in sports — who could forget them? From the outstanding fall season to the successful winter and spring seasons, 1987-88 was indeed one to remember . . .

Perhaps the most spectacular feat for the Varsity Football team was their 19-14 Homecoming win over W.T. Woodson. That win marked only the second Homecoming win in thirteen years. The Bruins' momentum stayed with them as they beat rival Robinson 19-2, destroyed West Springfield 42-14, and upset second-ranked Marshall in three overtimes, 35-28.

better than this!

Finishing with a 7-3 record, the girls Varsity Tennis team placed strong in the Northern District, with wins over West Springfield and Robinson.. The single and double teams both advanced to the District and Region competitions.

The Varsity Field Hockey team surprised everyone in the Northern District, as they finished in the top spot. They went on to the Regional semi-finals, but lost a hard-fought game to South Lakes 2-1. Highlights of the season included several wins over rival powerhouse Woodson.

At 5-3, the golf team was the most successful in school history, with wins over West Springfield and Woodson. Senior Captain Steve Gordon went on to states.

SPORTS CLIPS

Before each soccer game, the boy's varsity squad participated in a team ritual which dealt with loud music. While in the locker room, they would listen to two pieces of music in particular: Motley Crue's "Looks That Kill" and Bob Marley's "So Much Trouble In the World".

jock talk (jak tok)

"Deuces Wild" — n. During baseball a game when the count is two strikes, two balls, and two outs, the players in the dugout take their hats off, shake them, and when the pitch goes to the plate, the hats are thrown like dice.

SPORTS CLIPS

For the varsity football team, there were the infamous Saturday morning films, when they would find out their mistakes from the night before. These meetings lasted for three hours with most players showing up half asleep, clad in sweats, and sporting big bags of food.

EXTRA POINTS

When the Swim and Dive team entered the Northern District Tournament, they wore shirts with a message to Woodson — "Breaking the Tradition." After defeating Woodson in a previous dual meet, the Bruins had broken the Cavaliers' twelve-year winning streak. The shirts reminded the Bruin swimmers that they had to carry their success into the District meet.

SPORTSTITIONS

At Episocopal High School, the indoor track team would always sit in the same corner at the fieldhouse. This provided conflict, however, because West Springfield wanted to sit in the same corner as well. Commented senior runner Mitch Prothero, "It was funny to see two track teams fight over a corner even before the meet began!"

SPORTS CLIPS

For Varsity Drill Teamers, codes were what they lived by. One of the most dreaded was the "Make-Up" Code. During performances, all of the dancers had to wear blue eye shadow, pink blush, and bright red lipstick. This helped make them appear more colorful.

Celebrating SPORTS

The cross country teams were by far the most successful of the fall teams, as the girls went undefeated and the boys lost only three meets. Both teams went on to win the state championship, making it the second time in a row for the girls, and the first time for the boys.

The girls' Varsity Basketball team, ranked number one in the Washington area, finished their season with a school best 28-3 record. The team's only losses came from Woodson and Annandale. However, the Bruins captured the Northern District title and were runners-up in both the region and state competitions.

Finishing the season with a school best 25-2 record, the boys' Varsity Basketball team broke many school records. The biggest accomplishment was their thrashing of Oakton 117-75, giving them the school record for most points scored in a game. The Bruins later mutilated rival West Springfield 103-65. Another highlight was Hubert Davis' free throw against Edison, making him the player with the most points in a career at Lake Braddock. The Bruins proved to be one of the best teams in Northern Virginia as they captured the Northern District title and made the Northern Region final four.

SPORTSTITIONS

Every time senior cross country runner Vince Kraus got ready for a meet, he would always wear the same pair of socks. Then he'd put on respectively, first his right and then his left shoe.

flail — v. to miss the ball or top it; a term used in field hockey when a player makes a big mistake. To put it bluntly, to flail is to fail.

SPORTS CLIPS

Before their home games, the football team would sit in the locker room with the lights off, listening to AC/DC at full volume. This, according to varsity player Bryan Zickafoose, helped the team prepare mentally for the game.

The boys' and girls' Swim and Dive Team had one of their best seasons yet, as the boys captured the Northern District and Region titles, beating Woodson three times this season. The first win over the Cavaliers gave Woodson their first loss in twelve years. The girls also finished strong in the district and region. Highlights of the season included wins over Woodson and West Springfield.

The girls and boys Indoor Track and Field teams showed their dominance once again in Northern Virginia, as both teams captured the Northern District and Region titles. The boys and girls were able to finish the season undefeated. The girls were runners-up in the state championship and the boys captured their second title in a row.

The Wrestling team had a good season as they captured a surprising second place in the Northern District. Other highlights of the season included their capture of the St. Stephens Christmas Tournament, giving them their first championship in that tournament. Many individual wrestlers finished strong in both the Northern District and Regional championships and the team went on to place sixth in a field of 25 teams.

Injuries plagued the girls' Gymnastics team, as they placed third in the North-South Invitational held at Lake Braddock. However, they regrouped and captured the Northern District title in a close meet over rival West Springfield. The Spartans later beat the Bruins in the Northern Region, but the lady gymnasts came back with a strong third place at States.

"Hey batter, batter!"

Dressed in new uniforms, a combination of diversely talented baseball players met the competition with little to fear. On the field, pitching exploded with power while the outfielders ran up on grounders, fielded flies, and guarded bases — all campaigning for their chance to respond with a "thwack" of the bat to the opposing team's chant "Hey batter, batter!!" As Bobby Walker said, "Last year we had a young team, only having six seniors. We pulled together as a team and did our best . . . We have our own little family. It's taken time for us to grow close."

To be successful, each player had to accept his role within the team. Commented Carmen Giannini, "It's important to focus in the team, not individuals."

With sights set on a state title, twenty-one practiced players set the pace of the district. Hoping to dominate the tournament at Robinson Secondary, Lake Braddock faced rival West Springfield with positive attitudes and emotions. "They were really good," assured Ryan Young. "They had a lot of great players who knew how to play a tough game . . . but then again, so did we!"

Finally, when the balls were retired to the bag, bats lay in dormancy, awaiting the next spring. With players exhausted, and the coach hoarse, another Lake Braddock baseball season had come to rest.

"I like softball because it brings out a part of me that I never see. I feel tough and I treat my opponents as enemies and that's something I don't normally do." Kerri Willey

PLAAAY BAALL!!

Chris Talbot

Picture it: Fifteen players huddled close together, heads bowed down, arms stretched out in the center. "Are we ready?" screams captain Kerri Willey. "Yeah!" is the reply as the girls' varsity softball team psyches themselves up for their big game. "The team is like a family; we each cheer each other on all the time. What helps is that coach really cares about the team," remarked catcher Heather Dix.

Practicing two hours a day, Saturday, and during spring break the team prepared itself for a very competitive season. As coach Heidi Smith remarked, "We have a very aggressive team that never gives me less than 100% I feel we have the potential to be the best." And their work paid off, particularly when the team beat Robinson, whom LB had not been able to defeat in four years. As Kellie Tomlin commented, "You have to work hard in order to perform well."

Heather Dix responds quickly as she throws to second base in an effort to finish a double play.

Psyching themselves up for the big game, the players huddled together to cheer.

Softball brought different highlights to each player. For Bolema Smalls, the best part of softball was stealing the bases. "It gives you a sense of accomplishment," she said. Trina Boughman, on the other hand, preferred the "fast action I received at first base." The players agreed though that unity was the key word to success. To accomplish it, they scheduled a pasta party, a trip to King's Dominion and did numerous cheers at each game. As Audrey Ogden said, "Of my eleven years playing softball, this has been the most enjoyable and most competitive. I feel we'll take it all the way!"

CRRRACK!!!

Bottom of the seventh. Bases were loaded. The batter stepped up to the plate. The pitcher, the teams, the crowd — everyone was tense. The pitch came sailing through the air, and the batter sent it out with a resounding 'CRACK!' The crowd went wild! Home run! No wonder baseball is America's favorite pasttime!

So it's not surprising that forty-five hard-driven, ambitious young men tried out for the j.v. baseball team. But only twenty-five of them made it. "I was happy when I learned that I was chosen for the team," said Paul Agner. "The competition was tough." And so were the 3:30 to 5:45 after-school practices and three to four hour ones on Saturdays. "You have to give up a lot on account of practice," said second baseman Matt Maccaroni, "but it's all worth it."

"Compared to the other teams I've played on," commented first baseman Scott Allen, "j.v. has people as good or better than I am. Not only does that make you want to work harder, but it also gives you the drive to beat the even tougher teams." Added Wayne Weaver, "We're just a better team overall this year!"

Catcher Jennie Bourgois gets "on her toes" to receive the pitch should the Robinson batter strike out.

Heads up!!!

Team work. Those were the key words for the girls junior varsity softball team. "There's more togetherness in the team this year," was sophomore catcher Karen Edelman's confirmation on this hard fought team, "We've got the right stuff!"

This optimism was shared by the entire group, who took their game seriously but still tried to have fun while doing so.

"The whole thing was really challenging," said freshman Karin Riley, who was the starting pitcher this year. Added sophomore infielder Cheri Stilwell, "When I get out there, the only thing on my mind is 'Don't miss that ball!'"

Unfortunately, a lot of people sometimes got caught up in the spirit of playing to win, seeming to forget what a ball game was really truly about. As freshman outfielder Heather Mast pointed out, "Winning isn't everything. You have to play the game for the sake of the game, not just for the victory."

Why do high school boys like to ride horses, play on rings, and do cartwheels? Why? "Because real men do gymnastics," according to varsity boys gymnastics captain Mike Mills. Practice for the team was held every day after school until 5:30. Yet despite these long hours, the team's ambition and dedication was not hampered. As Marc Boulware said, "Practice was long and hard, taking a lot of time and strenuous work to improve our skills, but in the meets it showed."

Coach Mike Cooper stands by and watches as Campbell Tyler does a double back flip off the rings.

Even though there were many outstanding individual performances throughout the season, the team as a whole was extremely successful due to its unity. "Gymnastics was a good experience because it was as much an individual competition as it was a team competition," explained team member Doug Broome. Added teammate Alex Devarona, "When the team needed it most, everyone pulled together and supported each other."

The team was open to all who showed interest in gymnastics, and it consisted of many talented, young members. Freshman Bryan Appleton commented, "It's never boring because we learn something new every day." Injured member Jeff Taggart added, "As an assistant coach, I have witnessed the great amount of dedication shown by these gymnasts. All our enthusiasm and optimism really helped to create the 1987-88 gymnastics team."

To sum up the feelings of the group, coach Mike Cooper commented, "We have a strong, young team and hope to go far."

Tennis anyone?

The 1988 tennis season officially began at the end of March with excruciatingly difficult tryouts. Approximately 36 players, grades 9 through 12, came out each day after school for two weeks to show off their "stuff." In scoping the potential for only 12 spots, coach Dick Lisi commented, "When narrowing the team down, I based my decision on the individual's basis of performance in assigned challenge matches, athletic ability, improvement, and year in school."

For a senior to be eligible, he had to play in either the top six singles or top four doubles teams. Although the competition was tough as usual, twelve boys emerged to claim the spots — two seniors, four juniors, four sophomores, and two freshman. Returning starters included Jason Kohl, Arjun Khare, Hector Quinteros, and Mike Beaulieu. In addition to these starters were the "much improved" Tag Greason and Ryan Meek. As Lisi predicted early on in the season, "The success of this year's team will depend upon consistent wins at 3-6 singles, and two and three doubles."

Coming off a District Championship in 1986 and a regular season tie for first in 1987, this year's team was a solid contender for the State and Regional title. Arjun Khare said, reminiscing about the season's highlights, "With such a great coach, and such a good team, how could we have gone wrong?"

Go, fight, win Bruins!" was chanted by the girl's varsity soccer team as it prepared to meet its opponent on the field. But before players could take their positions for the game, they spent many hours after school practicing under the encouragement and direction of head coach Carolyn Rice. Commented Theresa Korte on their mentor, "Coach is really good. She teaches us a lot and knows what she's talking about. She's great with people and knows exactly how to psyche us up — she tells us that everyone is out to get us!"

any problems, but it also makes for great fun!" So, when the maneuvers and "friendly" teamwork came together, the team was ready to confront its opponent.

Rice, who was in her seventh year of coaching for the Bruins explained, "Soccer is dynamic. I want to help others to enjoy the game and improve their playing." And through coaching she definitely has. For as Liz Pike said, "Coach really works us. She's dedicated to soccer and puts a lot of time into it because she not only wants to win, she wants everybody to win!"

Along with the competition, goalie Michelle Wyrick found that "friendship" was one of the many rewards of playing on the soccer team. Said she, "Working with friends together on a team makes for a great atmosphere. Not only does it allow you to give and receive constructive criticism without

Up in the air!

"The team this year is basically young, but they've played together for a while, and they know how to work well together; it's a very well balanced team," stated coach Jac Cicala about the 1988 Boy's Varsity Soccer team.

Led by returning captain Corey Harlow, and captains Shayne Berlo and Dan Dougherty, the team was prepared for a good season.

In the backfield, returning juniors Pete Grace and John Stevens led the way in stopping oncoming opponents. Up on the front line were juniors Eric Dumbleton, Craig Brannon and K.P. Wawrzyniak as well as returning regional high scorer, Shayne Berlo. Corey Harlow led the midfield as "probably one of the best midfielders in the state," as quoted from the Fairfax Journal.

The team played well in the district, seeing as there were no extremely tough competitors. "Robinson (last year) was one of our strongest opponents, but they lost 10 of their starting players. This really helped us a lot," commented Jeff Reed.

A major factor in the team's success was the coaching job by Jac Cicala. Cicala was named the number one coach in the nation. "First I was voted Virginia coach of the year, then the number one coach on the East coast, then I was given the honor of being named the best coach in the nation," commented Cicala, "I feel really proud — it's a great honor." "I really respect Coach Cicala, he has helped us in so many ways. He really deserved to be named coach of the year," stated Rob Eanes.

A kick out of it!

Spring finally came, and it was once again time to start a new soccer season. Teams were chosen and practices and games scheduled to start the season off. "I was glad when it finally started," said Brett Harn, a member on the boys j.v. soccer team, "because this sport really keeps me in shape."

"Only one word can be used to describe this sport," explained j.v. girls soccer team member, Lynette Sivori,

With grace and balance, a j.v. member struggles with his "opponent" in hope of getting the ball away and scoring.

Desperately attempting to prevent a ball from going into the goal, Tina Giordano skillfully holds on with her soccer goalie gloves.

"CHALLENGING!" And a challenge it was as the girls "kicked off" their season with a victory over State and Regional rival, Woodbridge.

Coach Rick Rice selected his team by looking for certain qualities in the players. "I sought for a natural skill in the players," said Rice, "and an individual's desire to improve and learn in order to be a better player."

For the boys j.v. team, there were many returning players this year, plus the recruit of new ones. As a "novice", Jesse Agan commented on the situation at practice, "I thought sometimes we did not take practice seriously, but we put a little more effort into it near the end."

To coach Karl Greten, his soccer team was different from any others he had ever taught. "We did not rely on one standout player, but instead, worked together more as a unit-to win as a team."

A successful season left these teams in high spirits, with yet a new set of soccer memories added under their belts. "Soccer's awesome!" exclaimed j.v. player Beth Morgan. "I've been playing since kindergarten, and haven't got sick of it yet-I doubt I ever will!" For Carrie Blumenthal, another j.v. team member, there was only one reason she played soccer, "I got a "kick" out of it!"

warriors for battle, the game of lacrosse tested the men of the tribe in skill, physical ability, endurance, and bravery.

Members of the Lake Braddock lacrosse team acted as modern warriors as they battled their opponents in a much more modernized version of the game. Challenged in stickwork, athletic ability, and teamwork, this years team strove to be the best, at game time and at practice.

"Concentrating on intense teamwork at practices," commented senior defensiveman and co-captain Mike Gesiotto, "really helped us out at the games on both offense and defense."

Recognized as a varsity sport for the first time this year, Lake Braddock lacrosse was bigger than ever and continued to attract huge crowds of its avid and faithful fans.

The team's annual trip to Florida proved to be very enjoyable and somewhat of a positive learning experience. It was there the team got a taste of Floridian lacrosse, playing the teams St. Andrews and Pope John Paul. Junior defensiveman Eddie Hahn said about the trip, "It was a lot of fun down there and sort of a crazy learning experience. Towards the end of the week we really came together as a team."

Try by day, score by night

If you saw a rugby game and weren't familiar with the rules, you might find yourself totally bewildered. To hear the players talk might confuse you even more. What exactly is a scrum? Or a maul? What's a ruck? Although it was confusing at first, rugby boys and girls soon found the game to be an exciting challenge.

Unlike football, rugby players were not allowed to wear any pads. The only protection both teams were allowed was a mouth guard. Many found that to be not quite enough, as injuries were numerous. "I broke my nose second practice, and got a black eye at the third," said Sam Jordan. "It's an intense game, but addictive."

With a roster of almost 80 players, the girls' team had over four strings at the beginning of the season but eventually dwindled down to only an A and B team. Said Olary Yim, "That's the only way it could have worked. With so many people, the feeling of belonging to a hell scrum or disco back just wasn't there."

Even though there were key players who actually scored the "tries", without the entire team working as a whole unit and family, victory would have been unobtainable for either the boys' or girls' team. As scrumhalf Tracy Fore replied when asked who scored, "All of us did."

Often, when playing in an extremely tense game, players found themselves releasing their aggression a bit more than what was called for. Kim Pace shared, "In the game, they're the enemy. We have to forget that these are the girls we party with afterwards." Added teammate Maja Anzulovich, "Yeah, it's a great way to get rid of all your "extra" energy. Only you really have to watch yourself and remember that the people around you are your teammates. You don't want to break their neck, knock their chest off or prevent them from having children in the future."

Boys rugby, made up of players from both Lake Braddock and West Springfield, under the name of West End, played area teams Robinson and Langley who they managed to beat and be beat time and time again. However, they, along with the girls, enjoyed a great deal of enthusiasm from fans who flocked to South Run Park on game days to watch — rain or shine and whatever the final outcome. In any case, with its continued popularity, the vicious and violent game of rugby will hopefully become a school sport recognized for the athleticism and intensity it truly deserves.

Exhausted from a scrimmage between the A and B team of West End, second row Wil Cunningham catches his breath while retreating off the field.

Peter Becraft

Despite the fact that their "scrum" has just collapsed, veteran rugby players Sam Jordan, Julie Jachim, and Andrea Sheerin find some humor in it.

After playing a vigorous game of "Bugger" where players chase and tackle each other, veterans Casey Northam and Olary Yim fall to the ground in laughter.

Peter Becraft

At an afterschool practice session, the rugby team's "forwards" get in the position of a scrum. This is done so that when the scrum-half releases the ball between the two teams, they can apply pressure to their opposition and either run over the ball or be run over.

People; it's a pretty vague word. But only a word which covered so many avenues could describe the wide variety of faces and the people behind those faces found in the halls of Lake Braddock.

Tall people, short people, fat people, thin people, athletic people, academic people . . . the list went on and on. The people at Lake Braddock were so varied it was a "melting pot" of sorts. People with different ideas, views, interests, habits, and backgrounds all meshed into one student body filling a quarter mile expanse of hallways. The myrriad of faces which once blended together transformed into over 4,000 individual friendly faces. There was one opportunity after another to meet people throughout the year, including being on teams attending sporting events as a spectator, joining clubs or drama, attending plays as well as parties given by classmates.

The people of Lake Braddock were different in more ways than one, but it was that diversity that made Lake Braddock special. From traits so varied as fashion and political outlook, the student body of Lake Braddock filled in everything that fell between the two, making Lake Braddock truly unique.

Seniors

The beginning of the end

This was it. After six years at Lake Braddock the Class of '88 had made it to their final year. Senior year was a time for fun and spirit was at an all time high on the first morning of school. "We were really excited about that first day, I couldn't get to sleep. It was a rough night," commented Sam Carlson, one of many seniors who showed up in the pre-dawn hours to congregate at the bear. Turn-out was high for this tradition of greeting the underclassmen, despite terrible weather conditions. "It was worth getting up early and going out in the rain because this is a once-in-a-lifetime thing," explained John Plumpe, "being a senior requires obnoxiousness, and we had it that morning." All the seniors seemed really ready for their senior year to begin, Sean Sorrell said "the first day of the school was the best."

Senior year was also a time of hard work. Lots of students opted for a tough,

AP oriented curriculum to prepare for college. "School has never been such a challenge," said Tina Brennan. While seniors were expected to work hard in school they also had the added pressures of preparing college applications, as Kelly Brown put it, "there is a lot of pressure trying to balance school, applications, and other activities."

Being a senior had its good and bad points as Tom Goodin explained, "it's kind of a love-hate relationship. We were excited but sad as we realized this was our last year together."

Looking at the newly painted 88 on the pressbox the seniors had a lot to look forward to. Their last year of high school seemed like it would be one of their best. Commented Mike Todd on being a senior "It's better than junior year."

Lake Braddock's own prima ballerina, Adam Lipkin, shows off his costume which he wore to school the Friday before Halloween.

Sitting in front of her locker, Emily Stauffer thinks about the work she has left to do.

Any way you look at it

It all started on a late, hot August afternoon during Labor Day weekend. Over seventy-five seniors, paint brushes in hand and adorned with grubby clothes, trekked into the football stadium to carry out a yearly "pilgrimage". This "pilgrimage" otherwise known as painting the press box was completed after five hours and ten gallons of paint.

Capturing the moment on film was class historian, Suzanne Williams, who commented, "We painted the press box totally different from past senior classes. The 8's are shaped (rounded) to make it difficult for underclassmen to paint over." Adding to the frenzy, were the many paint fights where seniors risked their clothes, skin, and hair. Said a happy Kim Shorer "Luckily my shower cap helped me from getting paint all over my hair!"

Adding a new dimension to their senior year, the class of '88 stepped up from painting the bleachers to painting the press box. Their originality showed as hundreds of cars drove through Burke and honked their horn in salute to the impressive sight.

Painting the press box was the beginning of the preparation for the end. And for the rest of the school year the '88 symbolized the great times of senior year.

Did you hear the one . . .

About the former hearse salesman from Providence, Rhode Island, who loves to eat french fries? He was the new senior class sponsor.

Bren Bailey took over the role "because the biggest class deserves the biggest sponsor," and "it was the best possible way to become involved with the students." Being the class sponsor meant that Bailey had to assist the Class of '88 "to remain legal, moral, and ethical in their journey toward graduation." His goals for the year were to build class spirit, minimize graduation costs, and form a positive bond with the Lake Braddock community.

When asked what he liked about the class, Bailey said "the friendliness of the students." He also enjoyed watching the officers and other students take on leadership positions. The only part of being class sponsor Bailey felt he didn't like was teaching the officers and seniors good business practices, referring to the need to stop giving free food at the Senior Snack Bar and generate funds for prom and graduation. Bailey spent Tuesdays and Thursdays up until the winter break sitting on the senior stage during lunch collecting graduation fees, giving the seniors a chance to meet him and letting himself get to know the class of '88.

Taking over a new position is never easy, but Bailey's attitude quickly made everyone forget he was a new sponsor.

Hard work pays off

"It's the best float that this class has ever built," commented class treasurer Matt Erskine after Homecoming '87. "It took a lot of work, but it was worth it!" Many seniors agreed, as they worked all night the night before Homecoming to add the finishing touches. Though the float started out low on supplies, it ended up with two Bruins in formal attire dancing to the music of a jukebox. This supported the Homecoming theme of "Dancing Through the Decades".

The seniors' hard work paid off as they watched their float capture first place in the float competition. This win added to their points accumulated in other Homecoming events throughout the week, which eventually won them the Spirit Banner.

Commented class president Malissa White, "The seniors really pulled together and there was a lot of class unity while building the float. There was a lot of effort put into it and it showed; in general we had a great time!"

Some seniors stayed at Maggie Koch's house until 1 a.m. working on the float. "It was so cold. Our fingers were numb, and all I could think of was sticking tissue through chicken wire. But it was well worth my time!" said Debbie Luedtke.

College Prepping

At least twenty-one seniors proved they knew what "success" meant, when they participated in the Governor's School, Boys and Girls State, and National Merit Scholarship program.

"To guess or not to guess. That is the question," thought Merit scholar David Albert as he took the PSAT. Shaula Doyle said, "I got to this question about a girl and a porch and I thought what kind of question is that?" "It's a great way to win money from a college," Steve Bush added.

The seniors who attended Boys and Girls State and Governor's School got a taste of college life. As Shelly Gupta said, "Going to State made me feel more confident about myself." Jeanette Hoh, who attended Governor's School, added, "I got to know such a diverse group of people. Excluding the rigorous schedule, I'd say it's much like college."

Elise Utz went a step further and got a head start on her college education. She spent the whole year at Mary Baldwin College, where she finished her senior year of high school and received credit for freshman year.

All of these seniors were rewarded for their academic efforts during high school, helping them prepare for the challenge of college.

Hallway café

"Need a coke."
 "Peanut M & M's."
 "I REALLY need a Diet and a Snickers."

So went the food-to-buyer assembly line of the Senior Snack Bar, open every day after school from 2:30 to 3:30 and staffed voluntarily by seniors.

"It's cool to have it there when I have to stay after for help in art," said senior Paul Jones.

The Snack Bar made almost half of the class of 88's yearly earnings by grossing about two hundred dollars a day. The food was purchased in bulk from United Wholesalers.

"Sometimes when we are tossing Cokes we drop them and hope they don't explode when the people open them; once in awhile we lose that bet," said 88 president Malissa White.

The profits from the Snack Bar funded Prom and graduation costs for the senior class. The class worked towards increased sales for the possibility of a free Prom. Commented Marisa Kraus, "A free Prom would be so cool because we'd have more money for dinner."

Who got first priority at the busy SENIOR Snack Bar? Who do you think?

In an attempt to serve as many students as possible, Malissa White takes a table, as Caroline McCormick and Jeff Emery look on.

Rob Eanes and Emily Rice take control of the large snack bar crowd forming after school.

You oughta be in pictures

“Click” went the cameras as the members of the class of ‘88 sat mannequin-like in their “cardboard” tuxes and “clothes-pinned” gowns. Many thoughts flashed through their minds as they were being poked, positioned and propped up and down. For example, Michelle Stevens was thinking, “Do I look good? Do I have the right color drape? They better turn out perfect!”

Senior portraits were different from underclass pictures. Seniors had to choose between several casual and traditional poses when they received proofs within a week of having their picture taken. Then the seniors sent those back and waited for the finished results. “They turned out better than I expected!” exclaimed Malia Venie.

These pictures would be one of the last things that the class of ‘88 would leave their friends and Lake Braddock. Most seniors felt the same sad feeling about their last year with friends and familiarity. As Amy McDougal said, “I’m scared that this is approaching the end of high school and life as I’ve known it for the past 17 years.”

Decked out from head to toe

Graduation so soon? It was certainly on the minds of most seniors when caps and gowns were ordered. Although for many it seemed early for such a typical end-of-the-year activity, the reason caps and gowns were distributed in the winter was to avoid the usual pre-graduation rush. Some didn't mind, however, and chose the attitude of Bret Peterson, that it was the "first sign of the end."

Graduation excitement mounted early with the additional reminder of graduation fees. Beginning in late October, seniors began paying their $10 fee to class sponsor Bren Bailey. The $10 fee, which covered not only the cost of keeping the caps and gowns, but also the diploma processing, was the lowest graduation fee of any school in Fairfax County.

As they tried on their caps and gowns, many seniors found it more and more difficult to wait for June when they could finally add the tassel, turn it, and become a high school graduate. These feelings were expressed by Gretchen Grozier, who said "Even though we still have seven months left, the mere ordering of caps and gowns evokes the end-of-the-year emotions."

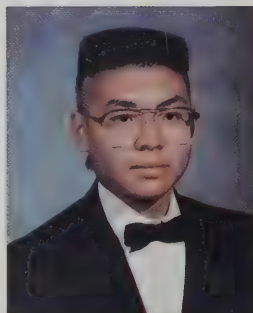

Waiting was the hardest part for most, but seniors were in good spirits knowing soon enough the day would come when they could wear their caps and gowns.

Giving it the college try

Throughout the school year, seniors were consumed with college applications, decisions, and deadlines for admission to college. To most, it seemed that there was no relief in sight. Steve Moga commented, "It's hard to balance college applications with school and extracurricular activities. Procrastination is the worst part."

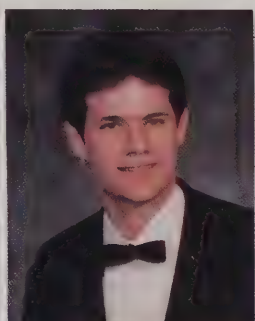

There were several college fairs at Fair Oaks mall where representatives from close to 350 colleges distributed brochures and applications to prospective students. During school, college representatives visited students to answer questions about various schools. Subschool 5 counselor Mrs. Marianne Weber helped seniors handle the pressures of college by sponsoring "stress-sessions".

When spring came, seniors received both letters of acceptance and rejection from colleges. By graduation most seniors had been accepted to a college and awaited the college experience. As D'arcy Writsel commented, "I feel that I am going to learn so much that I can apply to my life when I graduate. College is sort of a 'bridge to real life'."

Head of the class

Leading close to one-thousand seniors, the biggest class ever, to attend Lake Braddock, were five class officers who didn't hesitate to "jump in." "Having a big class just makes us stronger," commented Matt Erskine.

President Malissa White, who had for her sophomore and junior years served as vice president, had high expectations for the class of '88. Before school started, the officers went to a leadership conference in Virginia Beach, along with class sponsor, Bren Bailey. While there they discussed ideas for getting students involved in class projects, fund-raising activities, and that important class spirit. The biggest money makers were the senior snack bar and the purple and gold class t-shirts, which helped reduce the cost of prom and graduation.

The officers sought to bring everyone together, to feel a part of the class, not an easy task in a group of 950 people. Positive people saw overcrowding as a chance to get to know more people. As White said, "Having our lockers together as a class brings us closer together and helps us unite."

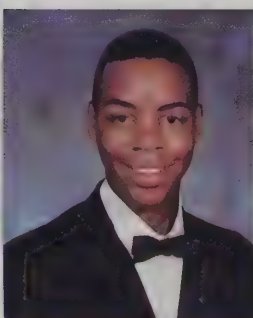

Even the huge numbers they had to work with didn't stop the officers from working hard to make senior year the best ever for the class of '88.

Cast your ballot

Signs and bumper stickers in hand, seniors jumped right in and got involved with the many elections and campaigns that took place this year.

Local candidates from both parties were featured in presentations organized through government classes. "It was worthwhile to put the students in touch with the candidates," said Erin Graves. Arjun Khare added, "It was a good idea, but they talked too much about each other rather than the issues." A lottery in Virginia, resolution of traffic problems; these were a few of the issues students had to consider before they decided for whom they would cast their ballot.

"The students aren't really taking it very seriously. Seniors have more important things on their minds, like college and graduation, than if Audrey Moore builds a new road," said Eileen Schmidt. However, Lisa McGregor said, "It's exciting and a new challenge to help determine the outcome of this nation."

Aimee Clatterbuck and Devan Roberts attach the sticker of a local candidate to the bumper of Aimee's car.

A farewell to Seniors

As graduation approached, every senior could look back and recall their years at Lake Braddock. From being a small seventh grader full of trepidation to a senior turning his tassel at graduation, there were many fond memories of school days . . . late late night struggles with Trig and Physics, early morning SATs after a late Friday night, embarrassing moments in Behind-the-Wheel, a first date, eight minutes between classes and long weekends spent with close friends,

"senioritis," Homecoming spirit that won a spirit banner and a football game, tears of joy after graduation mixed with tears of sorrow, and to end the year, a very special Prom at the Shoreham hotel. There were countless memories for the Class of 1988.

But after graduation, seniors prepared to go off to college and face more challenges. Lake Braddock had prepared seniors to meet these challenges in the years to come.

During Labor Day weekend, Sean Sorrell puts the finishing touches on the pressbox.

Gathering in front of the Bear on the first day of school, Kerri Scanlon and Stephanie Osborn try to stay out of the rain.

Senior Quotes

Rob Abrams: Thanks, Mom, Dad, Mike, and Tricia. I love you all dearly. Niko, you're the best friend I've ever had. Thanks P.C. class. As far as I'm concerned, the friends I've had at LB are friends for life. I'll never forget any of you. I love LB and I definitely love life!

Matthew Ackley: Cool, I made it. David and Cristy, hope you make it. Seema, Jenny, been fun this year! hope you get rich and do what you want. KISS rules, #1 band. Love you Jenny Jacoby (you wish). To everyone in wrestling, been great bleeding with all of you. Marines! Marines! To Joe who was slaving away at boot camp this year. Dennis one of these days I'm going to go down to see you.

Steve Marchiando

You're beautiful, Kev-You freaking hick beware of death row, K.C., K.H., J.T., T.R., K.S., Everybody else-Good luck and goodbye!

Steve Bush: It's over everyone-you can go home. Thank you for participating in my reality. Now I'm off to the real world where I'll have to pay money to goof off. Thank you Carl Bly and the marching band. You've given me direction, not to mention laughs and a whole lotta work. Keep up the tradition (Where do you keep your bagels, band room lunch bunch?) As for the rest of you, be the best. Love ya, S.E.D.

Chuck Butler: The thought of actually moving out of Fairfax County is inconceivable, but I think I'll manage. During the last two years, I have gone through a period of growth. I attribute this to my teachers, friends, and otherwise. (SD, EH, SM, TB, MJR, SH, LS, CH, KS, SB, WY, all PL's). And remember, no squishies, don't move, and contrary to popular opinion, I am not the Anti-Christ.

Derek Butler: Well, we're out of here everybody. The memories are here, the moments are waiting. Thanks Mom, Dad, "Bass," "Babe," and of course "Mac" for getting me through the tough years. I love you all I know that future brings special memories as I venture into the "dark side." As Whitesnake says, "I ain't wasting no more time." There are so many special people out there, and I wish the best for everyone.

Lisa "Fluffy" Marie Byram: Yo Dudes, it's been real! Brad, Steve, and Carlos "you're so sexy." Alex R. you're my babe. Hen tinkle-tinkle the cigs watching. Long live Jamb!

John Hamann: Attention Spanish students: Get out while you still can. I should've taken French. What are you, stupid. Rich, how important is second year. I hate Porsches. Phil, leave the car alone. Erica, you are a chicken, not an Amazon. To all remaining students: enjoy the Gestapo. Ever wonder what great ind would name a fastfood restaurant after a guy with a horse. Have you seen Trigger lately.

Kent Hamilton: Brad wanna T.P. Lake B. or just go to the beach, drink lemonade, look for Lisa, Babet, and Dupah. Treeforts, Church, back trails are for walking home from. Oh Bus, Magic Bus #42. Can't get enough peanut butter. Engleberge Humperdink Hamberger plays silly card games. Camping Trips, shaving cream, Mike says, "I'll take on 6 of you guys." Neanderthals, Kix, Gymnastics, Jaguars. Amy loves Gary, Mounds your so hot. Thanks Mom, Dad, and Christa.

Malia Hamilton: Renee — Kristen get out of your moccocosm world. No trite stuff. Billy drives on the Blue Highway with DeNiirro (who's go great) and gluts us in every sort of misogynistic way possible (Right)? Who's Miss Claude? This year was the best — Oh I know! I love you Stephanie and Michelle! ELB (who cares about those 323 other people! Gotta get out of the Shadows to run with the bos sound. Bye LB.

Matthew Hammack: There was a time in our lives when time went slow. But now it becomes harder to hold on to the time we want or had. Thanx to Mom and especially to Pop for kicking my rear in the right direction. Good luck "Bob," where ever you go. Thanx to L.G.H. and A.F. for brightening my life. Hey Space! As for some people go P.A.T.

Kevin Richard Hamrick: Mom, Dad, thanks for everything! Debbie, I love you! 2 yrs. and going on 4. We might get married yet! Tray — competition is going to be easy for you next year, everybody with a real car left. See ya beach week! Hey Keil, are you ever going to sell your car? Joe, are you ever gonna get yours runing? Oh Darn, it's over! Chevy Power! Later People! L.C. R.A. T.B.

Aamer Haque: Well, it's time to go now. I've got to say this quick, so here we go ... Thanks to: K.M., L.J., B.G., T.C., D.D., R.C., the Without Whom Department. XTRA Special Thanks to: W.M. for

Dave Korte: Thanks for everything Mom and Dad, I Love You two very much. As for A.S. we can't share everything alright. D.S., T.P., J.C., you guys are bad, we had a blast this year and many more will come. Pat S. you gotta "B". Chris your still a trader but I couldn't ask for a better friend. Coach T., I'm going to get fat.

Jason Kost: To whom it may concern, these are the dudes that I have been acquainted with: Dill Vanb Seng, Nivek Entwistle Hunt, Jefferson Watts, Bong the Dong Kim, Aaregones Khare, Stephen Park, Levets Rausac Rauschin, Eugene J. Plumpie, Eugene A. Lipkin, Dennis the P., Marriott, Chi-Chi Leng, Michael Martel, and Jim Magner. Me thinks it appropriate for all these personages to continue quaffing, queefing, and chiefting throughout their miserable existences.

Marisa Kraus: The experiences and friends you have throughout these high school years help make the person you are. Thanks to everyone who shared those good times and helped me. ILY Mom, dad, and Kami. JK, HE your the best, I'll miss you! PJ it's been great. I'll wait. Trees? Trucks? Brakes?

Scam, 7've bathrooms, shots in the dark, basement brewery, $610.40, GMU LAX — green? Where are we? RP summers, remember — you can't play quarters with some dimes!!

Vince Kraus: To the best friends I've ever had Kukabear 1, 2, 3. How many weeks was the streak? When the train left for Scudsville, the Foursome was on it every time! What's the count on those 12 ounce "cans of dinner?" Jay — those aren't pillows dude! Amy — That better have been your thumb! Anne — Get off on your bad self you cook, ya' know? Beachweek's coming slower than Christmas!! CROSS COUNTRY!!

Lani M. F. Kremers: Thanks guys. Here's to you. "If you can keep your head when all about you are losing theirs and blaming it on you, If you can trust yourself when all men doubt you, But make allowance for their doubting too ... Being hated, don't give way to hating ... Yet don't look to good, not talk to wise ... Yours is the Earth ... And ... You'll be a Man, my son!" — Rudyard Kipling

Kelly Kress: It would be impossible to mention all my friends. Thanks — You're the best! M/D — Thanks for helping me — job well done! Kim — Thanks for growing up first so I could prepare myself. E.S. — bestfriend a girl could have — 8 more years! My friend of long ago — L.K. We've gone separate ways, but you're still the "bestest bud." L.F. 4 years — on a roll!! N.R. remember B in E/H!! 88 — GOOD LUCK!

MLE, smarties rule. Ski, Chemistry? Mia, Nicole: Heavenly Kids. Muffy, how's the football team? Malissa, you give half asleep a bad name. Beckie seen any movies? Banana, Ethiopian food. Jen, Barbie (Sixth grade) Jody (watching moonlighting). Ben, college awaits. Gomer, Everyone: Life moves fast. I LOVE YOU ALL.

David Kwiatkowski: Well we're finally out of here! Auto III Rules! Thanks Mr. D, S.B., B.M., wash the helmet! Jason good luck and keep rockin'. G.R., J.H., we've had some good times and unreal parties. I hope we have lots more. OOK get a chevy. L.A. learn to drive. Thanks for putting up with me mom and dad. Karen keep up those grades. Mike keep being a rebel. Later Everybody. Keep Cool.

Niko (Neke) Kyriopoulos: Class of 88' — Size is the key to success. Rob, Sam, Tom, Mich, B.U.D., and everyone else, Let's go to the beach. Kelcie, you were my first true love Thanks for your support Mom, dad, Chris. Guys, we rocked at J.P.'s, Kristin's, Sang's, The Van, and in Canada. Hairy people add happiness to the world. Party we did! Party we will!!!!

Jen Lacheman: Mom and family, Thanks for being there — I love you! Lis — "Are we sharing the porch ... or what?" You still owe me on The Bet! We've been through a lot and always stayed together — you're the best! Big, Giant Karlin — Want to run? Can't forget "The Plan". Remember me when you're in California! Pam — 5th grade cookie jar blues! Matt, you've made me so happy, I love you and always will!!!!

Maureen Lacy: Well, MT, HG, TA, SP, LN, it's finally over! Matt, hang in there, babe. QQ Lives! Rice-A-Roni, anyone? The overhead fan ruled. Famous PL turn! It's really one of my favorites (blink0. I'm going dancing with Mr Brownston. Mom, Dad, sorry about the grey hair. Sammy, may I have a "Sammy's sunrise?" HAGADAGA! Au revoir, L.B.I. Rock'n'roll forever!

D & B after college, get ready for what's going to come Jackie!

Peter Lake: It has been fun, Lake Braddock. You did many great things for me but one thing in particular. You brought me and someone special together. Te Amo Jakelin!

Cam Lamporte: "I won't come out, you must come into me. Into my womb garden where I peer out. Where I can construct a universe within the skull to rival the real."—Morrison. Thanx family & Wishoo, DRLX will survive, Peyote will return in flashbacks, The Mood was a classic. Inspirations include Tolkien, Jimmy Morrison & Page, Reggae, Clifton, O.C. & Good Times. T.W.=there must be a rematch. Later Burke!

Ed "TC" Landa: I know I'm wrong. But what makes you right! ES, SC, RC, RS: Shades of Grey: we rock. Happy campers forever. Elfman and Numan rule. Thats too bad. 042487 Boingto! It's nine below zero. Juls: Love ya babe, but I gotta go. It's a little late. Even if I can't be trusted. Thanks Mom and Dad. Life awaits! Dress warm because the nights are very chilly here in cool city!

Pat Lane: "We're innocent in every way, like apple pie and Chevrolet."—Cruel '87. Thanks for all those "wonderful" mornings Mom and Dad. I still love you! Mike—are you ready to hit the beach and party? Thanks Dude. Steve, stay cool and live dangerous. Thanks to everyone who was ever there for me: Deni, Tiffany, Kim, James, Cyndie, Jeff, Rip, and anyone else who was there but aren't now. Rock-n-roll.

Regina Lane: Imagine, a yellow stripe, composed of say mass of identically electrifying sparks, plus a few unique, dashes across the plane. In an instant, this is deteriorated. At that point, in one corner, dark. Solid boxes occupy, inside, a lone spark orbits around faster and faster, time goes slower and slower until it trips over time, and thus physically drops ... there. That is if the boxes don't dissolve first. Woof.

Leslie LaPosta: Well guys, it's been real SPECIAL! Dawn — Love ya sweetie! Michelle—you're like a sister to me. Thanx for always being there. I love you! Hollie, Sean, and Larry—what can I say! I love you all! Dave—I LOVE YOU! Thanx for loving me back and for being my friend. I hope we have an eternity of years together. Just one final thing—Mrs Roupas—you haven't caught me yet!

Jennifer Latona: Well I did it, I still can't believe it's all over. Thanks Angie, I don't know how I could have made it without you always being there for me. Love ya always. Valerie try not to be too distant, just remember when you make it big don't forget about little old me. Jen hang in there. Kris hope you get Mark. I miss you Mom. Still loving you Billy. Bye.

Tina Lattin: WE CAME, WE JAMMED, WE LEFT! Kim, Nina, and Cindy, what's up? Remember David, Beefcake, Casey, Jon, number 4-signs, tennis courts, scary roads, parties in the middle of nowhere, IRA! California C. rule! We still have the ski trip and BEACH WEEK! Guys you are the best and I'll never forget you! Mom and Dad thanks for putting up with me. Nova here I come! Class of 88 rulz!

Jen Lauher: Sher-Bear, this Bud's for you! Who needs Germans anyway! Party in the basement! Bob's anyone? It looks clogged-flush it & see! All men are not created equal. basket, drop one pearl for me ... "And all this could be just a dream so it seems—I was never much good at good bye. Good bye."

Lin J. Leng: Remember looking at the world from a trash can, surrounded by tall people, and icky girls? Now, the girls look great, no more trashcans, but everybody's still taller than I am! Jas, Kev, Bong, Beav, Ben thanx for being my friends. I'll miss you jerks. Chi, I'm glad you're my sister. Luv you Mom and Dad. Edward and Randy, thanx for being the greatest. In the immortal words of Socrates, "I drank WHAT?"

Stephanie Lerche: This is Beatrice signing out. I'd like to thank some of you for your support. DM, good job, and good luck. SC, thanks for the encouragement. Good luck GM, SC, TS, and DW. Thanks Mom!

Steve Lesley: The key to fulfilling your dreams is perseverance. Always remember that no matters what happens, keep your chin up. Never let them see you sweat. To all my underclass friends, hang in there, you've only got one more year to go. For all us upperclassmen, we made it. We're out of here! "Our future's so bright, we gotta wear shades." Thank you teachers and especially Mom and Dad.

Gary Leverton: When the year ends and the school is quiet. The mornings have gone, bye KW and KP. It won't all be forgotten thanks to LW, PC, LM, CS, RT, MP, Mike go for it, even though I would like it. You're all beautiful, especially LE and JL. Good luck Arters, John, Karl, Julia, Joe, Jen, Jenny, Jenny-poo, Dawn and whoever. Six, one, nine, eight, Karl.

Karl Avery Levinson: Thanks everyone in Art, John, Julie, Dawn, Gary; Renee, Jen, Aly, and friends; Julian; To people everywhere who'll never read this, Radford friends; a-T; music; kelly Witmer — "Last night I dreamed someone loved me The warm memory faded when I awoke But later in the day I remembered and smiled" Goodbye Virginia. are only two states of matter in the universe, Do they still have "sneaa" at Pizza Hut? Bee (I mean Bye!) I'm outta here!

Derrick Lindberg: My first impression of this school was something fierce. But school wasn't that, actually it was pretty cool. Well I'm finally graduating, with a lot of heap from my parents. Well thanks to all my friends P.H, K.J, D.H, NF, JM, EW MM, and all the rest of you. As AC-DC Would say "What am I going to do, I am going to ride on." Also many thanks to Willie.

Beth Lindblom: "Avoid reeking herds, shun polluted flocks, Live as stoic birds, the eagles of the rock. Much thanx to all. It's been real, (Newsp Days!) but it will take a lifetime to use what I've learned after 2:30. To my pals Twist and Shout! Forever! — if you made me laugh you've got all the class I enjoy!"

Adam — Ray Lipkin: Playing high school was fun but I do believe it's time to wrap it up. To anyone reading this: THANKS for everything, let's do it again sometime. To the true MEN of the school, long live the manly way! Some philosophy: life is what you make it, but all that ever matters is who you are and who you spend it with. NRM, are we married yet? Peace to all.

Daniel Liu: Garlands Evergreen, forget me not wreaths, chaplets see me drugged, I could die in the rosary. JB, JR remember OC, HAI No one could have done it, but us! Only us! With love, to those wonderful people (especially JB) you know who you are. KS, JS: I shall die in your rosary! BS, AB, KS JS, DJ, TV, ... with love and hug and smiles and kisses and Vampire Bats!

Rich "Lemming" Livingston: It's not what you know, it's what you can get away with. To my WLBS minions — Rock on forever. To the seething multitudes that have seen me through the last 6 years — you know who you are and I love you, kids "Growing up is just going on the brink of dying, and dying to me doesn't sound like all that much fun." — John Mellencamp. OB LA DI OB LA DA. Good bye Ledman.

Chris Long: Hey LBMC What's up? It's been great partying around with you. Half remember camping out for tickets? Paul and Paul thanks for my birth day present, the Dead concert rocked. Matt and Schulz remember when we walked around Burke? Mom and Dad thanks for putting up with me. To my second parents thanks for letting me become you son. Hi Kris and Daniel.

Drew Long: Hey Anthony we're here seniors a last. Don't wreck your car seeing how much time you spend working to pay it off. Jay, food luck in basketball in college. Daw, better not hook your car on someone else's bumper. That looked kind o stupid. But don't worry just make sure you warn me if you're in the same state I'm in. Stieny, get rid o your shorts or get a real pair.

Chris Loundemon: "Hey Vince Kraus well you wouldn't be able to see me FRMF one more." Y Brian Madison how about that Grease Pit. "He Mojo: Well it's another year. The best year. Well Scoop we've been best friends for two and a half years. We've been through too much together and you know what I mean. I really hope you and I will be friends for much longer. I think you are what got me through it all. Steph B you're wild, crazy, and cool (even if you are in theater). Well it's been adequate. Later daze.

Chris Yenrick: Seniors at last! Finally reached the peak but now we see there's another one to climb. Thanks for being there when I needed you Mom and Dad, Jason and Tammy. LB swimming rages. Freddie Jenkins you've been a great friend. Good luck at Tech Brian, have fun in BAMA Geoff. Look out Ocean City here we come! Class of '88 rules.

Kevin Yi: To the Class of '88: Together we have developed a friendship based on honesty, loyalty, devotion, respect, and love. We have accepted and encouraged one another, respected each other's attributes and delighted in the other's accomplishments. It is a friendship that will continue to grow. It is a constant source of comfort and joy in my life. Hey! So what! So I lied!

Olanygirl Yim: Mother, Pops, Merne, Riny: What can I say? I love you but you never listen to me! Hi, these are my partay/love beads. Either way you'll have a good time. Naturegirls: rap session on the oaks. God! Why are you so violent? Crystal's fantasies live — look. I can feel you! We SHOULD have turned back. And just WHO do so much for who? Thanks. You ARE wonderful! Huuhweehaahweh! Roun — roll, guard. There's no turning back.

Alex Young: Dance with the sun, its light will never cease. My mind has begun, my thoughts it won't release. The moon now has risen, its red face shines bright. My spirit is imprisoned, darkness has won the fight. Nine stars fall from the sky. The four colors melt with ice, with this my world will die. And my mind will not suffice. This is the end, beautiful friend. — Jim Morrison. Tony-TBBH.

Chadwick Young: Thank God we made it! It hasn't been easy — nothing worthwhile is. We took some pretty hard blows; at least we got up again, right? Mom — glad you like Dez. Dad, watch out for those curbs! Thanks for everything. Jen — hope you find happiness. Eric, don't fall off any walls! Nina — wish we could've been closer. Jim, I miss you man. Family, friends, teachers — thanks for being there. God bless.

Will Young: I have been to Strawberry Fields; I've seen all the lonely people, where do they all come from? Now I know. My friends, your love has filled me with happiness and fond memories. Elise Utz was not a typical high school senior. She participated in the Program for Exceptionally Gifted Girls, at Mary Baldwin College. Elise enrolled in college classes and received credit towards her diploma to graduate with her senior class. Elise plans to continue attending Mary Baldwin and major in drama.

When asked what she missed most about Lake Braddock, she immediately replied, "Guys! The only guys we get to see are the ones from VMI." While most seniors were preparing for college, Elise Utz had a head start in the college experience.

With one last year to really boost GPA's, the class of 89 realized they would come face to face with probably their most difficult year at Lake Braddock.

Colleges demanded good grades, workloads increased, PSAT's and SAT's were waiting to be taken, and that was only the beginning: "This summer I'll probably be doing a lot of college research and visiting. There won't be as much time for relaxation," predicted Kristi Funka.

Along with added responsibility there was also added fun. One big event of the year would be the junior/senior ski trip, scheduled for January. "I've waited forever for this! The ski trip will be my tension reliever in the middle of it all. I love to ski and to be with my friends. Who could ask for more?" said Marty Curran.

When one stepped back and took a broad overview of the 898 member class of 1989, they could see that no matter what the expectations, demands or deadlines, each person would carry their own definite, distinct interpretation of junior year at Lake Braddock.

The turning point

On October 19 at 8:00 am, the cafeteria began to fill up with anxious juniors who had finally arrived at the long awaited moment when they could ask "Will you turn my ring?". "I never thought the time would come when I was going around saying

For the many students who attended, the breakfast was not just a break from class accompanied by 2,280 doughnuts and napkins with "The Class of 1989" printed on them. Along with the turning of rings and filling out of signature pamphlets with current movie, music and fashion favorites and big news stories, the class superlatives were announced, producing plenty of laughs and memories.

Juniors eventually returned to class feeling that they had taken a step on the road to graduating. Mike Eader summed up the morning: "It was one of the steps to becoming an upperclassman. This is just a taste of my senior year."

"Turn my ring' instead of turning everyone else's," said Esbelle Sepulveda. "When I went to order my ring, the guy was pressuring me, so I eeny meeny miny moed it."

I loved having all of my friends turn my ring.

Accomplishing unity

The class of '89 put their own touch into the 1987 Homecoming Parade with their version of "Dancing Through the Decades."

Juniors met every other day for three weeks at Robyn Gurinsky's house to plan the float, make the hundreds of flowers needed, and do the actual construction work. Despite having to tear apart the original frame and start over, the students pulled together and built the second-place float. "We should have won first," stated Chris Erskine.

Aside from all of the work, building the float gave juniors the opportunity to meet new people and make new friends. New comer John Tanner jumped right into the action and later said, "Being new, I tried to get in on everything, so I started on the float. I had a great time and met lots of people. I'm doing it again next year and then we will win first place!"

When all was said and done, the junior class was able to look proudly at their work and unity in building the 1987 float. "It's good to see a group of people pull together to accomplish a goal that we can all be proud of," commented Andy Pulliam.

A group effort

"Being a class officer is not just having your name in the LBSS folder," said junior Vice-President Chris Erskine. "It takes a lot of work and time. It's a great feeling, though, to stand up in front of your class at a pep rally and yell your lungs out. It's even a greater feeling when they yell back at you."

With that attitude, the class of '89 officers set out planning the year and, as President Stacey Moore said, trying to "make school more bearable."

The officers held fundraising activities including doughnut sales three mornings a week from 7:30 until 8:00 and the "Sock It To Me If You Can Sucker" stand at Fall Festival. They also planned the skit for Fall Follies, built the dummy for the bonfire, and worked on the float for Homecoming.

Meanwhile, SGA Representative Caroll Lee worked to increase involvement with school-wide events. "Being in SGA is fun," said Lee, "but the point is to get the class more involved in activities the whole school is involved in."

Cash or charge?

In December, 100 juniors were asked questions about their spending money. They were asked where their money comes from, how they spend it, and how much they spend monthly on clothes, entertainment and other expenditures.

*D*ates were a popular expense for juniors. Dan Sebastianelli and his date enjoy "spending" the evening out.

*M*ary Mattox shares a common expense among juniors — food.

Almost half of those polled still get their money the old fashioned way — from their parents. More juniors are getting jobs, however, and 32% are earning their money themselves. 28% are receiving money from both sources.

Where does the Class of '89 spend their money? The majority (69%) of the class spends money at the movies. Other junior expenditures are for clothing (58%), dates (30%), school sports games (9%), and other miscellaneous costs such as albums or tapes, parties, gas, and as one junior put it, "the stuff my parents won't get me."

How much are juniors willing to pay? On the average, the most money spent each month is for clothes, at $70.00 per junior, but as Rachel Olitsky explained, "it depends on the season." The cost of entertainment for the class averages over $30.00 a month. Other expenses, such as music, food, and gas, come in at about $40.00 a month.

"Sock it to 'em!"

Yelling "Hit the idiots," Mike Parsons stuck his dripping wet head through a board labeled, "Sock It to Me Sucker — If You Can!" for the class of '89's Sponge Toss at Fall Festival and waited for someone to hit his face with a wet sponge. "It was original. It was better than the other booths." Kevin Hunt remarked. The booth, with its enthusiastic, screaming juniors, earned 100 dollars to buy float supplies.

"It was fun," Scott Coco, exclaimed. "We tried to get the people mad enough to come over and hit us. We never shut up — we were hoping someone else would make us."

And many people did try to whack the junior volunteers. As Stacey Moore put it, "We got sopping wet!" As a wet sponge was flying towards Bill Cocolis' face, he "felt like a Republican in a Democratic Convention." But all in all, the volunteers agreed it was a chance to make fools of themselves without anyone caring because everyone got a good laugh out of it.

It was amazing to me that someone would support their class by having a sponge thrown at their face.

Looking back . . .

Remember when . . .
 — school dances that ended at 10:30 were the hottest things on the weekends?
 — you had to eat lunch with your English/history class?
 — you thought wearing your gym suit was cool?
 — seniors were "so old?"

seniors in a couple of months, with seventh grade left far behind. But before it's completely blocked out of memory, take a look back at the class's dreaded seventh grade year.

It was 1984, the year of George Orwell's novel. This was the year of Michael Jackson's "Thriller" album, the break-up of AT&T, and the invasion of Granada. It was before "The Cosby Show," before "Top Gun." People were just seeing Tom Cruise dancing through his living room in his underwear, as "Risky Business" emerged as the favorite movie. The favorite song was "Total Eclipse of the Heart," by Bonnie Tyler.

What was in fashion? Ankle boots, bandanas, camouflage, the "Flashdance look," thin-ties for girls, and no one was cool without their collar turned up.

But what do members of the Class of '89 have to say about their seventh grade year?

"I don't remember much except you had to walk to lunch in a line and could only throw your trash away when you were quiet," said Ann Colly.

Since 7th grade I feel I've grown from a boy to a man.

Juniors brush up

"As I look across the field, it feels awesome to see our class year proudly painted on the bleachers," exclaimed John Crews. "It feels great to be a junior. We're almost there!" For the class of '89, it was a big step to finally paint their class year in purple, white, and yellow on the visitors' bleachers.

"It seemed like we'd never get our graduating class on the bleachers — it took forever. But hey — this year visitors' side, next year home!"

remarked Betsy McLendon.

It took 5 gallons of paint, 5 hours of labor, and 75 enthusiastic juniors to get the job done. Although they came together to work, the juniors were able to socialize with their friends and catch up on the latest news from the summer. It was no surprise to see someone chasing someone else with a dripping paint brush or to be caught in the mist of a paint fight. "We probably painted the people more than the bleachers!" laughed Kim Kitchens.

All work and no play?

This year, many members of the Class of '89 began to get jobs. As more juniors got their driver's licenses and cars, many felt there was a need to earn some extra money, and that meant finding a job. "I want to save up and

Many juniors found conflicts arose in trying to balance homework, working, and fun. The junior year, the year of the dreaded SAT, is a very academic one. "It's sometimes hard to have time for everything," stated Dawna Armstrong.

Together, forever

Wearing denim jackets, jeans, and dark shades, 47 juniors strutted onto the stage, clapping, dancing, and singing to Sam Jordan's version of "Heard it Through the Grapevine" for their Fall Follies skit. The American Bandstand approach made their play unique.

The performers spent three weeks rehearsing for the skit. "I felt that with all the volunteers we had supporting our class, we'd certainly win," remarked Angie Galland.

As the juniors were announced the winners, Jim Severino "ran down the center aisle, got up on stage and jumped around. It was great!"

For their last song, the juniors swayed and sang their version of "Stand By Me". "It felt awesome out there!" said Stacey Swenson.

As their grand finale, the juniors, appearing to be wearing plain white shirts, turned around revealing letters on their backs which spelled out "Class of '89." The skit expressed how the class of '89 will always be ... "together...forever."

"B a-da-bum-dum" sang the ten man junior bass to keep the steady beat for the singers of their skit.

"Responsibility. If one word could describe my sophomore year it would be responsibility," explained Andrea Seward. To the class of '90, the sophomore year meant lots of homework, drivers licenses, cars, and jobs. But sophomores also felt more accepted by the upperclassmen than years before as freshmen and intermediates. "This year we seem to be intermingling more with the juniors and seniors because of involvement in clubs, jobs and varsity sports," concluded Doug Fineburg.

Although sophomores were challenged more academically with classes like Biology, Geometry, and second or third year foreign languages, they could always find ways to relax on the weekends. Football, basketball, and baseball games, shopping at Springfield or Fair Oaks Mall, or just going to see a movie, were some of the favorite pastimes to unwind after an exhausting week of school.

Another popular activity among sophomores was "gelling". "After a long, hectic week, I love to lay around all day and then go out with my pals to parties and various social events!" was how

Pete Becraft described his ideal weekend.

Sophomores found that all the stress from the week made them enjoy their weekend even more. Once Friday night arrived, the Class of '90 was ready to put aside their schoolwork and concentrate on having fun!

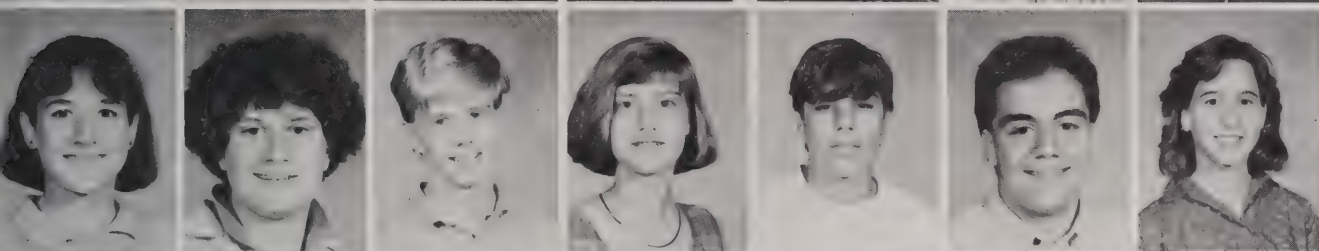

Due to added responsibility and an increased social life, the class of '90 found that their sophomore year left a definite impression!

Did you know that . . .

What is something you can say about yourself that no one else can say about themselves? When asked this question, the class of '90 had answers ranging from famous grandparents to unusual talents.

“I have natural blond hair!”

— Cassie Johnston

“I can read lips better than anybody else in the school!”

— Stephanie Layman

“My great grandfather in-

— Alicia Kelly

“I’ve lived overseas for approximately a decade.”

— Kathleen Alvin

“I’m a Russian-speaking American gymnast.”

— Campbell Tyler

— Stephanie McCarty

These answers add up to one thing . . . The sophomore class is one of a kind!

On Top Of It All

What makes the class of '90 go round? Class officers! Sophomore president Courtney Singleton reported, "We're more together and doing more things this year." All the officers were enthused about the year. LeAnn Bergerud, vice president, said, "It's really great that I had the opportunity to get involved with the class."

"Excitement" was how Nicole Vazquez, secretary, defined her job. Todd Bludworth, historian, believed that "Our class has a lot of potential; they know where they're going." On top of it all, Todd Morrisette, back as treasurer by popular demand, claimed he just wanted "to make the class of '90 the best sophomore class to ever hit Lake Braddock."

Adding the finishing touches, Jennifer Hollowell completes the Sophomore Superlative display.

"It's Amazing"

"Hello?"

"Hey babes! Are you going to Young Life tonight?"

"Yeah! Can I get a ride?"

"Sure, I'll be there about 7:30!"

This was a conversation that went on almost every Wednesday night between sophomores.

"I love going to Young Life! All your friends are there having such a good time," explained Julie Guiberson. "Even if you're in a bad mood when you get there, you're happy when you leave!"

The friends, singing, skits, and talks by leader Dave Meeks seemed to be things that sophomores really enjoyed. "It's a great place to go and have fun just being yourself!" commented Andrea Dodge. People went to Young Life for different reasons, but the most common one was, as Todd Morrisette said, "... to be with old friends, meet new people, laugh and just have an all around great time!"

"I look forward to Young life every week — everyone goes so I get to see my friends and have fun!"

Let The Music Play

A pulsing rhythm rippled through the auditorium, created by the beat of the drum. Millions of flecks of light, scattered like stars, shone through the hazy darkness as the crowds roared with approval of the rock band performing on stage.

What was the best concert you've ever been to? "The Grateful Dead, because they're cool, and REM, because I had second row seats," was Andrea Seward's immediate answer.

Music was a large part of life for most sophomores. "I listen to music all the time," confirmed Georgia Wang. Added Justin Haley, "Nothing can compare to U2."

"If I could be a deejay on any station at any time, it would be 'The Morning Zoo' because they make me laugh," said Bridget Higgins. John Karakorn, on the other hand, opted to deejay "at night about 3 a.m. I'd play Tesla so people could go to sleep."

Great! Spanish is over — I hate that class! Now it's on to Biology. I think I hate Biology even more than Spanish! Oh well . . . Get a load of the dress Patty is wearing! That has got to be the ugliest thing I've ever seen!

"Hi Patty! I love your dress! It's absolutely adorable!"

Geez, I'm such a liar! I can't believe she actually believed me! Oh, I could puke! Oh no! There's Sally! What do you wanna bet she complains about Charlie and Lucy! Maybe I can dodge her . . . Nope, too late, she saw me!

"Hey Sally! What's up? . . . Charlie and Lucy?"

How'd I guess?

"Were they really?"

Why wouldn't they be holding hands — they are going out!

"They're going out you know."

Why doesn't she just give up?!!?

"You did?"

Ooooo, Walked with him to lunch — I'll bet he was thrilled!

"Hey, that's great! I've gotta go to Biology though, so I'll see ya later, K?"

She makes me sick! Doesn't she know when to quit? She's just making a fool of herself . . . Wonderful! There's Linus at his locker, I haven't talked to him since we broke up! This should be fun!

"Linus! How's it goin'?"

He's sooo cute! I wish I could have him back!

"That's good! Well, I've only got one minute to get to Biology! Catch ya later!"

That wasn't too terrible, was it? I'd Better hurry! Oh no! There's the bell . . . cool — there's a sub!

"Sorry, My locker was jammed!"

Sucker! Man, I don't think I've ever been this happy to get to Biology!

TGIFriday!

"Finally!" exclaimed Jennifer Fisch as she concluded yet another week of school. What could she have meant by that? Only one thing ... The weekend had come!

And how would it be spent? "At everybody's house except my own," explained Alison Buchan. "On the football field abusing the line backer," said Jason Riemuller.

For Richard Dixon, "The best thing about weekends was that you could just sit on the couch, eat potato chips, watch TV, and tell yourself, 'I can do my homework tomorrow'."

Nancy Althiem liked to have her weekends "at the lake watching the world go 'round.'"

Jen Owen summed it all up when she said, "Weekends are for everybody!"

"And they're off . . . "

"Because of my ability to drive, I have a lot more freedom, which makes it much easier to get away from my parents," commented Doug Finberg. This seemed to be a general reaction to finishing up behind-the-wheel and receiving the much-anticipated license.

"Now that I have my license, I get to spend more time with my friends doing things I've always wanted to do. I thought my sixteenth birthday would never get here!" said Elisha Swinford.

Although having a license had many advantages, drivers found themselves with many new "friends". "I just couldn't imagine riding the bus now that you have a license! You don't mind, do you?" was a plea heard repeatedly by new drivers. "It seems that all of a sudden I've become a free taxi for all my friends that can't drive yet," explained Ray Cooksey.

Sophomores didn't let this disadvantage spoil the feeling that getting their license was a highlight of their sophomore year. "I'm finally free!" exclaimed Brian Monteleone.

In different eyes

As he pushed open the heavy doors to Lake Braddock, he entered a new world that he'd never before witnessed. He heard screams throughout the halls as friends greeted friends. He saw others exchanging hugs and swapping summer vacation news. While almost everyone was sharing memories and friendships on this day, he could only relive the memories of his old home, far away.

Returning to Lake Braddock for another year of learning and having fun times was, for most students, a familiar experience, but for many sophomores new to Lake Braddock, the first day of school was a new, different, and even a strange adventure.

"I was overwhelmed by the size of the school," Jon Gumbert of San Diego, California remarked. "The school I came from only had six-hundred students." "I felt accepted by everyone," agreed Garrard Moren from San Antonio, Texas.

At the beginning of the year all of the new sophomores shared a common ground, but by the end everyone, new and old, was united.

Freshmen

Kristen Harkey

The sky may have been hazy on September 8, but to the 623 members of the class of '91 one thing was crystal clear — they were high schoolers.

The first bell hailed them as Freshmen. Junior high became a part of their pasts. The coming year would bring new challenges. With doors that had been closed to them now opened, they could further involve themselves in school events.

Gone were the days of the infamous intermediate "nicknames". No longer would they have to endure the taunts of the upperclassmen and names such as "Sevie" and "Eight-ball".

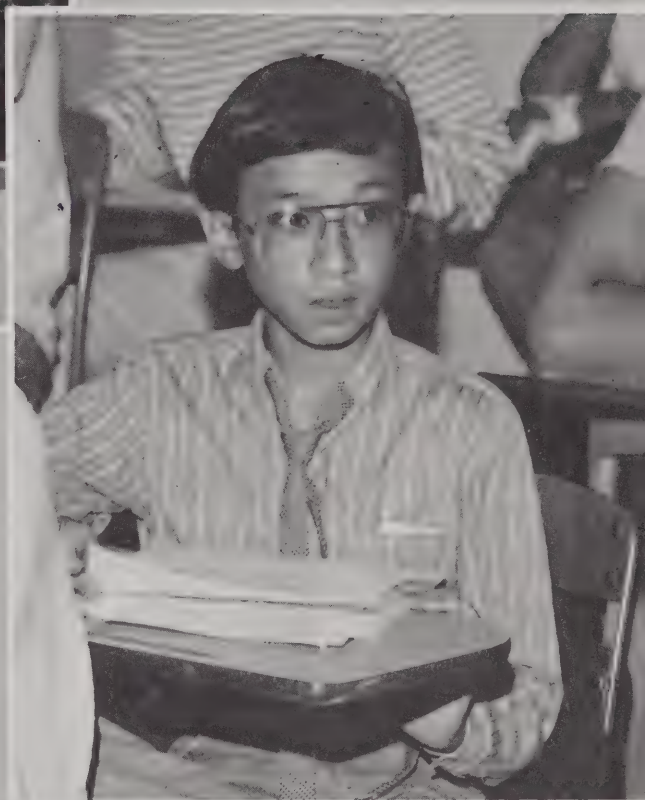

Being a Freshman meant being able to participate in more extra-curricular activities. Clint McCullough commented, "In high school there are sports and clubs to take advantage of. As an intermediate there wasn't much I could do."

Along with the new privileges came new responsibilities. Good grades became more important, as they would become a permanent part of each student's high school record. With classes like algebra, earth science and world cultures, the amount of homework that each student had to face each night increased as did the level of difficulty. "There is a lot more work and responsibility," agreed Roxann Woolfrey, "but I don't mind."

On becoming Freshmen, the class of '91 developed a sense of actually being a part of things. It also became important for them to be recognized by others. "I feel more important to the school," expressed Al Chauncey, "and I feel that the upperclassmen want me."

Straight to the Top

"The minute I found out I'd been elected secretary for the freshman class, I had to control myself from jumping up and down!" exclaimed Kenya Gregory with enthusiasm. Kenya and her fellow officers said they've all benefited from their leadership, including the good and the few bad times. Both Sarah Campbell, S.G.A. Representative, and Espen Spangenburg, Treasurer, agreed that "all the officers get along great and enjoy working out the problems that occur in order to support the Class of '91 in all they do."

With help from both the officers and the students, the freshmen class succeeded in designing a Homecoming float, organizing a skit for Fall Follies, and getting together a couple of fund raisers in order to keep their class on top. Ruby Arca, Vice-President, said she enjoyed helping with all these class activities, but her favorite time while in office was joining the other class officers at the leadership seminar in Virginia Beach. "It was a good time to meet new people and just have fun," commented Ruby.

Dave Schonberger, Historian, said, "I think this year has been different in a lot of ways. Most of all, I love the closeness that the officers all have; they're like another family to me." President Denise Gatewood also said she had a great year. "I think that the Class of '91 is really spirited and gets a lot accomplished as the class works close together. I thought it was a big honor to represent them as their class president!"

Friends Are Forever

"When you know all about somebody, but still love them anyway, that's what friendship really is," said Hyun Jeong Ro. Laura Empey added that it was "a bond between two people who care for and trust each other." What really is friendship? Even though there are differences in what students thought, the idea of a good time was always the same: "When you're alone with your friend and you can really get to talk," as Denise Pinnel said.

Other ways of having a good time with a friend ranged from going to see a movie to having the thrill of calling up a guy or a girl that you or your friend liked. Sherri Brothers enjoyed "going to a movie or picking up guys at a mall." Many students spent afterschool time or weekends "bumming around" with their friends.

Good friendships can happen between girls and girls or guys and guys, but also between guys and girls. Admit it girls, the friendships aren't exactly the same with guys because "you flirt more with them," said Angela Funes. From Cris Moen's point of view guys usually "don't talk about sports or any boy stuff with girls."

Friendship occupied much of our time, and without it life would be very different. For, as Carrie Shirron pointed out, "I have a heart that can love and a mind that can think, but what is life without friendship?"

Grouped in the ninth grade hall, John Stafford, Sam McAfee, Eric Teets, and Carlos Quinteros talk about their school day.

"How embarrassing!"

Have you ever had a time when you wished you could be "swallowed up by a big ugly monster?" That's how many freshmen felt when they experienced the worst moment in their lives. As a few of them look back, they can now laugh and share what used to be their most embarrassing moments.

"We were totally embarrassed when the "awesome" freshman Homecoming Float fell over while being displayed at the Homecoming Game." Eric Teets and Denise Gatewood.

"When my friend told my science teacher about what my girlfriend and I did at the movies, then she asked me about it the next day." John Stafford.

"When my friend put men's underwear over my head in J.C. Penney's." Shonne Williams.

"I was at camp trying to impress a cute lifeguard by doing a flip off the highdive, and when I landed in the water, my bathing suit fell down. I took a long time to put it back on before catching my breath." Sarah Campbell.

"One day when I was at swim practice, I went to pull the strings on my swimming trunks a little tighter. Well, I pulled too tight and the strings broke and my trunks fell down in front of 120 swimmers, both boys and girls. I had NO UNDERWEAR ON!" Anonymous.

"At a freshman football game, we were supposed to run across the field cheering and doing gymnastics in order to perform a cheer for the away team. I started off doing a round-off back handspring, and it was O.K. so I did another one. This time, though, I landed on my knees. Everyone from the other side saw it and was laughing at me throughout the whole cheer." Julie Simpson.

Angela Funes and Tammy Summers laugh at "Jane Doe" as she leaves the bathroom unaware of what's behind her.

"I can't believe this is happening to me!" thought Regan Kerchner as she accidentally dropped her books, and papers scattered everywhere.

A Week To Remember

“Wow! What a week!” exclaimed Beth Anderson Sunday morning after her “big night” at the dance. “I’ll never forget it!”

Homecoming Week was a special and busy time for Beth and many other freshmen as they succeeded in organizing a fall follies skit, making a dummy for the Bonfire, and putting together a float. According to Shelley Goble, “It was a great time to really get to know just how good your class could be.”

On the Homecoming Court, the Class of ‘91 was represented by Sarah Campbell and Ruby Arca. “When I found out I’d been elected,” Ruby said, “I was both surprised and excited at the same time.” Both freshmen participated in the fashion show, the Homecoming Parade, and the traditional ride around the track during half-time. “It was all a great experience,” Sarah explained, “but I’d have to say I had the best time pretending to be a model while participating in the fashion show.”

The Homecoming Dance was a new experience for many ninth graders. “It was the first time we could get dressed up and feel like a part of the upperclassmen,” as Matt Fletchall put it. The theme “Dancing Through the Decades” was displayed with colorful decorations and various types of music, ranging from “Mony Mony” by Billy Idol to “Didn’t We Almost Have It All” by Whitney Houston. “It was all a time to remember and a great one at that!” summed up Lori Wang, one of the enthusiastic Homecoming participants.

While riding through the Homecoming Parade, Ruby Arca and Sarah Campbell give their biggest smiles to the onlookers watching from the sidewalk.

Escorted by Marc Boulware at the Homecoming Dance, Marchelle Yoch commented, “Speaking for the both of us, I’d say we had a really great time!”

At Last, A Freshman

What does being a freshman mean to the Class of '91? For Audrey Barbour, it meant being "the lowest in high school," but also "stepping on the sevens and eight-balls," as Seana Williams said. After many years of waiting and waiting, freshmen were excited about finally being "high schoolers." Even though it has many great advantages, it also means a few disadvantages. "Having my grades go on my record" was Gavin Grozier's complaint, and Stacey Wright didn't like the fact that she had "three more years until graduation."

Who cares about the disadvantages? The advantages make up for all the homework and records. Trying out for clubs and sports, like basketball, track, and football were some of the long awaited privileges. Going to high school dances, especially Homecoming, made freshmen feel that they were able to "join in on what happened around the school," as Tara Toney put it.

After school, on Mondays, Wednesdays, and Thursdays, found many ninth graders at club meetings, or sports meets. But as soon as late buses rolled around, freshmen had to head home and start their studies. While dragging along a few books home, Rebecca Tolk said, "the teachers overwhelmed me with responsibilities, but being a freshman makes it all worth while!"

A Show of Spirit

"Ninety-one! Ninety-one! Ninety-one!" chanted a fired up freshmen class at the first pep rally. Becoming the new "little guys" meant showing the "big guys" just what they were made of. The class of '91 did just that by letting their spirit shine through and by representing their class in a variety of school activities.

"I yelled my head off at the pep rallies and dressed out during spirit week," said Jackie Sweeney. The many activities involved in spirit week gave freshmen the opportunity to make themselves heard. And heard they were! Their performance during the spirit yell made everyone take notice.

The Class of '91 was well represented in sports. Freshmen went out for football, gymnastics, swimming, wrestling, etc. Not only were they representing their class, but they were working to make LB noticed.

"Being there for my class with all the spirit I had and could give, was my favorite thing to do," expressed Kathy Jodoïn. She and other freshmen cheerleaders and drill team members showed they not only had class spirit, but also a great amount of school spirit. They worked to get all students charged up at school events throughout the year. Intermediate drill team member Nikki McGinnis said the best part of showing how spirited you are is that you could "act like a fool and the upperclassmen would understand."

Best of '91

In a class of many unique individuals, what did it take to stand out from the crowd? "Being involved in the many activities of the class and the school. I really tried to get our class spirited and involved," was what Denise Gatewood thought made her recognized. She and Charles Eklund were voted "Best of '91" by their class members.

Both students participated in school and extra-curricular activities. In addition to being the Freshmen Class President, Denise was the Latin Club Vice-President, and a Varsity Drill Team member. Charles played Freshmen Football and was on the Track and Field team. He was also a member of the Student Council, the French Club, and the band. They kept themselves busy outside of school, too. Charles commented, "I take care of my sister, which is a huge task!"

Attending school activities was something both freshmen enjoyed. "I loved being able to go to pep rallies, sports, and class events because it was great to see our school so unified and spirited," Denise explained.

Being chosen as the best made both Charles and Denise proud. Charles said, "I think it was hard to pick a best of '91. Anyone could have been the "Best of '91". I just got lucky!"

The Best of '91: "I am very active and very involved. My friends seem to be able to trust me on personal matters which really makes me feel good. I love to PARTY, but I also like to be serious."

Denise Gatewood

"I'm a very open minded person. I'm imaginative and creative. I like to do things to the best of my ability. I like all kinds of people. I positivley like to talk. I like new things."

"When I grow up . . ."

Hmmmm, what do I want to be when I grow up? It's such a big decision with so many choices! Should I be what my parents want me to be? A doctor with lots of money to support them in their later years? Maybe . . . maybe not. Maybe I'll be something else, something that I'd like to be . . . This thought ran through many freshmen's minds at some time or another in their lives. A few ninth graders didn't know what would become of them after high school, while others had their lives totally planned out.

When freshmen were younger, finding their "dream job" seemed easy, because they didn't think about responsibilities they'd have to face. "I wanted to be a teacher, because I thought it would be fun to boss little kids around," was Ginny Tate's dream as a child. But, as a freshman, she wanted to become a lawyer, like her father. Marc Boulware decided that "being a fireman would be neat because all my friends did," and Nikki McGinnis dreamed of being a "model for all the beautiful clothes and money."

Usually idols came with the jobs ninth graders hoped for. Since Mike Schmidt "is a greatly admired athlete who makes milk commercials," Adam Butler hoped to be a pro baseball player like him someday. But others, like Jody Regelman, don't have idols for, as she says, "I will blaze my own trails and not follow in anyone else's footsteps."

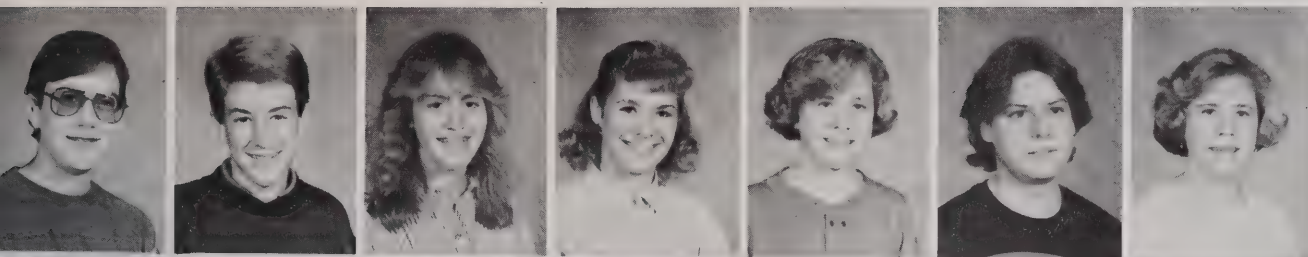

. . . Oh well, I guess I'll just think about what I want to be later, maybe tomorrow, next week, or even next year. I have plenty of time to think about life after high school. After all, I have three more years to go, and it is only my freshman year.

A Year of Change

As they approached the finish line of their first year of high school, the members of the Class of '91 were able to look back at memories that will be with them forever. Their freshman year was full of excitement, responsibility, and change.

Homecoming was a highlight of the year. Many freshmen took part in the activities of the week and attended, for the first time, the Homecoming Dance. All of the good times and fun helped to balance out the downward effect of the mountains of homework, which they were able to conquer.

"Being able to hear music during lunch," was something Steve Jennings enjoyed. A number of freshmen shared the same feeling. Hearing WLBS in the cafeteria gave them a break from the sometimes tedious routine of the day.

For many freshmen, the past year was a time for growing up. Ginny Tate reflected, "I didn't realize how immature I was when I was a sevie and an eight-ball." For others, being a freshman made them more confident. "I was able to mingle with the upperclassmen in my classes without feeling like an outcast," expressed Tara Toney.

Each member of the Class of '91 had his or her own reasons for enjoying their first year of high school. But they all agree that being freshmen made them feel, for the first time, like they really belonged. Sharon White commented, "Even though we were still under the other high schoolers, it was great to be able to walk around with respect."

At the Homecoming Dance, Rob Heyer, Gloria Terrazas, Debbie Tripp, Neil Foglio, Cheryl Wildman, and Chris Tanfield enjoy each others company.

No longer the smallest fish in Lake Braddock's sea the class of '92 moved downstairs to subschool II for the 87-88 school year. Kathy Lerch summed it up the best when she said, I looked forward to "being the highest intermediate and not being a seventh grader anymore!"

Just what is an eighth grader though? A few people offered definitions: Emily Smith said, an eighth grader is in "the transition from being a sevie to a high schooler." An eighth grader is a "tortured individual ranging from the ages of 12-14"

according to Corey Rayburn. Tim Brown thinks of the eighth grader as "a spirited, wild species of Lake Braddock Bruin." "AWESOME!" is the word Amy Williamson uses as a synonym for eighth grader.

No longer the newest people in the school, the eighth graders found it easier to navigate in the hallways. One member of the class of '92 said, "it was great knowing where my classes were the first day and not having to ask anyone how to get to the gym."

For their last year before high school the class of '92 had lots to look forward to. Many activities were planned, such as dances, ball games, the Magazine Drive, and Intermediate Lip Sync. There were many clubs and sports that the new eighth graders could join as well.

Being an eighth grader meant meeting new friends, starting different, more challenging classes, and getting to be the top of the Intermediate division.

Lake Braddock's own summit

Cultural experiences aren't uncommon in the foreign language department, but this fall when Lake Braddock had it's biggest cultural exchange yet Subschoool II was the host.

On September 9, 1987 a visiting troupe of Bulagarian dancers came to Lake Braddock. The eighteen young Bulgarians wanted to experience life in an American school. So the Bulgarian embassy contacted the administration, and the counselors and teachers recomended eighteen hosts for the 11-13 year olds.

First there was an assembly in which the troupe acted out their 1,000 year old dance, which they performed at Wolf Trap for the International Children's Festival. Then the dancers paired up with their Lake Braddock hosts for lunch in the cafeteria. "They didn't like the food," commented Kammi Nicholson, "they said Bulagarian pizza was better than ours." None of the Bulgarians could speak English so everyone communicated through interpreters. After lunch the group went to third period, so the visitors could experience an American classroom.

"It was a lot of fun — they enjoyed it and we enjoyed it," commented Brian Baker who was paired with Plamen Prokopiev Iovtchev. Everyone was sorry when it was time for the Bulgarian troupe to leave. As Tess Owens, Subschoool II secretary put it, "We fell in love with them. We wished they could stay."

Coming home

Ninety-two, ninety-two, ninety-two!! Eighth-graders enthusiastically screamed their graduation date across the gym at their rivals, the seventh graders, during the Homecoming pep rally. "Those were cool," said B.B. Petit. Feet stomping, hands clapping, and vocal chords straining, the eighth grade came out and supported the school with their Homecoming spirit.

"Homecoming was more fun as an eighth grader because we knew what to expect," said Tunc Suzal. From the bonfire and Fall Follies to float building parties and the big game, the class of '92 had learned the ropes of Homecoming activities well. They won the spirit contest in the pep rally and many students came to school dressed up for Spirit Week. "Cowboy day was funny," said Laura Willey who also added, "Fall Follies was a lot of fun. Everyone came to the practices. It was a really good group experience."

Different people had different favorites of the Homecoming festivities. J.C. Byrne offered his opinion that "the dummy was the best!" Each member of the class of '92 had their own individual favorite, but as a class they all came out and supported the school. Eighth graders stormed the basketball court and danced to "Old Time Rock-n-Roll" during the pep rally, experienced fingers stuffed their float and students came to school dressed in colors ranging from red to purple and gold, all to make the 1987 Homecoming the best it could be.

Making its way down Lake Braddock Drive the Intermediate float participates in the Homecoming Parade, on its way up to the football field for the judging later in the evening.

Slam, shuffle, bang! The bell had sounded. Students closed their books in relief, desperately finished the last question on the test, got last minute homework assignments, and moved towards the hallways. "I talk with my friends and collect my things," explained Devon Tate, "but most of all I'm in a rush getting from class to class . . . on time."

Many students immediately began to move in the direction of their next class, especially if they had to struggle the one-fourth of a mile down the main hallway from Sub-school II to the gym. During the eight minutes between classes, Stephanie Bernhardt said, "I try to get my locker open." Paula Butron admitted, "In all my classes I look forward to the break!" Most students would agree.

After the final bell rang, students returned to their lockers to pick up homework books. Some quickly searched for their buses while others remained at school. "Talking with friends, going to the senior snack bar, or drill team practice" was what Christine Maloney did. Jennifer Lee said, "I get home, eat a snack, watch some TV, and do my homework." Others talked on the phone, listened to the radio, rested, or practiced their music. After doing homework and eating dinner, "I go to bed," says Rita Minjarez to get enough sleep to begin another routine day.

Subscription Scramble

"Would you like to buy a subscription to a magazine?" was a familiar question asked by the Class of '92 during their magazine drive. The SGA-sponsored fundraiser opened with an assembly on November 4 to get intermediate students involved. The drive continued through November 18.

Students participated in the fundraiser for primarily two reasons. Katie Gagnon sold subscriptions "to raise money and help the class out." Kelley Duke commented that she "wanted to try to win stuff." Prizes included pencils, tootsie roll banks, key chains, and M & M's. Students who sold twelve subscriptions had the opportunity to participate in the silver scramble, picking up as many dimes, nickels, and quarters as possible until all of the money was snatched up. The five top sellers were awarded with a limo ride.

Students used a variety of techniques to get people to buy a magazine subscription. Rickey Kaplan said, "I used my Mom and Dad's friends." Others went to neighbors or resorted to begging their friends and families.

These selling techniques did the trick and helped to earn the intermediates $22,137.97 which they could use for their many activities.

Sticking their heads out of the sunroof of the limo chartered for the Magazine Drive winners, Mike County and Jason Herding wait to be driven away by the chauffeur.

Born leaders

Leadership, friendship, and activity symbolized the eighth grade officers. "Through SGA class we got to do things with upperclassman and get involved with the whole school," commented Amanda Carter. With two returning class officers goals were set high. "When we get bored we think of something else the class can do," said Vice President Tim Brown.

When asked why she ran in the '87-'88 election. Secretary Laura Willey explained, "We want to have more fund raisers, fun, and lots of class spirit!"

Officers were kept busy planning intermediate dances, working on the eighth grade float for Homecoming, preparing for the Spring Fling, and various other activities, including superlatives. Guided by sponsors Estelle Brothers, Beverly Fleming, and Jane Brown, the six officers met the challenges of leading the class of '92 through their eighth grade year.

Getting involved

What can an eighth grader do at Lake Braddock? Some would say not a lot since they aren't even in high school. But that would be very wrong. There were many activities open this year to the class of '92.

There were academic related clubs. Debate team, chess club, and the four language clubs all opened their ranks to eighth grade. S.G.A. was also an option for any eighth grader who wanted to join.

This year was the first year that the class of '92 could attend athletic events unchaperoned, and they were happy to use their new privilege, showing up to cheer on all the Bruin teams. "I love basketball games," commented Emily Smith, "because they are a fun social event." The other favorite social event of the eighth grade were the dances. Everyone tried to attend and have a great time.

There were also many sports for the class of '92 to participate in: football, wrestling, track, basketball, Drill Team, and gymnastics were all offered. They kept the eighth graders busy and healthy.

With all these activities it was hard for someone in eighth grade not to get involved. Of course there were those who had their own specialized activities like that of Jesse Rosenthal "sleeping in class."

Tutoring takes talent

"Mrs Mackmin, I don't understand this algebra. Could I get some extra help?" Lots of teachers found themselves hearing similar statements frequently and didn't have time to help everyone. So they decided to set up the eighth grade tutors.

The eighth grade teachers talked to some of their better students asking if they were interested; then submitted recommendations for those who were. After screening all the applicants 57 tutors were chosen. Teacher requests for tutors came pouring in and each tutor was assigned a student to work with one on one. "It's good knowing you are helping someone," commented Blake Pietrzak, "but sometimes it's hard getting them to understand."

The tutoring sessions were held on Mondays, Tuesdays, and Thursdays, though tutors weren't expected to stay everyday. As Dick Harless, the program coordinator stated, "the tutoring program has been very successful, it has proven very helpful to the seventh grade teachers. The tutors are very conscientious about being at the right place at the right time and they become very involved with the kids they are tutoring even checking up on their grades."

Seventh Grade

Segall-Majestic

As the rain came drizzling down on the morning of September 8, 627 seventh graders anxiously entered Lake Braddock, wondering what this overwhelming school had in store for them.

What did it hold for the class of 1993? Lockers, six different class periods, dances, seven lunch lines, and 4000 other students to name just a few.

"I thought the older kids would be really mean to us," commented Brandon Wade, "but I hardly even saw anyone besides other seventh graders." This was due to the fact that, except for lunch, music, drama, and P.E., seventh graders don't have to leave Subschool 1. Many anxieties were calmed when they realized that the upperclassmen were too busy to shove them into trashcans.

Many seventh graders looked forward to their journey into Lake Braddock. Unlike elementary school, there were many new things to look forward to. "The classes are supposed to be a lot harder than in sixth grade," commented Amy Parker.

"I really like the variety of classes that are offered there in Lake Braddock," added Tanya Blosser. Some classes that were offered to the seventh graders were: English, history, math, shop, home-ec, P.E., science and art.

By the end of that first day, the class of '93 was ready to go home and rest. "I got lost twice, didn't get to eat lunch because the lines were too long, and I missed my bus," said an exhausted Ryan Carney, "but I couldn't wait to come back the next day!"

Fitting in

“What if you can’t find your class on the first day of school?”

These were common fears expressed by most seventh graders about the first day of school. After the first few days of school, these young Bruins felt at home and well-adjusted to their new school.

It was different from grade school in that class unity began to develop. Seventh graders could participate in Spirit Week, the Homecoming festivities, and elect class officers. “Being a part of such a big school felt really cool.” Football and basketball games were opportunities to participate in at Lake Braddock.

Academic life was also very different. Seventh graders faced challenges in their English/History block classes as well as in Environmental Science. Homework increased and seventh graders had more responsibilities.

As the year progressed, the seventh graders began to adjust and enjoy life at Lake Braddock. As Allison Daley said, “The best thing about seventh grade was being able to meet lots of people and being a part of the school.”

Overloaded with books, Joylynn Funes and Ryan Carney hurry to avoid being late. Commented Carney, “Making it to class on time is one of the hardest things about being in Lake Braddock!”

C “The transition from sixth grade to seventh was really an experience. Everyone looked down on us. I felt like I was on the bottom all over again. I guess everyone has to start somewhere.”

Making the future

Forty-nine candidates for class office provided competition for each other when class elections were held in November. When the dust settled, Jennifer Lee became president; Vel Jackson, vice president; Pam Anderson, secretary; Ashley Hall, treasurer; Jack Zellmer, SGA representative; and Ian Bastek, as historian.

These ambitious officers started the year off by sponsoring dances, selling class sweatshirts, helping out with Toys for Tots, along with having a book sale and a magazine drive. Treasurer Ashley Hall commented, "My main goal for this year is to unite the Class of '93 and to arouse participation from all seventh graders in school activities."

"I enjoyed being the secretary of my class-it kept me busy, was a lot of fun, and enabled me to meet many people," remarked Pam Anderson.

The officers noticed a big difference in the amount of work that had to be done from their past experience in elementary school. Organizing a class with over 600 students was a lot different than organizing an entire school with only 600 students. "I didn't think it would be so much work," commented Jenny Lee, "but I am really glad that I'm the class of '93's president."

Fateful first day

"I had so many school supplies in my backpack that my bologna sandwich got squished all over my chocolate chip cookies," commented one seventh grader about her first day of school.

This was just one of many "interesting" experiences that the class of '93 had during its first overwhelming week at Lake Braddock. Many horror stories revolved around the cafeteria. "The first day of school I forgot my lunch, so my mom brought it to me in the middle of second period. I was so embarrassed!" commented Chris Ewald

Gabe Cardino added, "The lunch was so crowded that I bumped into someone and spilled my milkshake all over myself!"

Having to fight their way through crowded halls, most seventh graders admitted being late to at least three classes on their first day. A little embarrassed, Jenny Lee commented, "I was running to class down the main hall, and I tripped and my supplies went everywhere. Everyone laughed, but some people were nice enough to help me pick them up."

Wrapping up the day, the approximately 60 busses added to the confusion. Said a frustrated Virgil Lyon, "I got out of school just as the busses were pulling away, so I had to run all the way down John Alwood Drive to catch up with mine. I was so exhausted, especially because I had a full backpack."

Like all the previous seventh grade classes, though, the class of '93 made it through that frustrating first week!

Trying to "Grin and Bear it", seventh grader Brandon Wade gets stuffed in a trashcan (by two seniors!).

Social butterflies

Parties, games, movies, and friend's houses are where you'll find the seventh graders "hanging out" on the weekends. Although the Class of '93 consists of hundreds of different personalities, most seem to share the same interests both after school and on the weekends. Staying after school and talking in the halls is a hit among most seventh graders, while others enjoy attending intramurals or just going home.

Class of '93 favorites:

* "My favorite thing to do on the weekend is going to the Friday night games because you see everyone there." — Dianna Holland

* "I enjoy just being able to catch up on my sleep and relaxing on the weekends." — Ashley Hall

* "We like going to Springfield Mall to see a movie or to just walk around." — Matt Lester and Laura Wilbur

* "After school, I like to talk in the halls with my friends and at night, I like to go to parties and sleepovers. When there is nothing else going on, I usually go to intermediate basketball games or babysit."

— Amy Parker

* "When the weather is nice, my family and I usually go to the beach for the weekend. If I am here, I go to the movies with friends or to parties. In the afternoon, I occasionally work out at either Wake — field or Lake Braddock." — Mike Thomas

The seventh graders generally found time for homework after all these activities. The intermediates social lives, while hectic, prepared them well for their high school career.

"Between football, my girlfriend, homework, and Professional Wrestling I consider myself lucky to have any free time at all," said Brandon Wade.

Rocking with '93

From the first dance in November to the last in April, the seventh grade consensus was clear: "They're Awesome", said Jennifer Street.

Of the four intermediate dances this year, two were sponsored by the class of '93. The music was provided by Sound-Tech and played by a professional D.J.

"When there's a fast song me and my friends all dance together, but when a slow song comes on we break up and hope we get asked to dance," said Jane Gressing.

The "no jeans" dress code was still enforced, and seventh graders generally thought the dance was too short, running from 7:30 to 10:00. The most requested songs were by Bon Jovi, Tiffany, Madonna and Whitney Houston.

Describing a typical dance night, Shae Crisson said, "Everyone gets together and we have a little party then go to the dance. We need more slow songs like "It Could Have Been so Beautiful" by Tiffany, and fast ones like "Mony, Mony" by Billy Idol are great to dance fast to. They should let us wear designer jeans as long as there are no writing or holes in them."

Jason Wells saw things differently on the night of the first dance: "Everything was fine except the music was too loud and I was nervous because it was my first L.B. dance. I was worried that I was wearing something wrong and everyone would be looking at me. But I got used to it and had a really good time."

From all the seventh graders who attended the first dance, the message was clear: WE NEED MORE!

Your bus or mine?

“Who’s driving to-night?”

“Well, my mom said she can take us to the dance. Can your mom pick us up?”

“No, but my big brother said he would.”

“Great! That’ll be really cool. Tell him we’ll meet him out by the bear around 10:45.”

How many times has this conversation occurred? Too many to count! Since Lake Braddock opened, seventh graders have had to ask the question: whose parents are going to drive? (Except for those few lucky ones who have an older sibling who is willing to play chauffeur!)

Getting to and from school brings about another transportation problem. The most popular way to get to school these days is still — yes . . . the bus. As a matter of fact, of those seventh graders that live out of walking distance from the school, 90% ride the bus.

Other means of transportation? Well, other people ride bikes, skateboards, or just plain walk when they need to get to where they’re going. “If it’s not too cold or too far, I don’t mind walking or riding my bike; but usually I just get my mom to take me where I need to go,” commented Joylyn Funes. “Parents are cool!”

No matter what, Mom and Dad are still the old faithful standby when all other means fail!

What lies ahead?

Harvard ... Princeton ... Yale ... Oxford ... where do you want to go to college?

Lawyer ... doctor ... scientist ... actors and actresses ... what do you want to be in life?

Though young, with lots of time on their hands, many members of the Class of '93 seem to have definite plans for the future. About 95% plan on attending college and settling down with a stable career and family. After attending college, the most popular goal for the future seems to be being rich and married, along with having a family.

Most students hope to attend college in Virginia at such schools as: University of Virginia, James Madison, and William and Mary. Others hope to attend one of the Ivy League schools.

"I plan on going to the Air Force Academy and then hopefully becoming a pilot," said Josh Kelly.

"When I grow up, I'd like to be either a football player or a doctor," remarked Tyson Bradley.

"I think it would be interesting to be a veterinarian," commented Ann Dickerson.

"I would like to attend West Point Military Academy and pursue a career in the Army or as a Marine Biologist," said Robin Messinger.

"I either want to become a pilot or an engineer. The University of Virginia is my top choice for a college, and I hope to be successful and have a very big home," explained Jon Parish.

Every member of the Class of '93 has a different goal and plan for the future. With any luck, and a lot of hard work, they can fulfill their ideals. The seventh graders have the time and the new experiences to come to make it all possible.

Realizing how important hard work is to their future plans, Amy Taub and Bret Rosenweig diligently finish the day's assignment.

Faculty

Cindy Drerenberger

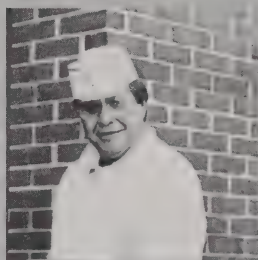

When the 8:15 bell rang on September 9 to start the new year, many changes had already occurred, and more were on the way. New administrators and teachers adjusted to new offices, teaching areas, and faces — far too many of them. The entire faculty felt the pressure of the first year of Fairfax County's revolutionary new "merit pay" program. It promised to be a year to remember, but not necessarily an easy one.

Yet the feeling of togetherness that has always made Lake Braddock "home" for its teachers was alive and well.

"Cameraderie among the faculty is something we all share," remarked math teacher and Class of 92 sponsor Mrs. Bev Fleming. Most teachers met the challenge of improving their individual skills without sacrificing the traditional Bruin team spirit.

For many, the day extended far beyond the 8-3:30 contract time. It wasn't unusual to see faculty members still at school after the students had gone, finally able to catch up on planning, grade papers, preview a film, or just talk to each other. Sometimes families had to come second to work, but there were also rare moments when teachers could share their work with their families in a special way — rooting for a son or daughter who goes to Lake Braddock, or even having an unexpected visit. Mrs. Tina Yalen's eighth graders won't soon forget the surprise birthday visit of her son and husband, both dressed as white rabbits.

Do teachers secretly wish for jobs with more money, glamour, or sanity? Don't bet on it. "About once a month I swear I'm going out and get a job in the adult world," said one teacher, "and then I realize how boring it would be. It would be nice to have a secretary and the chance to eat lunch out instead of racing seventh graders to the cafeteria at a time when most people are finishing breakfast — but it wouldn't be half the fun!"

Taking a step up

Stepping up into new positions this year are six new administrators. Helen Westfall, associate principal of Lake Brad-dock. Also subschool principals: Barbara Gernat (IV), Marvin Spratley (III), Mary Sykes (II), Bill Watts (I) and Hector Mon- had personal goals to "jump into" Lake Brad-dock life. Mr. Montenegro wanted "to help students and create a drug-free school." "To get to know the staff and program," was Ms. Westfall's aim. Mr. Watts on the other hand, wanted to just "become a member of the seventh grade team."

Their new positions brought many surprises to the new administrators. "The size of the school, the dedication students have toward their studies and the awesome size of pep rallies," had been a change for Mr. Montenegro. Each one found their new position enjoyable due to "the respect and caring shown among teachers and students," replied Ms. Gernat.

tenegro, assistant principal (III & IV).

The newcomers to LB have various backgrounds. Ms. Gernat was an assistant principal at Langley High School. Ms. Westfall was also an assistant principal, but at James Madison. Unlike the newcomers, Mr. Watts only changed subschools. While Mr. Spratley was promoted from administrative assistant.

Making the grade?

Do increased pay and closer observation create better teachers? That was the question the Fairfax County school system set out to answer this year as the first leg of the new merit pay program took effect. Teachers were both hopeful and worried. "Responsibility and accountability are great," remarked one, "but could we find a way to cut down on the stress?"

Much of the pressure came from the new opportunity experienced teachers had to try out for Career Level II, a position that will carry increased pay, prestige, and responsibilities. "It was hard to decide whether to go for Level II," said one long-term teacher. "If I'm not declared 'skillful' or 'exemplary,' does that mean that I've just been mediocre all these years?"

Even teachers not eligible for Level II had six classroom observations — three unannounced. Many teachers expressed concern that their overall evaluation would be based on a few short visits. For those not satisfied with their evaluation, an appeals process will be available.

And how did the students view all this? "It makes them nervous," observed Jenifer Powell. "I think it's good for them because it lets them know how they're doing," said Nina Adams.

As part of her evaluation process, Estelle Brothers meets with Mary Sykes to discuss notes taken during her observation.

By spring, observations were completed and teachers had gotten their "grades". Only time tell if the system benefits both teachers and students. "If it improves the quality of teaching (and I think it does)," said one teacher, "then I'm for it."

The Silent Supporter

Although students are the life of the club, club sponsors are the support that keeps them going. Club sponsors play many roles in the lives of the club members; they are counselor and friend as well as sponsor. But why do they do it?

French Club and Honor Society sponsor Pam Wentworth said,

Mimi Jahoda and Kevin Kelly grade Kristin Greene and Kristin Hodes not only on projects but also on participation in class.

"Sponsoring a club allows me the opportunity to work with students in a non-academic setting." Debate coach Vicki Drinnon said, "I enjoy students and I like to help them develop skills that will be useful to them the rest of their lives."

When asked if they would recommend the job, the unanimous answer was yes. Margery Gifford, Tri-Hi-Y sponsor, summed up, "My only advice would be to be a sponsor because you WANT to be. You need to believe in the ideals of the club and the students who choose to be members"

"A club sponsor has to be willing to give extra time, but the benefits for the students can outweigh the time spent as we see their opportunities increase."

A Matter of Pride

"The alternative to hate and discrimination is to learn more about people," commented Joan Shows. The Cross Cultural Relations Committee (CCRC), a group comprised of teachers and students, conveyed a message of understanding.

The CCRC began as an outgrowth of Black History Month. Highlighting the achievements of all ethnic groups, the committee also raised awareness of cultural differences represented in Lake Braddock.

The main goal was "Everybody should be more sensitive to other cultures for better understanding and more peace and harmony," said Lois-teen Harrell, chairperson. "More participation" was noted by Olga Munoz when asked about student responses.

The CCRC hopes to become a tradition in Lake Braddock family by conquering ignorance about others.

"Peace, friendship and goodwill", as shown in this showcase, is the point the Cross Cultural Relations Committee tries to get across to every student in Lake Braddock.

Even after the normal work load of school, Lois-teen Harrell, chairperson for the Cross Cultural Relations Committee, participates because it is something "I truly believe in."

Last Words

The editors of the 1988 Lair would like to thank all the students, faculty members, and others who helped us throughout the year to make the Lair its best. Typing senior quotes, never a fun task, was made easier with the help of the following students: John Aceron, Nina Adams, Lisa Byram, Beth Collingwood, Sharon D'Ercole, Peter Dernbach, Lori Eisenrath, Susi Facemire, Shannon Flood, Julie Fossum, Steve Gordon, Tina Lattin, Audrey Ogden, Jennifer Olson, Jennifer Portch, Hal Ratner, Alex Rockymore, Jay Rowzie, Amy Sheffield, Kevin Smith, Pat Steele, Carolyn Terry, and Maribel Vega; as well as Mrs. Pam Williams and Mrs. Barbara Elmore. Mrs. Carole Gilding, who volunteered for us time after time, also deserves a warm thank-you.

A friend and support system throughout the year, we extend our utmost thanks to Dr. Pat McCarthy, whose journalistic know-how has been a tremendous help to us in countless situations. We would especially like to thank all the administrators and teachers who put up with our endless requests and interruptions, making our job a little easier. For our photography help we would like to acknowledge Mr. Jeff Segall and all the employees of Segall-Majestic who not only put up with our last-minute calls, rush-orders, and sometimes unclear requests, but did it willingly and have produced the quality photo work we have come to expect. Additional help in photography came from Photo II student Chris Talbot. A special thanks goes to our representative from Taylor Publishing Company, Bill Clements, and Tom Scarry, for the advice, comfort, and support they provided.

The Lair was published by Taylor Publishing Company of Dallas, Texas, in Paoli, Pennsylvania. Submitted in six monthly deadlines, its production required many, many hours of hard work and dedication from 55 staff members and sponsor Jan Tarasovic. The editors would like to personally express their appreciation and gratitude to Mrs. Tarasovic for being so tolerant, helpful, supportive, and understanding. The 1988 Lair is complete! Yahoo!

After taking many pictures of club and sports activities, we decided it was time the creation of this book was captured on film. The pictures above are only a brief representation of the many hours spent surrounded by mounds of paper and Dominoes pizza boxes in order to complete the yearbook on time and with style.

THE LAKE

Summer days, hours spent on the beach, day-time T.V., full-time jobs, college orientations, undisturbed relaxation; these were just a few of the activities of summer which students and faculty members alike looked forward to as June rolled around. But before notebooks could be tossed into the nearest trash can on the last day of school, a moment was taken to reflect on the year past. It was a classic year: a year where weathered jeans with a hole in the knee continually cropped up and tie-dyes swirled throughout the school. Classic rock was back and comfort was in. The music of the Grateful Dead and Led Zeppelin could be heard blaring from car stereos peeling out of the over-crowded parking lot. Intertwined with this revival of the past, however, was a modern presence. Computers could be found in many classrooms with students tinkering away in lotus, or basic language. The high-tech world of music videos became an institution with people constantly flipping the remote control to

Amidst all the fun and good times of high school, students still became involved in the world around them. Students attended AIDS seminars at school and became increasingly concerned with this national problem. 1988 offered a historically controversial election, which students became involved in whether they gave their support to Bob Dole, Jesse Jackson, George Bush, or Gary Hart. Politics became a part of everyday life as students posted signs, affixed bumper stickers, and debated with friends and classes in support of their favorite presidential candidate. Debates over the rectitude of our government could be heard drifting from social studies classrooms during this bicentennial year of the U.S. Constitution.

The presence of Lake Braddock students was felt through out the community. People got involved and made 1988 a year to remember. They jumped in the lake and found out they could have a really good time there.

Jason Andelman

It seems every year is filled with memories of fall football games. Showing their enthusiasm, Cam Strickland and Eric Wischmann cheer on the Bruin team.

Beginning the first day of her senior year, Jenny Hemphill reflects upon her past high school years and looks ahead to what the future holds.

SPRING '88,
FREEDOM,
GOOD TIMES,
LAUGHTER,
LOUD MUSIC,
OLD FRIENDS, TEARS.

Spring!

The time when young girls' fancies turn to thoughts of love . . .
and everyone's thoughts are of the beach, and graduation, and fun,
and summer.

BREAK'N

Sing in a rappin' beat

We ran on home
From school that day
Sayin' we'll never go back

Uh, uh — no way!

Mandi Cole said, "I stayed outside And painted the bear, Showin' Drill Team pride."

"My friends and I Hung out all week,"
Said Gina Gomez,
"Fun was at its peak!"

CHORUS:

We were swimmin' & raffin' And playin' around Hoppin' and dancin'
To the rappin' sound.

This vacation
Corie Ewers had a ball;
"Goin' to the beach
Was best of all!"

Swimmin' at pools or sneakin' out after dark Late night movies and picnics in the park.

"There was lots to do," said Lee Funes,
"I was never bored — it had to be the coolest!"

CHORUS:

We were swimmin'
and raffin'
and playin' around, Hoppin' and dancin'
to the rappin' sound!

Relaxing and "letting their hair down" during Spring Break are Seniors Christine Foley, Teresa Arcona, Maja Anzulovic, Lisa Miller, Jenny Fleck, Beth Lindblom, Olary Yim, and Jana Springer

Getting into their volleyball game, several students fight to smash the ball into their opponents' court.

SPRING FLING

"Hot dogs, get your hot dogs here!" and other phrases could be heard from the booths at Spring Fling. Ranging from the dunking booth, to balloon popping, to selling goodies to eat, the clubs had hopes of earning money for their activities as well as having fun. The Blonde Mexicans, Snowblind, and Sonic Fish provided music entertainment throughout the day. Moving to the beat of the music, the students could be seen sunbathing, playing volleyball, or just hanging around the booths. An occasional "thump" was heard as a player spiked the ball over the net and a splash of water could be seen as another unlucky target fell into the dunking booth. The day's sunshine provided the participants with a bright atmosphere for their '88 Spring Fling.

SADIE'S

Picture a funfilled evening cruise with lots of dancing, food and music, along with a marriage booth followed by a private reception. It happened when the Lake Braddock Princess set sail for a special Sadies Hawkins evening. Senior Jenny McCahill said, "I think the theme of this year's dance was the best one yet. Once you came aboard the ship, the fun was nonstop!"

The evening also proved captivating for distinguished guests, the German exchange students, who danced to the American rock and roll. "It was a blast-the best part was getting married," commented Dede Davis.

Two weeks prior to the dance, each class nominated two choices to the Sadie's court, and the seniors nominated five to compete for the title of Sadie's King. These top five were Phil Olson, Marcus Johnston, Eric Steinhauer, Matt McFarlane, and Mike Rutherford. When the court lined up on stage, all the wild dancing and socializing came to a standstill as the anxious crowd waited for the crowning of the Sadie's King, Matt McFarlane. The king commented, "My mother always told me that I would someday be the Sadie's King."

The biggest hit of the evening was the marriage booth where Mr. Anderson administered wedding vows and rings to the couples aboard the ship.

Captain Andy (Mr. Anderson) marries off Kate Randall and her date while cruising through the seas.

Enjoying their private reception after being married, seniors Traci Thoureen and Joey Pulone feed each other wedding cake.

A long-awaited evening . . .

*I*t's June 4, 1988. As you cruise down Lee Chapel Road, you can't help but notice the caravan of sleek black and white limousines. Why, but of course, it's Prom night '88. Days, weeks, even months before, seniors were wishfully dreaming about the upcoming event, the big dance of their high school years. Girls were not uncommonly asked six months before, but in some cases guys procrastinated until just days before the big event.

"After the varsity baseball team won their game against West Springfield on May 13th, Carmen Giannini asked me to prom in front of the entire baseball team!" laughed senior Debbie Luedtke. It also was common for girls to buy their dresses before they even hooked a date, often spending 200-400 dollars.

The prom was held at the Omni Shoreham in Washington D.C. Olary Yim reminisced, "We got to the Shoreham and there were hordes of limos, jags, BMW's, pearls, jewelry, and strapless dresses everywhere. It was like the Academy awards but without the Oscars. Then I thought to myself . . . so THIS is prom."

Some had thought prom wasn't going to be worth the money, yet afterwards, they had a different opinion: "I've never had so much fun, spent so much money, or had anything go by so fast," concluded senior Jay Cravens.

GRADuation ification

On June 15 the 960-member class of '88 said its final goodbye to Lake Braddock. The 92-degree heat was nearly unbearable during the long ceremony, but the seniors were happy. This was the final moment they had waited for through twelve long years of school.

The field was a patch of purple and white, blending three times during the waves the class provided. Despite the occasional floating beachball, balloon, or Crazy String, the seniors seemed older and more mature somehow than they had seemed only hours before. "It was a moment I'll never forget," said Heather Sullivan.

Retiring Activities Director Bob Carson spoke of the importance of maintaining high standards and a concern for others as the basis for all decisions. "If all of us, administrators, teachers, parents, and students treated each other with truthfulness, honesty, and understanding," he said, "then we wouldn't need many policies and regulations."

Party All Night!

A Bruin in flight set the travel theme for the party at the entrance to Wakefield Center.

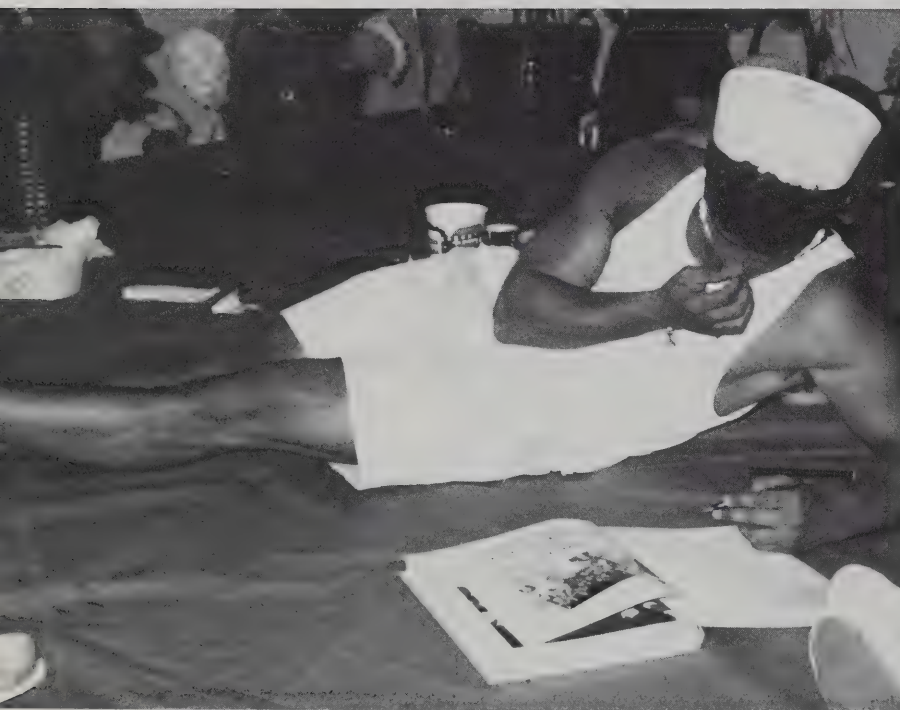

The ceremony was over, but the fun was just beginning, as the Class of '88 held Lake Braddock's first-ever all-night graduation party. Wakefield Rec Center provided the site, giving more than 700 graduates a chance to swim, dance, eat, try the casino, have their portraits sketched, win prizes, or just celebrate their last hours together.

The party was suggested and organized by parents who wanted to promote a safe, alcohol-free graduation atmosphere. "It was a great idea. We all got to spend the night partying without worrying about how we'd get home!" said ex-senior Mike Rutherford.

The party ended with a dawn breakfast. Seven hundred Lake Braddock alumni headed home for a little rest . . . before they packed up for Beach Week.

Outstanding

BRUINS

Melanie Ford

"My years on the Lake Braddock tennis team have been very rewarding! I will always be able to look back and gain confidence from the experiences I shared with the team," commented Melanie Ford, a senior on the Varsity team for four years and a member of two of the Bruin teams with the best records ever. her senior year, she was one of two players in the Northern Region to play in singles, doubles, and team competition. In September Melanie will begin college at Virginia Tech where she hopes to continue her tennis career.

Carmen Giannini

BASEBALL

Carmen Giannini, co-captain of the Varsity baseball team, was not only an outstanding first baseman but an excellent pitcher as well. He received such honors as second team all-district first baseman and first team all-district pitcher for his efforts in pitching 62 innings and making four homeruns during the season. Coach Dan Griel said, " Carmen has definitely left an impact on the Lake Braddock baseball program. He is a leader and sets an example both on and off the field for other members of the team."

Kerri Wiley

With achievements such as All-District, All-Region, 2nd team All-Met, and the team's highest batting average at .444, senior and captain Kerri Wiley led Lake Braddock's best Varsity softball team in six years. "Accepting the responsibilities of captain this year allowed me to gain confidence and improve myself as a player," commented Wiley. "There really wasn't one star player this year — the team pulled together as a whole."

SOFTBALL

Kent Hamilton

Ending his senior year as a tri-captain, Kent Hamilton has contributed four outstanding years on the boys gymnastics team. "His main goal has been trying to bring Lake Braddock a championship, which we accomplished this year," commented coach Mike Cooper. "It should be noted that this our first time winning."

Even without his sweats, Kent Hamilton proves his excellence on the parallel bars.

GYMNASTICS

This year at sectionals, Kent placed 2nd in still rings, 2nd in parallel bars, and 5th in high bar. He also placed 4th on parallel bars in regional. His hard work and dedication has earned him the right to try out with the University of Oklahoma, ranked 5th in the nation.

Freshman Carrie Blumenthal gets a "head" on the competition during practice drills. The JV girls team, through these dribbling and passing exercises, were able to finish 11-0-2 for the season.

The frantic pursuit of a chance pop fly, the drumming of running shoes on the steaming pavement, the clash of lacrosse sticks amid the shouts of the crowd — behind every game and meet were a few moments in sports that would always be remembered.

For some like Emily Wu, the moment was one of embarrassment. "It was the last rugby game and I had to play on the other team to even out the sides. I scored the winning goal ... for the other team. It was good team spirit, even though we lost."

More often than not for many athletes, a moment of victory would stand out as the highlight of the season. Junior Brandon Bridwell will never forget the reaction of the fans to the soccer team's win in the state finals. "The huge crowd was roaring all around us when Eric Kearney rifled in the winning goal. The whole stadium was filled with ecstatic Braddock fans going out of their minds."

Whether it was the hung heads of a narrow defeat or the high fives after a winning goal, every athlete had their own memories of a moment in sports.

With the help of a friend, senior Rich Cariens takes his mark at the start of the 400m race at T.C. Williams. Cariens' win helped the Bruins capture first place in the district.

oming together for a night of entertainment, a theater-full of seventh and eighth graders attended the Second Annual

Intermediate Lip Sync Contest. Sponsored by the Class of '92, the contest featured twelve groups competing for a $75 grand prize.

The performers were judged on appearance, music, and actual lip sync by a D.J, students, and teachers. Commented Mandi Jones, "I liked it because it was put together well. The D.J was great — he played before it started and during intermission."

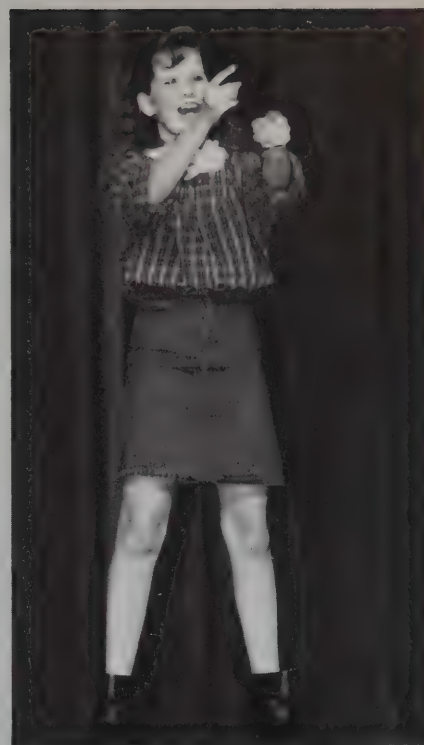

The music consisted of everything from "Be My Baby" by the Ronnettes to "Home Sweet Home" by Motley Crue. Three weeks before the show, the contestant line-up was narrowed from 75 to 30 people. With coaching from Mimi Jahoda, Mike Magathan, and various music and drama students, the "lip syncers" were able to perform without a hitch.

The winners were Kari Bills, Stephanie Davis, and Shana Mohr, who performed Tina Turner's "What You Get is What You See". The Lip Sync Contest proved a huge success for the second year in a row — not just for the contestants, but for the audience as well.

Second place finishers Danny Brown, Derek Intravia, and Jarrett Laravie won seventy-five dollars for their performance of "Home Sweet Home."

Seventh graders
Carrie Bills, Stephanie Davis and Shana Moore Won the $100 first prize for their Lip Sync.

ore dances!” was the cry of many intermediates who packed their four dances. Most students remember the dances as being fun but hot; commented one seventh grader, “The cafeteria was so hot! Everyone was sweating. It was fun though, everyone stayed till the last dance.”

The dances provided a chance to socialize and develop class unity. Heather Horton said, “They were great because it seemed like everyone went. I liked dances because it gave me a chance to be with my friends!”

While the D.J. plays “All At Once” by Whitney Houston, a group of intermediates joins together to make the dance even more special.

Jennifer McGinnis, Crissa Truner, and their friends form a circle and “swim” to the Beach Boys’ classic “Wipeout.”

Symphonic band member Chuck Butler recalled the band's journey to Canada in the spring and said, "On the way back we didn't sleep much. We played Pictionary the whole way. It was trumpets versus woodwinds and the trumpets won every game."

For the the Restaurant Trades classes, their trip to New York was capped off with a visit to the Culinary Art Institute. Senior Robert Timmons commented, "Although the restaurant the previous night, the famous Tavern on the Green, wasn't any good, the tour and demonstrations at the Institute made the whole trip worthwhile."

FROM THE EDITOR

The entire idea of doing a Spring Supplement started brewing a few years back when the Lair staff realized that, due to publishing deadlines, most events and activities after Spring Break could not be covered adequately in the year-book. Spring sports seemed to suffer especially, because actual game pictures were never available.

The solution, so to speak, has always been to put these Spring activities in the following year's book. But who wants to look at Prom pictures from last year, when this years' memories are still fresh in our minds? That is why we finally organized and put together our first yearbook supplement. Not only is the Spring covered in depth, but the staff also had the chance to experiment with new ideas and graphics which will enhance next year's book.

We hope that the supplement will become a tradition in upcoming years, and that it will set a precedent of how others should be done. We also hope that you, the students, enjoy the "extra" memories that have been recorded within these pages.

Special thanks goes out to Jan Tarasovic, sponsor of The Lair, whose dedication and long summer hours made the whole supplement possible. Thank you.
